Greek Cypriots Launch Major Military Offensive

NICOSIA, Cyprus (UPI) — Greek Cypriots opened a major attack Saturday on a Turkish Cypriot mountain stronghold in an attempt to gain control of the Nicosia-Kyrenia highway. A United Nations patrol tried desperately to halt the battle.

Reports reaching Nicosia said the fighting halted briefly when a five-man Canadian patrol flew to the scene by helicopter but that it resumed later. The Canadians radioed that firing was going on over their heads as they huddled in a no

Two Women Killed in Auto Crash

Two sisters were killed Saturday night when their car smashed into a fireplace chimney attached to a brick house in Cripple Creek, the State Patrol reported.

The women were identified as Juanita Margaret Devitt, 52, of Victor, the driver, and Nettie Chollak, 70, of Cripple Creek. Both died of skull fractures. Time of the accident was approximately 6:30 p.m.

The Cripple Creek Sheriff's Office investigated the accident which occurred on West Street near First Street. Sgt. J. Abendschan of the State Patrol assisted in the investigation.

'Czar' for State Planning, Construction Established

By STEPHEN M. AUG

DENVER (AP) — Criticism is mounting among heads of state agencies and institutions over a memo that gives the state planning director ultimate power over all state planning and construction.

The memo was sent to the heads of all state agencies on Wednesday and its existence was revealed late Friday.

It was signed by William M. Williams, state planning director, but stated that Gov. John A. Love was the authority behind the plan.

The memo states that henceforth the State Planning Division is responsible for all planning, use, contracts and construction of new buildings.

It gives the planning director the final say in any dispute arising over construction, need for new buildings and all other matters pertaining to planning.

The planning director is also authorized to represent the state as owner of all state buildings in negotiations with architects and contractors.

Prior to the memo the planning division was primarily an advisory agency. It would cooperate with agencies, institutions and the governing boards of colleges and universities, advising on planning and construction.

But the state agency engaged in the project always had final say.

Now, Williams told newsmen, "we can override them."

The memo said that the new regulations were to take effect immediately.

No state officials would comment on the new order — at least not for the record.

But it was learned that the regulation is certain to be challenged by department heads.

They argue that while Williams' department has the technical personnel, these employes are not familiar with the individual problems of other agencies or institutions.

One department said the new rule would "hamstring planning and building programs."

But Williams envisioned no friction from the new plan.

"There's always been very good cooperation between the planning division and the institutions," he said.

Williams said that the new order arose from a recent hassle over a contract for construction

Special Section In Today's GT On Model Homes

A grand opening of model homes constructed by six builders will begin today in Pikes Peak Park, a 4,300-acre area in southeast Colorado Springs.

Model homes have been constructed by Future Homes Inc., American Builders Inc., Guy V. Graham, McKinnon Construction Co., Western Homes, and Shepard Homes.

Shepard Homes is exhibiting five models, American Builders three and Future Homes, Graham and Western Homes two each.

Pikes Peak Park is bounded by Circle Drive on the west, the Valley Hi Country Club on the north, Peterson Field on the east and Kelker Road on the south. The area, except for commercial and industrial districts, was taken over late last year by O. F. Shepard of Shepard Construction Co. Approximately 250 homes have been built in the area, and by 1985 the area's population is expected to reach 30,000.

Two church sites have already been purchased by denominations, 10 acres by the Catholic Church and 5.2 acres by the Presbyterian Church.

A $2.3 million bond issue will be voted on May 12 which would finance an elementary school in Pikes Peak Park in addition to other school projects in Harrison District.

The Pikes Peak Park area was purchased in December, 1956, by Fred C. Sproul Jr., president of Sproul Homes Inc. of Colorado Springs, from Roy I. and Willett T. Pring of the Pring Brothers Ranches.

In 1961, the city of Colorado Springs made utilities available to Pikes Peak Park, and construction of homes was begun in the area in 1962.

South Circle Drive was extended and widened to a divided thoroughfare connecting with Hancock Avenue in late 1963, and it is expected that Academy Boulevard, through the heart of Pikes Peak Park, will be completed by the fall of 1964. Academy Boulevard is planned to extend from Security, south of Colorado Springs, to the U.S. Air Force Academy, north of the city.

Actor, Minister Among Racial Demonstrators

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Scores of sit-in demonstrators, including actor Sterling Hayden, were arrested Saturday by police clearing out some 300 persons from showrooms of the Big Three automakers — Ford, General Motors and Chrysler — on San Francisco's automobile row. Hayden was carried out.

The demonstrating masses charged discrimination against hiring Negroes, a charge denied by the dealers. Police said the crowds were racially mixed.

The Rev. Robert Cromey, executive assistant to Bishop James Pike of the Episcopal Church of California, was among those arrested. He was escorted out and did not have to be carried.

Among the demonstrators was Tracy Sims, 18, the girl who led a sitdown demonstration which resulted in mass arrests at the city's Sheraton Palace Hotel March 8.

Saturday's arrests began shortly after 1 p.m. and continued more than three hours along a four-block span.

Massing all available patrol wagons, the police moved first through a Lincoln showroom on Van Ness, then went to the Cadillac showroom where mass arrests took place March 14. After that the wagons went to the Chrysler showroom.

Racial Violence Erupts in South Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Hurling bottles, bricks and taunts of derision, mobs Friday night and Saturday attacked police in outbursts of violence on Los Angeles' teeming South Side.

The incidents occurred as a huge force of sheriff's vice officers were raiding a nearby section where citizens had called a mass meeting to discuss lawlessness they said was out of hand.

In the mob violence two officers were injured, four police vehicles damaged and six persons arrested.

'Rift Between Friends' Described Poignantly in Letter About Freedom

The struggle today is between the God-given rights of being an individual and the depredations of government against the property of individuals.

Violation of property rights leads to loss of freedom, in other words to socialism. And socialism means, in effect, the slavery of the individual to a monstrously inhuman system of the state, in which the individuals trudge their mindless way along a path that has no beginning and no end.

That is the gist of a stirring letter by a graduate of the Freedom School which is reprinted in its entirety on page 3-F opposite the editorial page in today's Gazette Telegraph.

Robert LeFevre, editor of the Gazette Telegraph and president of the Freedom School, explains in a note: "We consider this letter one of the finest we have ever read and hope that you will read it and think deeply about the keenly personal nature of this struggle for the minds of men ... such as shown in the concluding paragraphs of the letter: 'There is no sorrow greater than comes to one who sees the very foundations of the land he loved with his whole heart and mind crumble needlessly into ruin; there is no deadlier despair than that wrung from the bitter realization that for each of us the promise and the hope are gone, those magic beacons which suffused the land with radiance of grandeur and greatness; there is no grief more desolate than comes to one who is forced to watch with a terrible and helpless clarity of vision the inexorable moral decay and degradation of a once proud people.'"

The letter is a highly personal one. The reader is referred to the editorial pages to read it in its entirety.

Hoffa Allegedly Threatened to Kill Bob Kennedy

By BILL RAWLINS

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) —Court records showed Saturday that a mysterious "assassination plot" mentioned during James R. Hoffa's jury tampering trial involved an alleged threat to kill Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Chief Prosecutor James Neal, in a secret session of court Feb. 6, said the government's chief witness "reported (to the FBI) a threat by James Hoffa to kill the attorney general." Neal said he personally knew nothing about it.

At the time, it was revealed Saturday, U.S. Dist. Judge Frank Wilson ruled that the witness—Teamsters Union official Edward G. Partin of Baton Rouge, La.—could not be cross-examined in connection with the alleged threat, because it was not relevant to the trial.

Partin was secretary and business agent of the Baton Rouge local and the government's key witness in the Chattanooga trial. Testimony by Partin linked Hoffa to tampering efforts.

When the cryptic reference to the assassination plot came before the jury—without elaboration — on Feb. 28, Teamsters President Hoffa angrily told newsmen, "I deny it, it's a lie and it never happened."

Hoffa and three others were convicted March 4 of trying to fix a federal court jury. They are free on bond pending appeal of prison sentences.

Former President Eurico Dutra polled two votes and Christian Democratic Deputy Juarez Tavora three votes.

Seventy-two deputies abstained.

Both Dutra and Tavora are retired army marshals.

The election was preceded by pistol shots.

The shooting incident was touched off by a chance meeting in the congressional lobby of Deputy Osvaldo Lima Filho, a supporter of ousted President Joao Goulart, and Deputy Milton Cabral. Lima Filho accused

LBJ Continues to To Boost Union, Rail Bargaining

By LEWIS HAWKINS

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson underscored anew Saturday his deep desire that railroad and union negotiators end by collective bargaining the recurring threat of a national rail shutdown.

He sat in again with the negotiators and federal mediators who are striving in White House sessions to reach by April 24 a settlement that has been sought futilely for more than four years.

Then the President opened a news conference with a lengthy statement about the negotiations, launched after both sides accepted his Thursday night proposal for a 15-day delay in a strike which was to have shut down more than 200 rail lines at 12:01 a.m. on Friday.

He said: "Success in this case can be an enormous step in strengthening the foundations of collective bargaining. I know this is in the heart and minds of those around the (bargaining) table."

Johnson's statement made no direct mention of the only apparent alternative if the nego-

Mao Rebuffed By Hungarians And Russians

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet and Hungarian Communist parties called today for a "resolute rebuff" to Red Chinese leaders.

The call came in a joint communique signed in Budapest, Hungary, Friday by Premier Khrushchev and Hungarian Premier Janos Kadar. It was published here today.

It said the most important task of all Communists is the unity of Communist parties.

"It is necessary to give a resolute rebuff to subversive activities to the Chinese leaders," the communique said.

Mishandling of Public Funds Is Being Charged

DENVER (AP) — Financial audit reports of some local governments in Colorado indicate mishandling of public funds or poor and inadequate accounting procedures, the state auditor reports.

Auditor John Proctor says, however, that he is powerless to correct these faults.

Proctor refused to name most of the areas whose financial matters are not in top shape. But he did say that an examination of Roaring Fork School Dist. RE-1 at Glenwood Springs for the year ending June 30, 1962, showed "some apparent deviation from compliance with Colorado statutes."

He said that an official in one county recently resigned after a school audit by a Denver firm resulted in a report stating that public funds had allegedly been converted to private use.

Proctor said that another audit filed with his office last year showed a $2,000 shortage in the cash transactions in one county office.

Present law, Proctor said, "does not provide for positive action for correction or prosecution in instances where the properly filed audit report states or indicates the records are not adequately maintained."

He said also that the law "does not provide for action where there are obvious instances of mishandling of funds or defaultations by employes or officials or any other similar conditions requiring corrective action."

Proctor said that the main problem is not the mishandling

Taps Sounded in Norfolk For General MacArthur

By RELMAN MORIN

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Taps sounded in Norfolk Saturday for General of the Army Douglas MacArthur, and his widow wept when the plaintive notes of the bugle signaled farewell.

MacArthur's body will rest in a sunken marble crypt beneath the battle flags he followed in three major wars of this country.

The last rites fell on the 13th anniversary of a supremely bitter moment for MacArthur.

On Apr. 11, 1951, President Harry S. Truman removed MacArthur from all his commands in the Far East. Truman dismissed him because of a dispute growing out of his strategy for fighting the Korean War after the Chinese Reds entered the conflict.

Ceremonies Saturday ended nearly a full week of extraordinary tributes to MacArthur in New York, Washington, and Norfolk. It was a week of martial music and guns booming the 19-gun salute for the five-star general, a week of flags, dress uniforms, gleaming swords, and military panapoly.

Other thousands stood outside the MacArthur Memorial Museum and St. Paul's Episcopal church Saturday to see the last rites.

At the funeral, 10 foreign governments were represented. They were Australia, Belgium, Canada, Nationalist China, France, Japan, South Korea, Monaco, the Philippines and Nicaragua. Japan and South Korea, the two countries where

Freeing of All Satellites Said MacArthur Plan

By GEOFFREY GOULD

WASHINGTON (AP) — General of the Army Douglas MacArthur's post-Korean plan to end the cold war involved threatening Soviet dictator Joseph Stalin that Germany and Japan would be completely rearmed unless the people of the European Red satellite countries were granted self-determination, a congressman has said.

Rep. William Jennings Bryan Dorn, D-S.C., said MacArthur freely told him of this plan to bring the Soviet Union into line in an interview at the general's Waldorf-Astoria tower suite in New York. Dorn said he was uncertain of the year, but thought it was 1956.

The gist of MacArthur's plan was the missing part of newspaper accounts this week that projected the general into a swirl of posthumous controversy.

In a 10-year-old interview published Wednesday as MacArthur was lying in state in the Capitol rotunda, Bob Considine of the Hearst Headline Service disclosed the existence of the plan and described how MacArthur tried to convince Dwight D. Eisenhower, then the president-elect, to put it into effect.

Considine wrote that MacArthur told him, "I don't feel it would be fair to reveal my plan to you. It would be an unfair burden on you as a reporter."

Dorn said there was no such reluctance when he and two other congressmen visited MacArthur in 1956. He said MacArthur revealed to him "for the first time, and I have kept it confi-

Nikita Peace Talk 'Will Always Have Our Ear,' Johnson Declares

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson said Saturday Soviet Premier Khrushchev is "seeking to preserve peace in the world." Johnson said that, so long as Khrushchev "talks in peaceful terms, he will always have our ear."

This was Johnson's response at another unannounced Saturday news conference, to a request for comment on Khrushchev's recent kind words about the American President and Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

"I am glad to see," said Johnson, "that Mr. Khrushchev is playing the role of peace and seeking to preserve peace in the world. That certainly is the desire of this country. When he talks in peaceful terms, he will always have our ear."

At the same time, the President gave scant encouragement to any who would call for an early summit meeting.

Johnson said that because of the forthcoming election, his newness in office, the absence of a vice president, and a multitude of foreign policy problems he does not plan to leave the continental United States this year.

The only things that could take him abroad, he said, would be an unforeseen emergency or "some feeling that great advances could be made."

This did, however, leave the door slightly ajar for a possible 1964 summit session.

Aides said that in his response about Khrushchev, Johnson was not trying to get into the Sino-Soviet dispute on Moscow's side. The Kremlin accuses the Chinese of advocating nuclear war instead of Khrushchev's "peaceful coexistence."

Johnson was here referring to "complimentary" remarks—as the questioner put it—which Khrushchev made during his Hungarian tour, the U.S. sources said.

Khrushchev said in an April 6 speech that, "The United States is an imperialist country but its government judges the world situation soberly."

Johnson also made an announcement that touched upon the technological rivalry between the United States and the Soviet Union.

Summer Camp Planned for Diabetics

The Colorado Diabetes Association, an affiliate of the Mile High United Fund, will conduct its sixth annual camp for diabetic children June 12 to June 25.

This is the only camp for diabetic children in the entire Rocky Mountain area. The camp, to be held at Camp Chief Ouray at Granby, is open to both boys and girls ages 7 to 15.

The diabetic children will be integrated with non-diabetic boys and girls to give them every opportunity for a normal camp experience.

To provide the special care necessary for the diabetic campers, the Colorado Diabetes Association will furnish two physicians, one a pediatrician, the other an internist, technicians, dieticians trained in diabetes, nurses and counselors who will be in attendance at all times.

The camp has an adequate clinic building. This is an excellent opportunity for the newly found diabetic child to become adjusted to the routine of a diabetic.

A camp experience has proven to be of tremendous psychological value to all juvenile diabetics in that they are closely associated with others who have similar problems, officials said.

The cost for the two week period is $95.00 which includes room, board and the recreational program. In order that any diabetic child may attend the camp, some free camperships and some partial camperships are available though the Colorado Diabetes Association.

For literature concerning the camp and camperships write the Colorado Diabetes Association, 1375 Delaware Street, Denver, Colorado 80204.

Questions and Answers On Alcoholism

Editors Note: As a public service, the Gazette Telegraph will answer questions on Alcoholism and Problem Drinking in our region. Send all inquiries to this newspaper. Answers will be supplied by G. L. McDougall, Director, Alcoholism Information Center, Out West Building, sponsored by the El Paso County Council on Alcoholism.

1. Q. Do Alcoholics Become Insane? A. Many or most eventually show personality changes from excessive drinking. This is sometimes called alcoholic deterioration. The alcoholic may become unstable, suspicious, irritable, over-emotional, quick to take offense, even brutal towards the people he loves best. Brain deterioration can result and does to the extent that a person is unable to function sanely.

2. Are Alcoholic Psychoses Due to Excessive Drinking? A. These disorders are not due solely to the action of alcohol in the brain, since those who drink enough to become psychotic also suffer from disturbed nutrition and infection. Precisely, it might be argued that it is not the alcohol, but the nutritive imbalance that is at fault. While this factor should be recognized, it is common sense and logical to observe that in these cases of alcoholic psychoses, it is excessive and prolonged drinking of alcoholic beverages that underlies the disturbed nutrition and liability to infection.

3. Q. Is There More to the Causes of Alcoholism Than Personality or Psychological Make-up, or Neuroticism? A. There is some evidence that suggests that physical causes are involved at the same time, says Dr. Joseph Hirsh, Executive Secretary of the Committee on Problems of Alcoholism, National Research Council. The person who becomes an alcoholic may have some abnormal psychological and physiological reaction to alcohol that social drinkers don't have.

4. Q. Why Do People Become Alcoholics? A. Obviously, there no germ or bug that causes alcoholism. And there's no one thing, no one cause of the compulsive drinking that solves nothing and leads only to more drinking and catastrophies. Not long ago the public had a simple explanation. Alcoholics were merely weak people with no stern will! They really could stop drinking, bingo, like other people, if they wished! That's true enough so far as the symptoms and actual way of showing a sickness through drinking are concerned. But it's a superficial explanation. For alcoholics, alcohol is a terrific poison. They know it, still, they are driven to take it, to unbelievable excess. It only makes things worse. They know that too. The outward expression of their sickness is that, knowing all this and not wanting it to go farther, they can't stop. The real reason for their sickness is whatever is driving them to indulge in uncontrolled use of alcohol.

5. Q. Who Is An Alcoholic? A. The Alcoholic can be anyone, rich, poor, brilliant, stupid. Many are successful people, business-wise. Many are intelligent, sensitive men and women. There is a wise belief that alcoholics are mainly bums, weak willed people who know better than to drink to stupor, or who just don't care what happens to themselves or their families. This is one of the damaging misconseptions about alcoholism. The National Council on Alcoholism claims that 97 per cent are in the middle and upper brackets. Many alcoholics are regularly employed in Industry, including public utilities. Some of these are not steady workers, they have high rates of absenteeism, high accident rates, high spoilage waste rates, and especially when operating in teamwork or assembly line processes, have a deteriorating effect on morale. Some of them are highly effective in a sporadic fashion, but as the alcoholic condition develops, their liabilities soon match and then exceed their assets. Huge numbers of alcoholics are "hidden" from public notice, until the disease becomes all too apparent. Lots of them are women in their homes, who may even drink for years and be well along the road to alcoholism before their husbands and friends are conscious of what is happening.

6. Q. Is Alcohol an Irritant to the Mucous Membranes? A. It is commonly believed that alcohol has an irritating effect upon mucous membranes, but such effect is dependent upon the concentration of the beverage.

7. & 8. Q. What is Meant by Emotions & Symbols in Alcoholism? A. As if to make it still harder for the alcoholic, the drinking of alcohol is embued with all kinds of emotions and symbols. In a large segment of our population, it is considered sophisticated, smart, virle to drink. Not to drink means to be an out-sider. To another, now dwindling group, drinking alcohol at all is sinful. The alcoholic, if reared among the first group, with his deep need to be liked "approved of," tries desperately hard to drink as does his group. If reared among the second group, his equally great need to be unique, different, and independent, may lead him to drink out of rebellion. In either case, not to be able to drink in a controlled manner is not in anyway the fault of the alcoholic.

The choir will close its tour with a 3 p.m. concert Sunday for the Southwest division meeting of the Music Teachers National Association at the Muehlbach Hotel, Kansas City, Mo.

The choir was founded by Imig in 1947. It has achieved a national reputation for its wide repertoire, which ranges from early Bach to Comtemporary classic and jazz presentations.

Program for the tour will include contemporary arrangements of American popular songs, several spirituals, a group of Robert Frost poems with music composed by Randall Thompson, Brahms' "Liebtslieder Walzer, Opus 50," and Alberto Ginastera's "The Lamentations of Jeremiah."

Plant Pollens Trigger Children's Hay Fever

By THE COLORADO MEDICAL SOCIETY

Commonly, the story runs about like this:

The baby tended to be "sensitive" to things, developed rashes easily and swellings, and certain foods didn't agree with him. Then he began to have nose troubles in the winters, colds and drippiness and redness, sometimes even wheezing. Finally, at about the age of 5, he began to have the full-fledged symptoms each spring: sneezing, runny nose and eyes, stuffy nostrils.

Hay fever is not an uncommon problem in children. About 50 per cent of all allergic children will have hay fever before adolescence, and the more severely allergic the child, the earlier the attacks will begin, although hay fever is rare in children under 1 to 2 years.

In Colorado, the pollens most likely to prove offensive come from three categories of plants, each with a fairly predictable, and easily detectable, pollination period: trees, grasses, weeds.

Colorado trees usually begin to pollinate in March, although when the winter is mild, the maples and elms may begin blooming at mid-February. These pollens reach their peak about Easter time and spring vacation, although some tree pollen usually is detectable through to May.

Four trees are the principal offenders in Colorado: elms, cottonwoods, Rocky Mountain cedars and maples. The cedar pollen affects about 50 per cent of all persons with an allergy to tree pollens. Because of its relatively heavy pollen, which drops more quickly to the ground, the maple causes somewhat less allergy than the other trees.

Colorado grasses begin to give off their pollens in mid or late April, and they're big offenders. Some 75 per cent of persons who suffer from hay fever have allergies to grass pollens, and fairly low counts of grass pollen in the air will affect most of these sensitive persons. Grass pollens are highest in late May and normally have declined by the end of June.

The Colorado weed pollens begin in mid-July, and they affect some 90 per cent of hay fever patients. The tumbleweed family is predominantly to blame, with pigweed in second place. About the second week of August, ragweed and sage pollens begin to play a big part. The weed pollens peak in August and decrease through September.

Weed pollens are less a problem where the land is virgin or well cultivated. They become highly important in areas where the land once was cultivated and now is grown to weeds, or where there are many weeds in vacant lots or along roadsides.

The weed pollens are a problem to hay fever victims from the time the plants begin to bloom until the country has had 4 to 6 inches of snow. This usually means at least Nov. 1, although most hay fever patients begin to have less trouble in October.

Some flower pollens — notably dandelions, marigolds, goldenrod and chrysanthemums — contribute to the problem, but, strangely, cut flowers brought into the home may not cause any trouble. The pollens of flowers, like that from the maple tree, is heavy and falls to the ground.

The more offensive pollens of trees, grasses and weeds are buoyant, wind-borne and abundant — the three major criteria in judging hay fever hazard.

A daily cycle also can be detected in pollen hay fevers. Plant blossoms begin opening between sunup and about 10 a.m. By then, a fast warm-up is occurring in air temperatures, and the pollen rises and is dispersed. Hay fever sufferers commonly notice they have more trouble between 4:30 and 9 a.m., and then again around dinnertime from 5 to 8 p.m.

The natural history of pollens, their seasons and cycles, offer some guidelines both in minimizing hay fever suffering and in its medical treatment. For this reason, it is valuable to have daily scientific measurements of which pollens are predominant on a given day. In Denver, daily tests are made at two locations, Denver General Hospital and the University of Colorado Medical Center.

The symptoms of hay fever are familiar: Changes in the mucous membranes of the nose and sinuses. (If the changes extend down into the throat, the condition is known as allergic bronchitis.) The changes include vasodilitation (engorgement of the small blood vessels), swelling of adjacent tissues and increased secretions.

The changes often affect the eyes as well as the nose. There's nasal stuffiness and drip, both forward and back. Repeated sneezing is common. Adults may suffer an itching sensation, caused by the swelling, which may even extend to the ears and roof of the mouth.

Old Doc Experience advises:

1. Treatment of hay fever in children is difficult and often frustrating — to child, parents and physician. Patience is required of all involved.

2. A child cannot avoid exposure to the pollen; it's everywhere in this season. It helps some to keep windows closed on windy days and during early morning and evening hours, but this really is only a drop in the bucket.

3. There are no specific drugs to prevent or cure hay fever. The antihistamines offer good treatment — to a point — for the symptoms, and there are hundreds of them available. They tend to lose their effect after the second and third years, and finally none of them is effective in most cases.

4. It is then frequently necessary to resort to injections of pollen extracts to inspire the body to produce antibodies against the natural pollen allergens. This treatment is never 100 per cent effective, but it can offer 75 to 80 per cent protection after a season of treatment.

5. Skin tests are not absolutely necessary before injections are started if the responsible pollen can be reasonably well identified by other means, but the injection treatment has its best results after skin testing. As many as 30 tests now are available to identify the allergen.

6. The injection treatment usually requires one or more shots per week in a course which starts ideally 4 to 5 months ahead of the individual's hay fever season. In other words, it's too late this year for injection treatment against tree pollens, but some protection could be built up against grass and weed pollens.

7. Children probably do not outgrow hay fever, but the evidence is that in only a few cases does the condition progress to asthma in later life. The hay fever may disappear if the child moves to another area where he is subject to different pollens.

Jesuits Will Be Guests at Alumni Party

Three staff members from the Jesuit school in Omaha, Neb., will be special guests at the annual Creighton University alumni party scheduled for Saturday, in Colorado Springs.

The event will open with a social period at 6:30 p.m., followed by dinner at 7:30 p.m. at the Village Inn.

Special guests will be the Rev. Carl M. Reinert, S.J., president of the Creighton Development Foundation, Bernard J. Conway, director of Creighton alumni activities, and Leo Pieper, assistant director of Creighton alumni activities.

Arrangements for the party are being handled by William W. Hill, 1133 North Farragut, president of the Colorado Creighton Club.

A feature of the evening will be a new series of color slides depicting Creighton's progress and plans for the future.

This club is one of 57 such organizations located throughout the United States to represent former students from all the Creighton divisions—Arts and Sciences, Business Administration, Medicine, Dentistry, Pharmacy, Law and Graduate School as well as the associated schools of nursing. Enrollment in the university is 3,570, an all-time record for the coeducational institution.

Invitations for the Colorado Springs party were sent to alumni, their wives or husbands and parents of current Creighton students in the following areas:

Colorado Springs, Cascade, Fort Carson, Limon, Ordway, Security and Manitou Springs.

Sounds corny, but it's good. When corn bread is on the menu add 1 cup canned whole kernel corn, drained, to the batter. Bake according to package directions on the mix and serve hot.

Peter Sellers Plan Two Years' Vacation

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actor Peter Sellers plans to take a year's vacation to recuperate from his heart attack, says his bride of two months.

Swedish actress Britt Eklund, 21, said Friday that as soon as Sellers can travel, they'll go to their home in Surrey, England, and then to Switzerland.

"He's fine," she told newsmen, whom she met for the first time since Sellers was stricken Sunday night.

"He's tired. But he has his color and everything. You'd hardly know he was ill.

"But he won't work for a long time. He wants to get well."

Modern Army Split Into Four Commands

Did you know that today's modern Army is actually composed of four separate groups under different authority?

The service number prefix US stands for Selective Service draftee, under the auspices of the Selective Service System.

The RA, or Regular Army, is under the jurisdiction of the Department of Army. NGs or National Guardsmen are under the supervision of their state governments in peacetime while ERs, or Enlisted Reservists, are controlled by the U.S. Army Reserve.

The last two groups — Enlisted Reservists and National Guardsmen — are the "six monthers" or "weekend warriors." Actually the expression "six monther" is a misnomer. The U.S. Army Reserve's six-month active duty program officially ended Aug 11.

Prior to that date a Reservist took eight weeks of basic training, approximately eight weeks advanced individual training, and then spent the remainder of his six-month tour of duty as an on-the-job trainee.

This worked well until the Berlin crisis exposed a flaw in the system. Many men with highly trained Military Occupation Specialties did not have the practical experience and training necessary to perform their assignments satisfactorily.

These obligations last for the balance of the enlisted man's six-year period in the Army Reserve. During that time, however, he is paid for his attendance at meetings and has the same chance for promotion as his counterpart in the Regular Army. Should he fail to satisfy these obligations satisfactorily, however, he can be assigned to active duty for 45 days at his commanding officer's discretion.

If the Reservist moves to another area he simply reports to the nearest unit in his new location where he will be reassigned to a Reserve unit with a function similar to his own.

Not all units are alike — some are Military Police units, some infantry, some artillery, some psychological warfare, signal, and so on — the variety is the same as in the Regular Army.

Queen for Cherry Blossom Is Named

Anne Elizabeth Fitzpatrick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald G. Fitzpatrick of Marblehead, Mass., was chosen Friday night by the whirl of a wheel of fortune. She is the granddaughter of Rep. and Mrs. Ben S. Jensen, R-Iowa.

Practice Begins At Sportsman's Raceway Park

Local stock car drivers, as well as some from Golden and Denver, will be at Sportsman's Raceway Park each Sunday afternoon getting their cars ready for the 1964 season which begins Sunday afternoon, April 26th.

Races will be held on Sunday afternoons until the weather permits the change to Saturday nights.

There will be two types of cars run again this year. Officials said the fans will be in for a treat if the late models and modifieds which were on hand for practice last Sunday are any indication of what is to come.

Some of the sharpest looking cars to be seen locally were on hand. There were several new cars and the old ones have new paint jobs.

The races will be broadcast each week and there are several special events to be held this year.

Carson Workers Receive Awards For Suggestions

Three civilians have been rewarded for suggestions improving work and safety conditions through the Incentive Awards Program at Ft. Carson.

Recipients of Suggestions Award Certificates and checks for $15 each for their suggestions were Elwood H. Young, Post Signal photographer; Orville Boyle, mess attendant at the Ft. Carson Hospital; and Gunars V. Pencis, warehouseman with Terminal Operations.

Young received his award from Lt. Col. Ted W. Peterson, signal officer, for building a viewing box for use in processing film.

Col. Martin A. Pfotenhauer, commander of the Post Hospital, said Boyle's suggestion to use plastic scouring pads saves $52.50 per year and the pads are considered safer than steel wool. Particles of steel wool had been found on dishes after they were washed and dried.

For a suggestion that signs be posted along railroad right-of-way, Pencis received a certificate and check from Homer F. Richardson, warehouse lead foreman at Post Transportation. The signs were placed along the railroad from the post near Stratmoor up to the highway to discourage children from playing on the right-of-way.

German Air Head And Staff Group To Visit NORAD

Another visiting national military figure will be accorded the colorful Canadian-United States military honors at North American Air Defense Command on Monday, at 1:15 p.m.

Lt. Gen. Werner Panitzki, German Air Force Chief of Staff, accompanied by two members of his staff and two U. S. Air Force senior officers will arrive at NORAD headquarters on Monday afternoon after a visit to the Air Force Academy that morning.

They will be met by the staff of General John K. Gerhart, NORAD commander in chief, his Canadian-United States honor guard, and the famed NORAD military band.

Honors will be accorded the visitors immediately on their arrival. They will immediately go into a series of conferences with NORAD officials.

That evening the group will be guests at dinner of NORAD's component Air Defense Command chief, Lieutenant General Herbert B. Thatcher, acting as host for Geneal John K. Gerhart.

Quake Victims Aided By School Circus

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—The letter contained $4.65, proceeds from a circus given by pupils of the Jefferson Elementary School in Carlsbad, Calif.

"We were glad to do this for you and hope you are well. We put five weeks practice into our acts. We hope this will help. Yours truly, Karen, Mike Wohl, Jeff Edwards, Karen, Kirt, Joey, Mary and Terri."

Wasson High School News

By CAROL JENSEN

The most important events last week at Wasson High School were the annual ward meetings for the purpose of nominating candidates to run on the ballots for the April 17 school elections. The two ward meetings—the Cardinal and Silver—were held in the auditorium and gym, respectively, and were conducted by members of the present cabinet. A group of advanced stenography students gave their services as ballot counters.

Those candidates nominated to run on the ward ticket for cabinet of 1964 from the Cardinal Ward are: Doug Ancona, student body president; Cathy McPherson, vice president; Jean Hagius, secretary of records; Paul McClintock, secretary of morale; Marilyn Duke, secretary of publicity; Mike Martin, secretary of treasury; Joanne Moon, secretary of safety; and Jean Goetle, secretary of courtesy.

The candidates for these positions from the Silver Ward are: for president, Charlie Steele; for vice president, Kris Byer; for secretary of records, Miki Wilcox; for secretary of morale, Allen York; for secretary of publicity, Betty Jane Upshaw; for secretary of treasury, Tom Benson; for secretary of assemblies, Mark Fleming; for secretary of social, Linda Boy; for secretary of safety, Bob Tooth; and for secretary of courtesy, Linda Bluminstein. Wasson students will vote on these candidates from 8 a.m. through 4 p.m. Friday. They will be able to use authentic voting machines—a part of Wasson's democratic elections—but the voting is not compulsory.

Some student wishing to run for an office but not nominated at one of the ward meetings might become a petition candidate if he was accepted by the present cabinet as a worthy candidate and obtained some 400 student signatures on his petition by last Friday afternoon. Those students who signed the petition are required to vote for the person represented by the paper.

There was a meeting following the ward meetings Wednesday in room 150 for all candidates and their campaign managers. This meeting was designed to inform the candidates of the procedures and rules for the upcoming week of campaigning, which climaxes with the election on Friday. Such items as the cost of the campaigns and size of posters were discussed.

The first cheer clinic for girls interested in trying out for A or B squad cheerleaders was held from 7 to 8 p.m. Thursday in the girl's gym. This clinic will last for approximately three or four weeks, with two one hour lessons per week. During the night meetings, the girls will learn the correct motions and words to the school cheers and will also be taught exercises to loosen their muscles. The present A squad cheerleaders will conduct these clinics, which are under the supervision of Miss Shirley Schalberg. The climax point for the clinic will be the semi-final tryouts for cheerleader before a judging staff of teachers and students. The top ten girls trying out will then try out in front of the student body, which will vote on five to represent the school at athletic events next year.

The April 22 meeting of Wasson's National Honor Society will feature a college bowl type contest between two teams—one composed of juniors and the other of seniors. A similar contest was held last year, with the seniors winning and marked interest shown by the Society members. Besides this contest, the meeting will also nominate the officers for next year's National Honor Society. All members are urged to attend, since this meeting will be one of the more important ones for the society.

During the sponsor group last Monday, students were asked to take home a slip for their parents to sign concerning the after-prom activities. Last year these activities were held in the Garden of the Gods from 12:30 to 4 a.m. with supervision, and plans are the same for this year's activities. Parents could sign the slip as to whether they approved of these plans, thus giving the planning committee an idea of the popularity of the suggested activity.

Wasson's instrumental department will present its annual Spring Concert at 8 p.m. Friday in the auditorium. Wasson students are encouraged to attend, for it will not cost them any money if they have an activity ticket, but it is hoped that a number of parents will also attend.

FEDERAL TAX TIPS

BY ROGER E. WARD
Administrative Representative
Internal Revenue Service

By BOB BROWN

Now that the tax filing date is close many who have already filed have refunds coming many over $100, and instead of receiving a refund, has been notified that his return would be audited and he would not receive a refund for several months.

Due to the checking of around 7 per cent of the 580,000 income tax returns filed in the state, the Internal Revenue Service recovers about $12 million annually in Colorado. The Service screens about half of the returns and then audit roughly 40,000 of them. The Office Audit Branch handles relatively uncomplicated returns by interviewing or communicating with taxpayers.

The more complicated returns — generally of businesses and corporations — are handled by the field audit branch. About one-fourth of the returns audited in the state are businesses and corporations. Errors that catch the auditor's eye include:

(1) Deducting unusual items. (2) Stating a questionable casualty loss. (3) Making an unusually large deduction in relation to income. (4) Making a deduction not allowable in light of the taxpayer's business or employment. The IRS also looks for tip income, if the person is employed where tips ordinarily would be received. About 38 per cent of the returns examined are found to be correct.

All types of errors are discovered on the other 62 per cent. Some are a matter on interpretation. In IRS's Denver district (entire state of Colorado) the returns are audited by a staff of 165 technical personnel. About 16,000 returns involving refunds are scrutinized between Feb. 15 and Sept. 30 on a first come first served basis.

Relying on the taxpayer who wants his refund now, most people prefer to receive the correct refund, rather than repaying the government later if an error is discovered. Next year the auditing process is expected to be even tighter, since all individual tax returns of Colorado resident will be fed into computers.

IRS officials, who have tried out the new automatic data processing system in seven Southern states, said they turned up $8.5 million in taxes that might never have been collected. For those who have not yet filed, to avoid penalties, the return must be filed, or mailed and postmarked before midnight Wednesday.

CSU Theater To Be Finished This Summer

Dr. Randall C. Ruechelle, chairman of the Colorado State University speech department, announced this week that he has received authorization to complete work on the new theater.

This facility is located in the upper level of Johnson Hall, the ballroom of the old Student Union building. Initial work on the theater was done last fall, but final completion had been delayed until now.

University Playhouse is the name of the new theater, which will be used primarily for major dramatic productions of the University Theatre. It will replace the Old Main Theatre — a landmark on the CSU campus for many years.

This theater will also serve the instructional needs of classes in drama and dramatic production and the Children's Theatre workshop during the summer. It can also be used for housing touring cultural attractions of various kinds.

Dr. Ruechelle said plans are to have it ready for use sometime during the coming fall quarter. The main work that remains to be done is some overhead construction on the stage itself and the installation of a lighting system.

AFA Holds Power Mower Safety Confab

The sputter and pop of power lawn mowers is a sure sign of spring at the Air Force Academy and to make sure that sign doesn't turn into a signal of trouble, Roads and Grounds personnel are sent to "school."

Roads and Grounds Supervisor George Kirkpatrick, with the aid of specialists from the Barteldes Seed Co. in Denver and the Toro Manufacturing Corp., Minneapolis, held a special safety seminar for more than 100 Academy employes who will operate a wide variety of power lawn mowers during the spring and summer.

Following Mr. Kirkpatrick's introduction, operators were briefed on accident prevention principals as they apply to grass cutting operations, turf maintenance and grass cutting, and maintenance and mower safety.

Taking part in the program were Dale Moody and Everett Fieselman from Barteldes and W. H. Brinkworth and Vern C. Fish of Toro Manufacturing.

Freeing of All Satellites Said MacArthur Plan

dential, the nature of his conversation with President-elect Eisenhower and John Foster Dulles in December 1952." Dulles became Eisenhower's secretary of state.

"The plan suggested by MacArthur to President-elect Eisenhower and John Foster Dulles was to threaten Russia with a complete rearmament of Germany and Japan, possibly including nuclear power, unless Stalin agreed to live up to his promise of the self-determination of the peoples of Poland, East Germany and Central Europe."

That description was written by Dorn Monday night and inserted in the Congressional Record, as a minor part of a long eulogy of MacArthur. It escaped notice until Friday, when a reporter interviewed Dorn about it and was given details. The printed Dorn account predated the publication of the Considine account.

In Mankato, Kan., former Rep. Win Smith, one of the two congressmen who accompanied Dorn, said he agreed with Dorn's description except that "I don't remember that MacArthur said he had told Eisenhower those things."

Smith said it was his recollection that the interview took place in 1954.

The third congressman, Rep. Lawrence K. Smith, R-Wis., died in 1958.

MacArthur's aide, Maj. Gen. Courtney Whitney, who Dorn said also attended the meeting, declined comment.

The Considine interview and one by Scripps-Howard reporter Jim G. Lucas published this week also after a lapse of 10 years both mentioned the general's plans to win the Korean War by using nuclear bombs across the Yalu in Red China, sowing a five-mile belt of radioactive cobalt along the border, and bringing in Nationalist Chinese troops from Formosa to mop up the Reds.

Dorn said he visited MacArthur in 1951 in Tokyo just before he was fired as Far East commander by President Harry S. Truman.

"I didn't know about the cobalt thing," Dorn said. "He didn't mention that to me in Tokyo.

"What he might have said two years later—when Lucas and Considine interviewed him—when he was embittered, I don't know. But to me he made no wild statements about cobalt or atom bombs. He just said with airpower he could lick the Red Chinese in three months."

In the interview about the plan to end the cold war, Dorn said MacArthur emphasized to Eisenhower that Stalin was an old man who might die at any moment, and that Eisenhower should act immediately after taking office.

"Stalin is a realist and you could threaten him," Dorn quoted MacArthur as telling the president-elect.

"Stalin is a cold, hard bargainer who understands power, military power. Stalin would have no alternative but to accept it. If he doesn't, then go ahead and rearm Germany and Japan, and back them up, give them aid. Put Russia on the defensive and keep Russia on the defensive.

"You are climaxing your career as a great victorious general, as President of the United States. All the Allied world is behind you. No nation would dare to question you. Your prestige is so great you're in a position to sit down with Stalin and meet with him.

"Today you're a hero, you have a halo around your head. But if you wait six months, you will have a lot of political bickering, the halo will be gone and Stalin will laugh at you."

Considine's story said MacArthur told Eisenhower, "You have the greatest opportunity for good since the birth of Jesus Christ," and that Eisenhower at the end jumped up, his face flushed, and said, "It's magnificent."

But Considine quoted MacArthur as saying the "cool, calculating voice" of Dulles broke in and dissuaded Eisenhower.

Dorn said he did not write out an account of MacArthur's cold war plan after the interview but "that's what he told me in New York. He did say this very distinctly. I remember it as plain as day."

MacArthur met triumph and disaster, sent the largest delegations. Former Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida, who held office during the American military occupation of Japan, led the Japanese delegation.

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy represented President Johnson.

MacArthur chose Norfolk for his burial place because his mother was born here. He made it his adpoted city. His crypt lies under the rotunda of the MacArthur Memorial, filled with countless mementoes of his spectacular military career.

The ceremonies were in three parts; two in the rotunda and the other at St. Paul's.

At 9:25 a.m. clergymen, pallbearers, the escort commander and special honor guard assembled at the rotunda. They escorted Mrs. MacArthur to the church, two blocks away.

In the church, she sat in the front pew on the right of the casket with her son and nephew. Maj. Gen. Courtney Whitney, a longtime associate and friend of MacArthur, also sat in the front pew.

Opposite Mrs. MacArthur on the left were Atty. Gen. Kennedy and his wife Ethel, and Virginia Gov. Albertis S. Harrison Jr.

Funeral services were conducted by the Rt. Rev. George P. Gunn, bishop of southern Virginia and the Rev. Walton W. Davis, rector of St. Paul's.

They intoned the order for the burial of the dead. It includes the 27th, 46th, and 121st Psalms. The lesson was from the eighth chapter of the Epistle to the Romans beginning with the 14th verse. The 14th chapter of the Gospel according to Saint John, beginning with the first verse, also was read.

The choir then sang a hymn known as the "Armed Forces Hymn."

Bishop Gunn added a brief statement.

When the funeral services ended, MacArthur's flag-draped coffin was returned to the rotunda. Again Mrs. MacArthur walked.

A military band played the dirge, "Ase's Death," the hymns "God of Our Fathers," "Rock of Ages," and "Lead Kindly Light."

Mrs. MacArthur, flanked by her son and nephew, stood near the head of the casket. Her features were composed but she began dabbing her nose with her handkerchief.

Following the 19-gun salute, thundering in the stillness outside, the buglers played Taps. Tears came into her eyes.

The flag was folded and presented to her by the escort commander, Maj. Gen. Hugh M. Exton, deputy chief of staff, U.S. Continental Army Command.

The ceremonies began at 9:20 and ended promptly at 10:40.

Mrs. MacArthur then received several hundred former associates and friends of her husband in a reception room in the memorial.

Mrs. MacArthur gave the flag that had covered her husband's casket to Thomas Maxwell, Norfolk City manager, and Samuel T. Northern, director of community development in Norfolk.

Mrs. MacArthur left Norfolk at noon by plane for New York.

LBJ Continues to To Boost Union, Rail Bargaining

tiations fail—new legislation by Congress.

But when he was asked whether he is prepared to ask for legislation if the talks fail he replied:

"I am not here to bury collective bargaining. I am here to preserve it. I am prepared to carry on negotiations with the thought that we are going to reach a settlement, and I hope and pray we will."

In his statement, Johnson noted that the public interest "must always be overriding" but expressed his distaste for imposed solutions in these words:

"... We must never delude ourselves that we are serving the public interest if at any time we supress the legitimate rights of the conflicting parties.

"The ultimate objective of our system of government is a society of free men who know how to live together and how to get consent rather than to get coercion."

Emphasizing again his concern over the threat of a rail strike that could deal a severe blow to the economy, Johnson said in his statement he is "not trying to impose a solution" but went on:

"This is to me a matter of the most vital importance to our country. I will follow the negotiations very closely. I have met with the negotiating parties again this morning, and I am going to do everything I know to do to be helpful and constructive."

man's land between the two sides.

One Turkish Cypriot was reported killed in the mountain fighting near Kyrenia. A Turkish Cypriot policeman was killed in Nicosia by a single sniper's bullet fired across the "green line" truce zone separating the two warring communities.

Maj. Patrick Tremblay of Quebec, commander of the Royal 2nd Regiment in the area, said Greek Cypriot forces captured two peaks in the Kyrenia range and had a force estimated at 70 men advancing on the Turkish stronghold of St. Hilarion Castle on a mountain peak.

2nd Lt. Pierre Badbois of Montreal, leader of the five-man patrol, said a wounded Greek Cypriot had been evacuated. He reported he had met with leaders of both the Turkish and Greek Cypriot forces. The radio report of firing over the Canadians's head came later.

The United Nations flew the patrol to the 2,000-foot level of the mountain where Greeks armed with mortars and Bren guns were assaulting the Turkish Cypriot position from two directions. The U.N. forces landed between the two sides about 350 feet from the summit.

Czar for State Planning, Construction Established

"We had a situation here where we met about a month ago when the architect for Adams State wanted additional fees for redesign of the gymnasium and fieldhouse," Williams said.

The college administration and its board of trustees agreed that the architect should be paid the additional fee, he said. But Williams argued that the architects had designed a more expensive building than was called for. He said that the architects had to redesign it to fit the budget —and that there was to be no additional cost.

Williams said that the contract for design of the building had been signed by five persons, each representing a separate branch of state government. Any of them could have been considered the final authority, Williams said.

The signatures on the document were those of H. Grant Vest, for the trustees of state colleges; Fred J. Plachy, Adams State president; Williams; E. G. Spurlin, state controller, and Louis Middlemist, state purchasing agent, who signed twice — once as purchasing agent and again as agent for the governor.

Williams said that at a meeting April 6 it was decided that he would henceforth hold ultimate responsibility. The meeting, he said, was attended by the governor, Atty. Gen. Duke W. Dunbar, Asst. Atty. Gen. John W. Patterson and Williams.

The order affects all state agencies except the University of Colorado which, Williams said, is operated under the state constitution by a board of regents.

The memo said that new state forms were in preparation designating the state planning director as owner of state buildings. "New contracts to be entered into must wait until the new forms are ready," the memo said.

sons on charges ranging from narcotics to armed robbery.

The action took place in the overcrowded sector running south of Los Angeles along Central Avenue, the overwhelmingly Negro district integration leaders call "the black ghetto."

Police officers were attempting to eject a drunk from a high school track meet Friday night when scores of youngsters, crying "Take him away," tried to free the prisoner. It took 100 police, many wielding shotguns, to restore order.

Early Saturday a bus and a car collided nearby and 250 people gathered as police investigated. Then—perhaps as an aftermath of the earlier incident—members of the crowd began hurling rocks, beer bottles and chunks of concrete at the officers. Reinforcements again scattered the mob.

Robert Houghton, deputy police chief for Los Angeles, said that neither of the incidents seemed to have racial overtones.

"It's more a rebellion against authority," he said. "We don't know what causes these things. There seems to be no pattern however, and no organization is involved."

Some Negro leaders have blamed previous such incidents on overcrowded conditions in the south-central area and on residents' reaction to brutality by police—a charge police have denied.

The sheriff's vice raid came after the pastor of a church at 68th Street and Central Avenue complained that criminals and prostitutes had been trying to prevent parishioners from entering his church for Sunday services.

Mishandling of Public Funds Is Being Changed

of funds but failure to file audit reports.

Proctor noted that present law requires most counties, cities, towns, school districts and special improvement districts to conduct and file annual audits.

But Proctor's records show that compliance with this law is far from complete.

He said that of cities and towns 178 of 204 filed reports. Of special improvement districts, with 621 required to file, 299 filed.

School districts, where 258 were required to file, 193 filed, 33 were excused and 32 did not file.

Proctor called for an improved state audit law — one similar to a bill passed by the House at the last session of the Colorado Legislature, but killed in the Senate.

The measure would have ordered annual audits of local governments by licensed accountants; full disclosure by the auditor of violations of state or local law; investigations by the state auditor and reports of violations to local district attorneys.

Brazilians Name General Branco New President

Cabral of supporting the anti-Goulart coup, led by Castello Branco. The two went at each other with fists. Then, witnesses said, Lima Filho drew a pistol, fired three times but missed Cabral. The bullets hit a wall.

Guards and other congressmen separated the pair.

Castello Branco had been the front-runner for the presidency since he led the military-political revolt that chased Goulart from office last week.

A disciplinarian, the 63-year-old former chief of staff was chosen by a number of state governors and other political leaders to take on the task of leading Brazil out of the economic and financial stagnation of the Goulart era.

In advance of the presidential voting, the lawmakers approved an institutional act which gives the new president the greatest powers ever accorded a Brazilian chief executive.

With congressional approval of the act, Brazilian military leaders began immediately to flush out known Communists and extreme leftists from congress and the government.

It was after congress had replaced 44 of the flushed-out members that Lima Filho and Cabral met in the lobby of the congress building and began their brawl.

The Nation's Weather

Mostly clear skies prevailed Saturday evening along the Atlantic coast, the east gulf coast states and the southwest fourth of the nation.

East of the Rockies the significant weather was mostly in the Mississippi Valley with scattered thundershowers in the south half and widely scattered rain showers in the north half.

Scattered light snow was falling in the higher elevations of the northern Rockies and showers at the lower elevations.

Warming continued across the nation's mid-section Saturday. For example the temperature in Chicago, Ill. was 76 degrees, 18 degrees warmer than Friday.

Precipitation was light and occurred in the Mississippi Valley, the Upper Great Lakes and the Pacific northwest. Of the heavier amounts Joplin, Mo. reported 13 inches of rain Saturday evening.

Hoffa Allegedly Threatened to Kill Bob Kennedy

Department said in Washington there would be no comment on the story.

Informed sources said the time of the alleged plot was early September 1962, and that it was shortly thereafter that Partin decided to work with the government in the Hoffa case.

When it came up in court there was no explanation of the assassination plot except for assurance that it did not involve the death of the late President John F. Kennedy, the attorney general's brother.

The transcript of the secret session in which Neal mentioned the threat against Robert Kennedy's life was ordered sealed at the time. It became public during the past week when Judge Wilson filed a memorandum explaining why he had denied a new trial to Hoffa and the others convicted.

In Chicago, where he goes on trial April 27 on a charge of misusing $20 million in union pension funds, Hoffa accused both the government and Judge Wilson of seeking to prejudice that case.

"I think the federal government knows full well they have prejudiced the defendants' opportunity of getting a fair trial in Chicago by the publication of this secret hearing. This will just be more inflammatory matter, adding more fuel to the fire, by the attorney general and the court releasing this most prejudicial and unfair statement. I can't understand why a court would do such a thing."

craft speed, currently held by the Soviets, has been repeatedly broken in secrecy by the United States aircraft A11," he said.

Relations with the Soviet Union also came up during the 20-minute Cabinet Room conference when Johnson was asked for a progress report on withdrawal of Soviet troops from Cuba.

Republicans Adopt New Constitution at Meet

The El Paso County Young Republicans adopted a new constitution and heard reports on the recent session of the state assembly at the April meeting held Saturday night in the Antlers Hotel.

The new constitution gave more authority to the executive board of the club than the one dropped.

It also included changes in procedure for amending the constitution, and set a new schedule for dues.

Dues are now $2 per year per person, payable in advance for two years at a time and due in the odd numbered years.

The amendment procedure calls for proposed amendments to be submitted to the executive board more than five days in advance of the next meeting.

The new constitution also states that only members who have belonged for 60 days or more are entitled to vote in proceedings of the group.

Don Copus was chairman of the committee which submitted the new constitution to Pres. Jack Roeser, who in turn submitted it to the membership for consideration.

In the report on the legislature, Sen. Vernon Cheever, and Reps. Jim Braden, Norman Ohlson, and Bill Lennox.

Braden said that the changes in the tax structure enacted by the Republican legislature will save the taxpayers of the state a total of $23 million through 1965.

He said no group got as much as it wanted from the legislature. "Not everyone got everything they wanted," he said.

"In appropriations, we attempted to hold increases within a reasonable growth pattern," he explained.

He explained that the cigarette tax which becomes effective on July 1 will raise about as much money as the state will lose when the state mill levy goes off the book in 1965.

Braden said the Republicans have not gotten favorable publicity in the Denver press, and thus the GOP legislature has not been given full credit for saving the taxpayers money.

Cheever pointed out that the state passed the legislation to implement the Kerr-Mills bill to aid the aged.

Most of his discussion dealt with the reapportionment of the state for its four representatives to the U.S. House of Representatives.

So far the state Senate has failed to come up with a plan that can get enough support to be passed, he said.

Earlier in the year, Gov. John A. Love said he would call a special session of the legislature when it was clear to him that a reapportionment Bill would pass.

Reapportionment is necessary because the districts are very uneven in population. For instance, this district, the Third, has about 410,000 people as compared to about 190,000 in the Fourth District, which is the west slope.

Cheever said: "Every representative and senator has a different idea. All of the plans I have seen would seem to work out quite well for us and would help reelect Chenoweth (U.S. Rep. J. Edgar Chenoweth, longtime Republican member of the House from this district).

Cheever said he didn't know how it would turn out. "Anyway you are accused of gerrymandering," he explained.

All the office holders claimed the GOP got an unfair break on publicity about the increase in tuition at state schools. Braden said that the tuition went up seven out of eight years at Colorado University during the years Democrat Steve McNichols was governor.

Lennox said the legislature used the wrong approach on the task and thus got bad publicity.

Lennox predicted that Colorado Springs eventually will get a degree granting program at the CU Extension Center here.

He pointed out the need for continuing education here, saying that as the city becomes an electronics center there is more need for night school so that people in those industries can continue their education.

Additionally, the Air Force Academy, Ft. Carson, and NORAD are all interested in a degree granting institution here other than Colorado College.

Colorado College is a private and independent school aimed at four-year work. It cooperates fully with local efforts for more education and has made facilities avaliable for the Extension Center, Lennox pointed out.

CC can not carry the ball in that field and so work must continue for a degree granting extension center here, Lennox explained.

Lennox explained that he believe he had the neccessary votes in the House to get a bill passed on amendment to the state constitution to by-pass the problem of having one year (the last year) of residence on the campus before a degree was granted.

However, members of his own party failed him, he said, and so the bill died there.

Burton Admits His Hamlet Is 'Indifferent'

By WILLIAM GLOVER

NEW YORK (AP)—Richard Burton is a better judge than actor for the "Hamlet" that premiered last week in a big splash of hoopla at the Lunt-Fontanne Theater.

Asked by reporters how the performance went, he replied, "indifferently."

And that's the plain truth. Several things are wrong about the production for which a record ticket price top of $9.90 at regular performances has been set. The previous down-front top for straight drama was $7.50.

A key defect is the way in which the Welsh star is using his rich and brilliant voice in portrayal of the melancholy Dane. He apparently has not decided just how he wants to interpret the character this time. Some scenes are explicit and clear. Others are done in a sudden shouting torrent.

He should have taken a bit of the advice Hamlet gives. Overdone performance, he points out, "cannot but make the judicious grieve."

A general atmosphere of distraction results from the way in which the classic has been directed by Sir John Gielgud. It is done as a rehearsal with the stage stripped to bare brick walls, a few stairway platforms with steam pipes and sandbags showing. The cast moves about in elbow-patched sweaters and sportscoats—and in the case of Polonius—a three-button suit.

Hume Cronyn, as the windbag old counsellor, is fine, and so are Alfred Drake, as the king, and George Rose, the first gravedigger.

Gielgud previously explained that "Hamlet" eludes perfection, hence the rehearsal guise. But that isn't an adequate alibi for this kind of uneven, incomplete rendition.

Demonstrations At GM Plants Planned by NAACP

General Motors is violating the antidiscrimination clause in its government contracts," he said.

Hill said a mass demonstration would be staged at the corporation's headquarters in Detroit and thereafter at 50 cities from Buffalo, N.Y., to San Francisco.

Hill also said the NAACP is not advocating a boycott of GM products, but added:

"I am sure the Negro will draw some conclusions from the protests. They will spend their dollars wisely."

Valuable Cow Dies When Struck by Car

Thomas R. Taggart, 51, 2018 Altair Dr. accidentally killed a cow valued at $650 which strayed into the path of his car, the state patrol reported Friday night.

Taggart was driving on Cresta Road when the animal came across the street. The vehicle skidded 59 feet before hitting the cow and a few feet afterwards. The cow belonged to Lee Pinello Jr. 700½ Cresta Rd. Damage to Taggart's car was estimated at $300.

NOISY NIGHTHAWKS

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP)—A local night club that has had numerous complaints about lack of soundproofing is shopping for a new product—something that will soundproof patrons as they leave the establishment.

More than a year ago, the attention of the Geneva State Council was called to neighbors' complaints that music from one of Geneva's smartest nightspots was disturbing their sleep. The club responded by soundproofing its Super-Club room. But new complaints have resulted in a Grand Council petition concerning noisy revelers leaving the soundproof club.

Probe Asked of Investment House Syndicate in State

DENVER (AP)—A U. S. Justice Department study of a syndicate of Colorado investment houses has been suggested by the U.S. attorney in Denver.

The suggestion was made in a letter from U.S. Attorney Lawrence M. Henry to William H. Orrick Jr., assistant attorney general at the department's anti-trust division in Washington, D.C.

The letter disclosed last week was mailed Tuesday, one day after the existence of the syndicate was made known by Elbie L. Gann, assistant state commissioner of education.

Gann told a legislative committee that the syndicate had negotiated for the sale of advance refunding school bonds without competitive bidding. The syndicate—known to brokers as the Colorado account — reportedly disposed of more than $100 million in such bonds during a nine-month period.

Gann said that the combine consisted of virtually every municipal bond brokerage house in Colorado. He said that since member firms did not bid against each other Colorado school districts were limited to recieving one bid from the state's municipal bond dealers.

Advance refunding is a method used by school districts to sell successive issues of bonds with the long-term aim of saving money through reduced interest rates.

Frank Hays, a Denver attorney, former lieutenant governor and spokesman for several bonding houses, said there was never any secret or mystery about the combine.

He said that it provided for the orderly distribution of a large amount of bonds and "the taxpayers were saved a heck of a lot of money."

The syndicate is said to have broken up last month. Hays said the combine was intended to last only one year and was set up to prevent the unusually large number of bonds from disrupting the market.

SLED DOGS RESCUED

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — Twenty huskies from Greenland, stranded in Copenhagen when a Swiss Antarctic Expedition that expected to take them to the South Pole went bankrupt last August, may yet get to their destination.

After months of haggling over their food bill of thousands of francs at the Copenhagen zoo, and with the Danish government threatening to have them destroyed unless the sum was paid, the animals were handed on to a Norwegian Antarctic Expedition.

Swiss and Danish Animal Societies contributed to their food bill, but individual dog-lovers who offered them homes had to be discouraged because, a spokesman said, "Huskies are almost wild animals and can be handled only by experts. Further more, the sort of climate they are used to can only be found on the heights of the Jungfraujoch."

Leadville Complains Water Rates Too High

DENVER (AP) — Hearings on complaints by Leadville residents that their water rates are too high were put off Friday until June 23-24.

The Public Utilities Commission said the action was taken at the request of the Leadville Water Co.

The company explained in a brief that it planned $90,000 worth of improvements to the water system. It was going to complete new wells, install new pumps and pipes for additional warm ground water and place additional feeders in the West Park area.

A PUC spokesman said that Leadville is the only city in the United States in which steam is put into the water supply to keep the water from freezing. The spokesman said the additional ground water would be warmed through natural sources.

One time - saver for cooking vegetables is in their skins. The method also preserves food value.

Postmaster's Kids Still Have to Learn

CHICAGO (AP) — Quandee Semrow, 4, decided to have a party.

She and a playmate stuffed invitations into envelopes, scribbled addresses on them with crayons and stamped them. To make sure there was no mix-up, Quandee marked each envelope with her parents' address stamp.

There was a mix-up. The letters were returned because they were addressed with first names only. And stamped with trading stamps.

The girl's father, Harry H. Semrow, paid the 20 cents postage due. Semrow is the Chicago postmaster.

Vaccines Help Combat Disease Caused Blindness

Experimental vaccines have been used successfully to prevent trachoma, an eye disease which is the most important cause of blindness in the world.

The report came from Dr. J. Thomas Grayston, Seattle, and his associates who have been working on trachoma vaccines for five years at the U.S. Naval Medical Research Unit on Formosa and at the University of Washington, Seattle.

Their program included preparation of experimental vaccines and tests in monkeys and human beings for antibody response and protection, according to the report summarizing their findings in the current (April) Archives of Environmental Health, published by the American Medical Association.

A trachoma virus was first isolated by F. F. Tang and colleagues in Peking in 1957. In the past five years, the virus has been readily isolated in a number of laboratories around the world.

Although trachoma can be cured by several antibiotics and sulfa drugs, attempts to eradicate the disease through mass antibiotic campaigns have show success only in the more developed countries. Even in the southwestern Indians of the United States where the disease was believed to have been virtually wiped out, there has been a recurrence.

An estimated 500 million persons, or one-sixth of the world's population, are afflicted with the disease.

"With the demonstration that vaccine can prevent infection, there is hope for the eradication of this disease," Dr. Grayston said.

After observation for periods of up to three years, an early vaccine developed by Dr. Grayston's group, with relatively low potency, was found to have a preventive effectiveness of 60 per cent among preschool aged children. It also had a favorable effect on the course of the disease and the response to treatment with antibiotic eye ointment in experimentally infected volunteers.

Despite these favorable results, Dr. Grayston said, there was difficulty in preventing experimental infections in man or monkeys with vaccine apparently because the experimenal inoculation is a stronger challenge than natural infection.

After earlier failures, however, successful protection was obtained by adding mineral oil to the vaccine to improve its potency. Recently, highly purified, concentrated vaccines have been prepared which have been shown to be very effective in preventing experimental infection.

"A developmental problem remains to find a relatively easy way to produce high potency vaccine," the report added.

The successful use of vaccine in countries where trachoma is a major problem will require knowledge of the prevalence of the disease among the population and the type of trachoma virus strains present.

Studies show that a vaccine containing one virus strain will protect against that strain but not against any of three other strains tested so far.

In those countries where infection occurs at a very early age, it will probably be necessary to combine antibiotic therapy of active cases with widespread vaccination of children to prevent the disease, Dr. Grayston explained.

Field trials designed to assess the combined effect of trachoma vaccine and antibiotic therapy are now under way. Vaccines also are being field tested among first grade school children on Formosa.

Pituitary Removal Can Prevent Diabetic Blindness

Surgical removal of the pituitary gland, located in the brain, to prevent blindness caused by circulatory disease associated with diabetes was described today in the current Journal of the American Medical Association.

Reporting on 14 patients who have been observed for at least three and a half years following surgery, a research team at Cornell Medical Center, New York City, said the operation need no longer be considered a "radical" procedure for a disease of this nature.

Many diabetic patients develop blindness, kidney failure, or both as a consequence of vascular disease, according to Drs. O. H. Pearson, B. S. Ray, J. M. McLean, W. L. Peretz, E. Greenberg and A. Pazianos. The first encouraging results with this operation in diabetics with impaired vision was reported in 1955, they said.

The mechanism by which the operation, termed hypophysectomy, induces improvement in diabetic vascular disease is not known, they pointed out, but may be related to the amelioration of the defect in carbohydrate metabolism of diabetics since there is a reduced need for insulin after surgery. The essential factor in diabetes is insulin insufficiency.

Eight patients showed improvement for periods ranging from two and a half to six years. Improvement consisted of maintenance or improvement in visual acuity.

"This series of patients indicates that the operation may favorably influence the course of diabetic vascular disease," they concluded.

Since 1960 the operation has been performed on an additional 27 patients with diabetic vascular disease under the direction of Drs. Ray and Pearson with results comparable to the earlier series, according to the report. Other investigators have obtained similar results.

"Although further experience is needed to delineate indications for the use of hypophysectomy, it is apparent that this treatment is worthy of consideration in those patients whose diabetic retinopathy (eye condition) is threatening blindness," the authors said.

The best candidates for surgery are those with advancing eye disease who are otherwise in good health, it was pointed out. Patients also should have useful visual and kidney function remaining in order to be benefitted.

Patients were selected for surgery on the basis of severe eye disease which was threatening blindness. Patients with advanced kidney disease were excluded as were those with severe generalized circulatory disease or severe high blood pressure.

The operation carries "a significantly greater risk" of mortality and sickness with diabetic vascular disease than in the non-diabetics, the authors stressed.

"The calculated risk of surgery must be weighed against potential benefit in the individual patient," they said.

Circulatory disease associated with diabetes affects the blood vessels of the retina, the inner membrane lining the eye which corresponds to the film in a camera. Tiny bulges develop in the blood vessels. The vessels may dilate and hemorrhage within the eye. Following surgery, the authors said, bulges and hemorrhages regressed. More advanced changes, however, remained the same or progressed.

Discussing the effects of removing the pituitary gland, the researchers said adequate hormonal replacement therapy is now available so that the patient without a pituitary can remain well indefinitely and lead a normal life.

The pituitary performs a number of functions and helps regulate other endocrine glands such as the thyroid, adrenal and sex glands.

The only consequence for which hormonal substitution is not readily available is sterility, the authors said, but even this is potentially treatable with pituitary hormones. In this series of 14 patients, they said, men were successfully treated with sex hormones but women did not need sex hormones because menopausal symptoms did not develop.

"It is possible that diabetic kidney disease also is favorably influenced by removal of the pituitary gland," the authors added, but further observations are needed.

SCHOOL SCHEDULE

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Geneva education authorities and Swiss school doctors recently announced they consider a five-day continuous school week detrimental to the health of pupils. However, the Geneva education department said the five-day week was being tried out in a number of Jura communities. If a majority of parents demand it, it possibly will be introduced, authorities said, but they objected to "the intellectual fatigue of five days of school without a break and the added physical fatigue of a prolonged weekend."

Present Swiss school schedules have classes Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and half of Saturday, with Thursdays, Sundays, and half of Saturday free.

Thomas Stovern, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Stovern, 2110 N. Royer St., has resumed his studies at the University of California at Los Angeles, after a week of representing the University at the San Francisco annual Art Festival. His film "North by Northwest Side Story," of which he is the author, editor and director, received the highest acclaim of all the films submitted.

The Art Festival, since its origination a few years ago, has gained national recognition in the film industry. At present Stovern is working on a musical sound score for the film, after which he hopes to have it in national or international release.

In connection with the University it will be shown to the public in Los Angeles in May and in Santa Barbara at an earlier date.

Stovern received his B. A. degree in January, with an A average, and is now working toward his master's degree and teaching credentials.

Eddie Hurst Takes Over in Leadville

LEADVILLE, Colo. (AP) — Eddie Hurst, a police captain, took over as acting chief today following the City Council's action in relieving Eddie Popovich of command.

Popovich announced plans earlier to resign May 1 because of policy differences with city officials. The council accepted the resignation at a special meeting Friday night.

Popovich, however, was relieved of his duties immediately. Mayor George K. Harris said "disharmony has been created" as a result of the differences.

A patrolman, Frederick Meyer, also has resigned effective next Wednesday. The department normally has six men but an earlier vacancy also has not been filled.

Reorganization Could Change Teaching Pattern

A massive move toward the reorganization of teacher education which conceivably could change the pattern nationally is underway at Colorado State College.

The long studied move to upgrade the quality of education gained impetus today with word that the Ford Foundation has granted $192,000 for the project over a three-year period.

Proposed originally by Dr. Glendon P. Nimnicht, associate professor of education at CSC, the project involves some startling new approaches as well as experimentally verified ideas not yet in widespread use.

"Many schools," commented Prof. Nimnicht, "have experimented with the new curricula and-or teaching methods, but the progress is slow and spotty. One school is stressing the use of television, another programed learning, another team teaching.

Others are trying the new physics or some other new curriculum, but the various fragment of change have not been pulled together into a system of education to achieve the potential that exists in the new curricula and methods.

Under the CSC program, it is believed to be the first time an American teacher college has combined all of the new approaches. This step may mean that the Colorado College, hailed in many quarters as one of the top five nationally for the preparation of education in the United States.

The program will have two main objectives.

1. Teach the new curricula that are being developed in every academic field.

2. Use new methods such as programed instruction, TV, film, laboratory experiences and small-group discussions.

While much work has been done on curriculum and methods, teacher training — a much attacked subject — has remained a major problem, the CSC professor pointed out. Generally, he said, the new program is compatible with the recommendations made by Dr. James Conant of Harvard University in his recent book, "The Education of American Teachers."

The project will operate as follows:

1. Outstanding CSC faculty members will be relieved of fulltime duties so that they can travel to education centers where specialized work is underway in advanced instruction and content in their respective disciplines as it applies to public education. Upon their return to CSC, they will redesign the general education courses at the college which supplies 63 per cent of all Colorado public school teachers.

2. Twelve top CSC graduates will receive assistantships and remain on campus the year following their graduation. They will continue their studies halftime and teach in the public schools halftime.

3. This will release twelve public school teachers halftime for advanced education in their teaching fields and in new methods. These master teachers will in turn become supervising teachers for CSC student teachers.

By June 1, 1965, it is anticipated that the program will have produced the following results:

Twelve to 15 CSC professors will have had a full quarter of study in the latest approaches to content and techniques in their respective fields and will have revised general education courses at the college.

An estimated 4,500 CSC students, 90 per cent of whom enter teaching, will have been educated to teach new curricula using the latest methods.

Seventy - two public school teachers will have received additional education to assist them in teaching new programs. These in turn will affect at least 72 student teachers a year.

Ultimately, it will mean that graduates of the new program — about 1,000 per year at CSC — will flow into the public schools and colleges of the state and nation to impart their new skills and knowledge, Dr. Nimnicht said.

The program will be carried out under Dr. Nimnicht's supervision with strict controls and records maintained to evaluate the various aspects of the program.

Three Yanks Killed in Viet Nam Fighting

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—A U.S. helicopter plunged to earth and burned on a combat mission near the southern tip of Viet Nam Friday, killing three American crewmen and seven South Vietnamese soldiers.

The only survivor, the American copilot, was taken to Saigon in serious condition.

U.S. authorities said there was no indication the helicopter was brought down by Communist ground fire, although it crashed in an area heavily infiltrated by Viet Cong guerrillas. The tail section of the helicopter, including its rear stabilizing rotor, broke off in the air.

The unarmed craft was ferrying Vietnamese troops into an action near the provincial capital of Ca Mau, 150 miles southwest of Saigon.

The helicopter was the third lost by U.S. forces in three days. Communist gunners brought down two U.S. Army helicopters Thursday in heavy fighting in the farming center of Mo Cay, 50 miles south of the capital. One American crew member was slightly injured.

In the same battle, the Viet Cong also shot down a Vietnamese T28 propeller-driven fighter, killing the U.S. pilot, Air Force Capt. Robert N. Brumet of Bethesda, Md., and a Vietnamese observer.

Cubans Demand Prison Term For American

By DANIEL HARKER

HAVANA, Chba (AP) — The Castro government has demanded a 30-year prison sentence for an American convicted by a Cuban military tribunal of working for the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency.

The prosecution first asked ofr the death penalty for Frank Carl Emmick, a former president of Havana's American Club, and six Cubans allegedly hired by him to spy, but then suggested the same prison term for all.

The trial took place Thursday and was disclosed Friday by the Swiss Embassy, which represents U.S. interests in Cuba. Sentencing is expected shortly.

Emmick, 49, who comes from Rossford, Ohio, arrived in Cuba in 1959 intending to sell tractors. Later, he went into the frog legs business.

When Emmick was arrested Dec. 12, he was president of the American Club, last remaining private club in Havana. It has not been closed because most of its members now are Britons, Cuban sources said.

The Havana press did not report Emmick's arrest or trial.

Swiss Ambassador Emil Stadelhoffer and Swiss Consul Jacob Etter provided Emmick with a lawyer and a translator, and attended the trial.

Etter said the prosecution contended Emmick provided military and other intelligence information to John Hlavacek, a former National Broadcasting Co. correspondent in Havana. The prosecution accused Hlavacek of being a CIA agent.

The government also charged that Emmick hired the Cubans to photograph military installations, including missile sites, and provided them with cameras.

In Omaha, Neb., where he is employed by television station KMTV, Hlavacek denied the charges. He said he had chatted with Emmick at the American Club, but that Emmick had never handled any photographic equipment for him.

According to the Swiss consul's account, the prosecution said unprocessed film proving espionage had been found in Emmick's jacket.

Emmick said he had handled photographic equipment for Hlavacek but without knowing what kind of pictures were taken. The consul reported Emmick also said he supplied Hlavacek with some harmless information because Hlavacek was a newsman.

ADDS TO LIST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Five more British ships and a Lebanese vessel were added to the U.S. blacklist Friday for carrying cargoes to Communist Cuba.

A total of 203 foreign flag-vessels are now on the list which the Maritime Administration began compiling when the United States instituted its Cuba embargo Jan. 1, 1963. Blacklisted ships may not carry U.S. government-financed cargoes from American ports.

KEEPING TRIM—Tom Brennan of the City Park and Recreation Department, officially opens the new two-mile course thru Monument Valley Park by giving two local businessmen the go-ahead. At left is John F. Gallagher and, center, John F. Bennett, who helped spark the creation of the track for runners, walkers, etc.

Springs Fitness Program Takes To the Road

The physical fitness program in Colorado Springs has taken to the road—a road, so to speak, thourgh Monument Valley Park.

Through the efforts If John T. Bennett and the City Park and Recreation Department, a two mile course has been laid out in the park for the runners, trotters and walkers who like to keep in shape by such exercise.

Tom Brennan of the parks and recreation department, said the course starts near the south end of the park near Boulder Crescent. He said the department has placed markers every quarter mile from that point north through the park.

For some time, Bennet has been doing his running on an indoor track at the Colorado Springs YMCA along with more than 100 other area businessmen.

But Bennett, along with some of the others, thought it would be a lot more fun to keep in shape on beautiful days by doing their running and trotting outdoors through some suitable place like Monument Valley Park.

The matter was discussed with City Park and Recreation Department officials, who were in agreement all the way.

Bennett has been doing some running through the park for sometime this spring. He said he was amazed how many people actually keep in trim by running through the park. Bennett said this included many college and high schools students.

Brennan said the course is open to anyone who wants to take off a few pounds or just keep in top shape like Bennett and his frequent running mate, John F. Gallagher, 119 Wood Terrace Dr.

He reminded that the starting point is probably 100 yards north of the east end of the Bijou Street Bridge and a short distance west of Boulder Crescent. The quarter mile markers stand 18 inches high.

The roadways go thru some of the more beautiful sections of the park, some of which are infrequently seen by the average citizen or motorist.

New Steps Are Outlined in Cancer Battle

By ALTON BLAKESLEE

CHICAGO (AP) — A cancer expert outlined today new steps to improve the marksmanship of drugs aimed at killing human cancers.

One is to fire a broadside of two to four drugs simultaneously at the cancer. This method shows some early promise, said Dr. C. Gordon Zubrod of the National Cancer Institute in Bethesda, Md.

A second is to use drugs if possible to prevent a disease from becoming a cancer. And this has worked well in one rare form of precancerous disease, he said.

A third and still future goal is to use chemical bullets far earlier against cancer, if the drugs are safe enough.

Chemists have already fashioned a large number of anticancer drugs. The great goal is drugs acting like benevolent assassins — able to kill 100 per cent of cancer cells without hurting the patient.

Dr. Zubrod spoke to the American Association for Cancer Research on implications of drug treatment in medical practice, and amplified in an interview.

Cancer drugs have significant meanings for patients, for doctors and cancer researchers, Dr. Zubrod said.

For patients:

Drugs can often apparently kill all cancerous cells in a rare form of cancer affecting women. This is choriocarcinoma, arising during or after pregnancy.

Different drugs are extending the lives of many children with leukemia, but only very occasionally seem to have been 100 per cent effective.

In Hodgkins disease affecting lymph glands, drugs plus radiation can approach 100 per cent kill in a fair percentage of breast cancer. But better drugs are needed for cancer of the lungs and brain.

For physicians:

Drug results might well be better if doctors didn't expect the chemical to be a magic bullet, and so tried harder to combat other concurrent infections or malnutrition, Dr. Zubrod said. And it would help if doctors had more schooling about the action of drugs in general so they could figure out how to make the most effective use of a new drug.

For cancer research:

Combination use of drugs calls for a lot of objective and cooperative study to measure benefits and to detect any harmful effects.

More drugs are needed which would be safe enough so they could be used early before a cancer has gone too far or has spread through the body.

McConnell Rated Successor to AF Staff Chief

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 56-year-old "soldier - statesman," now holding one of the most important U.S. military posts in Europe is rated the leading possibility to succeed Gen. Curtis E. LeMay as Air Force chief of staff.

He is Gen. John Paul McConnell, an Arkansas native who has been a military pilot for more than 30 years and has served in a wide range of staff and command positions.

Currently, the four-star Air Force general is deputy commander in chief of the U.S. European Command—second only to Army Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, who is both NATO and U.S. commander for Europe.

With Lemnitzer having to devote most of his attention to NATO problems, McConnell for all practical purposes is in charge of the roughly 400,000 American military forces in that key theater.

McConnell's name figured high in speculation even before President Johnson announced he was extending LeMay's tenure as Air Force chief for staff seven additional months to next Feb. 1.

He is understood to have impressed Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara as sharp minded and capable.

Several other high-ranking Air Force officers also are considered in the running for chief of staff.

They are:

German-born Gen. Bernard A. Schriever, research and development chief who directed the birth and growth of this country's intercontinental ballistic missiles.

Gen. Jacob E. Smart, a South Carolinian who was shot down and captured by the Germans in World War II and now is in command of all U.S. Air Forces in the Pacific.

Gen. Walter C. Sweeney Jr., a native of West Virginia who flew in the first low-level B29 bombing attack on Japan in World War II and now leads the Tactical Air Command.

Like McConnell, all are in their 50s and all have had bright military careers dating back more than three decades.

McConnell, Smart and Sweeney are West Pointers—the first two originally were commissioned as field artillerymen and Sweeney started out as an infantry second lieutenant.

Schriever was graduated from Texas A&M in 1931 and later won a master's degree in aeronautical engineering at Stanford while in the Army Air Corps.

For the past 14 years, Schriever has been associated chiefly with research and development. His identification as a specialist and his lack of a broad background in operating command may be a drawback in consideration for chief of all the Air Force.

Chicken Utopia Operated by Italian Firm

MUZZANO, Italy (AP) — There's a chicken welfare state up here where the hens are real eggheads. They wear glasses and prefer Beethoven to the Beatles.

The hens are easily bored, sensitive and quarrelsome. But the eggs they lay are beauties—uniformly large and with more yolk than white.

They're just the kind of eggs pastry firms in Milan, north of Muzzano, want for their mass production. Chicken experts say they found out the only way to get such eggs on a regular schedule was to give hens the best of everything.

The result is the Aurora Poultry Farm, a Utopia where no hen has to scratch for a living.

The hen house never gets hot or stuffy. It's air conditioned.

Lest any hens become disturbed by changes in the weather, a lighting system creates the illusion of an endless summer day.

The experts also learned that nothing helps egg production so much as music. They found out that catchy rhythms like rock 'n' roll tend to disturb the chickens but the hens take to the classics like ducks to water.

As a result the chickens get a daily diet of Beethoven, Bach and Chopin piped over hen house loudspeakers.

For some reason, however, this life of luxury has made the hens so irritable they can't stand the sight of each other. To avoid pointless bickering the chickens are fitted with special rubber blinders that look like eyeglasses.

Mrs. Smith Says She Is Serious About Campaign

NEW YORK (AP) — Is Sen. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine seriously seeking the Republican nomination for president?

"Would I get up at six in the morning and work until eleven at night if I weren't?" she is quoted as replying in the current issue of the Saturday Evening Post.

But the article, by Maxine Cheshire, a Washington Post reporter who covered the senator's 1960 Senate campaign, says "almost no one," including Mrs. Smith, expects her to get the presidential nod from delegates at the GOP National Convention in July.

"It is the vice presidency she is after," the article says, "and she has wanted it now for more than a decade. Perhaps, in this year of startling upsets, she could actually get it."

Mrs. Smith, 66, is the first woman to seek the presidential nomination of a major political party. She fared badly in New Hampshire's first-in-the-nation presidential primary, finishing fifth in a field of six.

The article quotes Sen. Thruston B. Morton of Kentucky, a former national Republican chairman, as saying: "We want to win. If she proves in the primaries she can bring us the suffragettes and the old maids, she's in."

Doctor Recalls Gerhart as Former Patient

"General, I was once your doctor," was the way the conversation started when Gen. John K. Gerhart, commander in chief, NORAD, was introduced to a visitor at North American Air Defense Headquarters here this week.

Dr. Gilbert H. Marquart, associate professor of medicine at Northwestern University Chicago, was the visitor. He was one of 17 civic leaders visiting the headquarters from Chicago.

Prior to the start of their briefing on the NORAD system, Dr. Marquardt was introduced to Gen. Gerhart, himself a native Chicagoan. It was then that the doctor recognized the NORAD commander as a former patient.

A heart specialist in addition to his Northwestern job, Dr. Marquardt is also a member of the Wesley Memorial and Cooke County hospital staffs. He is a former member of the USAF.

His medical attention for the came in the early 1950's shortly NORAD commander-in-chief afte the death of Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg. Air Force at that time was concerned with the early-aged fatalities among general officers.

During his military career, Marquardt rose to the rank of colonel and his list of patients included such recognizable public servant names as Lovett, Stimson, Spaatz, Akers, Giles, Arnold, Marshal, Vandenberg, and others. He entered the Army Air Corps in 1942.

Druggist Solves $700 Break-in

MONTROSE (AP) — An alert druggist has solved last Tuesday's $700 breakin at the Northside School, sheriff's officers said today.

Officers were called when a boy tried to trade in a roll of nickels for dollar bills, and he gave them the names of three others ranging in age from 14 to 16.

The four were bound over to juvenile court. Three were released to their parents' custody and the other was held for violating probation.

Mobile Robot Roams Halls at Johns Hopkins

ByLY NN POOLE
The Johns Hopkins University

Even fans of horror movies might be shaken up a bit if they were to walk down a corridor at The Johns Hopkins University's Applied Physics Laboratory — and meet a mobile, mechanical machime that "thinks" for itself without guidance from a human being, or from a remote control.

Known by the laboratory staff, affectionately, as "The Beast," the machine roams the halls at will, eats when it is hungry, sleeps when tired, backs away when it approaches a barrier and avoids falling down stairs when it reaches a stairwell.

The only automaton in the world that can survive in its own natural environment, The Beast is provided with two essential survival mechanisms — the ability to replenish its energy supply, and to cope with obstacles met as it moves.

When the meandering mechanism begins to run out of energy, and is hungry for more, it feels its way along the wall by means of a servo-actuated retractable "neck." Two microswitches at the end of its metal "neck" sense the contour of a regular electric outlet wall-plug. When contact is made, The Beast stops and two prongs are inserted into the wall socket. Then the mechanism "eats," by allowing electric current to flow into and recharge his 12 silver cadmium batteries. As soon as its appetite has been satisfied, the prongs withdraw from the wall socket and The Beast again roams through the corridors.

The corridors that are the Beast's natural environment are cluttered with door jams, I-beams, vending machines, people, stair rails and stair wells going up and down.

A wrap-around bumper on the front of the automaton is equipped with sensors which signal the presence of an obstacle. When it approaches or meets an obstacle, the machine halts, backs up, turns around the obstacle and continues its sedate stroll down the hall. We saw it make a big mistake by getting its "neck" caught in a stair railing. It wiggled, squirmed, bobbed up and down, and finally withdrew the "neck" from the bars. As it stalked off down the hall we sympathized with the Beast, because we had a definite feeling that its pride had been hurt!

If, in its travels, it comes to the head of a stairway going down, it stops. Just ahead of its wheel treads are four loss-of-support sensors. Normally, these four sensors press against the floor, but when the floor support is removed, they fall and automatically signal the vehicle to stop, back up, turn around and go in another direction. So, when the sensors drop on the top step of a stairway, the machine halts and keeps itself from falling down stairs.

With its built-in system of scientific logic, the Beast does its own thinking, makes its own decisions and guides its own course. Like all things the Beast must rest, so, it gets a signal that is retained within its memory system for hours before it eventually takes a nap.

The device has survived entirely on its own for as long as 21 hours. During this period of continuous movement around two corridors, it "fed" from four available electrical outlets 25 times. It has been in operation for a year and has totalled up more than 400 hours of walking time; more than three-fourths of the time has been spent in feeding its insatiable appetite.

While moving its normal forward speed is 12 inches per second. It has a slow speed of only 3 inches per second while avoiding objects, preventing a fall down stairs and avoiding other objects.

Soon the Beast will be equipped with sonar devices so it can walk straight down a corridor, and only go to the wall when it wants to feed. An optical device will also make it possible for the Beast to look at objects it wishes to avoid and see the sockets in the wall from which it wishes to feed.

Mike

The mobile machine was devised as part of the laboratory's investigation of artificial intelligence, an effort to design a sufficiently intelligent automation to perform a job. Jobs a superior automaton may do are to explore ocean floors, caves, and explore in a remote or enviroment hostile to man—such as the geography of another planet.

The Beast is only one in a series of such intelligence devices. Each one constructed and tested is found to be more sophisticated than its predecessor. Ultimately the Hopkins Applied Physics Laboratory staff hopes to produce a perfect mobile automation—one which will do anything, anywhere.

Volunteers Are Shaken Up and Then Get Test

WICHITA, Kan. (AP)—They're shaking up employes at the Boeing airplane factory here.

The shakeup comes almost daily for 11 volunteers who are strapped into a vibration seat and tested for reactions to being shook up.

The tests are part of a Human Vibration Research Program which is identifying human reactions with different levels of vibrations.

Purpose of the program is to gain data on the effect of vibration on aircraft crew performances.

Engineers know that high frequency vibrations cause pilots difficulty in taking accurate instrument readings. Some pilots find it difficult to move certain controls under vibration conditions. Other pilots experience physical irritations at vibrations.

Joe Beaupeurt, a director of the current program, said each subject matches the intensity of vibrations he undergoes to a specified reaction, such as "mildly annoying," "extremely annoying," etc.

"This will give us a band of vibration frequencies which can be applied to the measurement of human abilities under certain conditions," he said.

Engineers know that all vibration cannot be eliminated from planes. But they hope that the tests will help train pilots to perform properly under extreme conditions.

Vibrations produced by a hydraulic cylinder connected to an aircraft seat shake the workers from one to 30 cycles per second and within amplitudes from 20 inches at the lowest frequency to about 1.64 at the highest frequency.

Bob Kennedy Support Runs Into New Snags

BOSTON (AP) — The State Ballot Law Commission has refused to let candidates for delegates to the Democratic National Convention run pledged to support Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy for the vice-presidential nomination.

State election officials said Friday that the commission had disallowed pledges to Kennedy in two instances.

Two pledges to support President Johnson for the presidential nomination also were disallowed. The pledges were not allowed because neither Kennedy nor Johnson had given permission for the use of his name as required by state law.

Space Projects May Make Better Nation Harmony

"Greater cooperation between nations, leading to reduced international tensions, may be achieved through international space projects," delegates to the sixth annual Air Force Academy Assembly believe.

The more than 120 young men and women from 70 colleges and universities expressed their belief in international space projects in the Assembly's soon to be published final report on "Outer Space."

Based on a review of information presented during speeches, roundtable discussions and plenary sessions, delegates listed (with a few dissenting votes on the final two items) five space exploration projects technically feasible during the next decade.

They included: improved communications, weather, and geodetic satellites; improved military intelligence and reconnaissance satellites; interplanetary probes; a manned orbiting laboratory; and a manned lunar landing.

Other topics discussed in the final report included: economic implications of U. S. space programs; outer space and the American society; role of the military space; and outer space and outer space and the international community.

The U.S. economy is unlikely to approach any limit where it cannot support a space program, delegates said.

"Many aspects of the economy not directly involved in the space program may also be stimulated through allied technological advances in education, skills, and training."

On the second topic, the report states "exploration of space can provide a positive stimulus to the imagination and spirit of man and steps into space should broaden man's horizons and promote greater international cooperation."

The benefits will not come, however, without fundamental changes to the federal government, education, and the personal lives of thousands of Americans.

New knowledge gained by space exploration will force men to re-examine their personal beliefs and values.

Defining clearly the military role in space exploration was the major difficulty encountered, delegates admitted. Many believed the U.S. should move into space militarily only as necessary to retain a deterrent capability vis a vis the Soviet Union.

There was some hope a challenge requiring joint American-Russian effort will be discovered in the next few years and would lead to the peaceful conquest of space.

"Projects such as Telstar are direct evidence of U.S. power and contribute to our international prestige," final segment of the report concluded.

Agencies Blamed For Carrying Out Social Changes

DENVER (AP) — It is government agencies and not courts which are carrying out today's social changes under way, says Justice Byron White of the U.S. Supreme Court.

After receiving an honorary doctor of laws degree at the University of Denver, Justice White said Friday night:

"These agencies are now firmly embodied in our system and, along with the vastly expanded executive branch of the government, administer the law and give detailed expression to the sometimes general provisions and purposes of legislative commands."

To a great degree, the current social changes are being carried out by these new governmental bodies "which are quasi-judicial and quasi-legislative," White said.

He added:

"If the courts were ever the major instruments of change, that day has long since passed."

The associate justice, a University of Colorado graduate, took part later in a panel discussion on the role of universities in producing responsible citizens.

An audience of 800 persons heard the panel agree that universities must be more than "a service station for society," dispensing only useful skills and technology.

Chiropractors May Beat Ancient Headache Malady

By The Colorado Chiropractic Society

Mankind has been complaining about headaches for thousands of years-the jungle drums inside the pulsating head come and go, and come again.

But this five-century old malady is being beaten. Although science has come up with a solution to many a problem which has threatened the human race, the common, everyday headache still throbs, leaving the hapless victim at a loss for guaranteed relief, much less any assurance that another will not occur later.

There is now hope for a positive headache cure which is startlingly close to being a promise. One group of scientists has uncovered a cause, perhaps "the" cause, and they treat it.

Headaches are traditionally treated with chemical substances and sometimes with extremes of temperature as with the ice bag. Even hot packs have been tried—the sufferer puts a hot towel on his middle in the hope that blood will be pulled into his adbomen, thus relieving the pressure in his pounding skull.

History describes natives who let out headache pressure by cutting a hole in the top of the patient's head with a sharp stone; witches using white magic didn't help, nor has swallowing a dog's hair with a glass of water set mankind on any course of promise. Pills, though sanitary, can claim equally little credit as cure.

The secret of cure is in the discovery of the cause.

It is the doctor of chiropractic who has been busy with the problem from an entirely different scientific approach. Results have been rewarding as this disease fighter based general headache diagnosis on a new premise: the cause is mechanical, and cannot be cured chemically.

Through extensive clinical research, the world of chiropractic has pin pointed the cause of most headaches at the base of the skull, where almost microscopic subluxations, or misallignment of the spinal bones, can cause the headache hammer to begin beating inside the patient's head.

These subluxations are only slight, even microscopic, and for this reason have long been overlooked by ordinary radiology which concerns its self with only general line-up of the bones.

Chiropractic methods have illustrated both the need and value of not one or two x-rays, but a series made particularly for the individual sufferer.

Those subluxations actually pinch the nerves running down the center of the spinal column. And, making it worse, these nerve pressures go unnoticed if the headache they cause is removed through the use of drugs. A headache is nature's warning that something is wrong. Correction, not merely removal of pain, is needed.

Just as the ears and nose vary in shape, so do the vetabrae differ and today, many doctos of chiropractic have equipped their offices with the needed x-ray facilities to accurately take pictures of the particular patient's spinal column rather than simply for "people in general."

They can determine the detailed subluxations-the cause of most headaches. And, having accomplished this step, a period of care to correct this fault literally removes the headache problem for most.

Man, after suffering the common headache for five centuries can now hold out hope for permanent relief.

Double Winter Wheat Crop Is Predicted

WASHINGTN (AP) — Colorado's winter wheat crop this year will nearly double that of 1963, the U.S. Department of Agriculture predicted today.

The crop last year was the second lowest since 1930 as a result of drought.

The department said that production this year may reach 41,415,000 bushels compared with 21,438,000 a year ago.

Despite this, the prospective crop is still below the 1958-62 average of 55 million bushels in Colorado.

U.S. Geographer States Old Defense Outmoded

By GLEN URBAN

Concepts of defense have been outmoded since World War II, acording to a geographer of the U.S. Department of State.

He is Dr. Etzel Pearcy, who spoke Saturday morning on the topic, "American Concept of Geopolitics," to the freshman class of the Air Force Academy.

Pearcy pointed out that America long had the security of the oceans, and in this century the two oceans, Pacific and Atlantic, and a two-ocean Navy insured American security from foreign aggressors. This was added to by the fact that the nation has only two international borders and those are with peaceful countries.

The advantage of these peaceful border countries and the security of the oceans was dramatically demonstrated in both World War I and II, Pearcy said.

In both of those wars, the country was secure from enemy military action while it produced great quantities of food and war materiel, he pointed out.

However, modern rocketry and atomic weaponry have changed that concept, he explained.

While the fundamental concepts relative to the oceans are no longer applicable, the more basic ideas of world geography and the application of military power still remain, he said.

Pearcy turned to another geopolitical expert of earlier in this century to explain some basic facts of geography and power that are important today.

British Navy Capt. Alfred J. Mackinder, at University College in London, delivered a lecture in 1904 in which he divided the world for geopolitical purposes into three sections.

1. The heartland — pivotal area — the large land mass which is essentially a land power militarily. Russia and China fit this description.

2. The outlaying area — the outer crescent — this is the maritime powers, such as England, the United States, and Japan.

3. The rimland — the inner crescent or zone of contact. This area is the coastal areas of Europe and Asia.

The area under discussion deals with the northern hemisphere because most of the world's land mass and most of its people live in the northern hemisphere.

In the heartland theory proposed by Mackinder, the heartland nations will keep attempting to expand and thus will come in conflict with the outlying powers in the rimland areas; also, the outlying areas will be attempting to make inroads into the heartland and so will meet the heartland in the rimland areas.

In today's world, Russia and China, centers of communism, are the heartland, with the outlaying areas being the sources of power in the free world.

The rimland — the area of contact — in the conflict between those two centers of power is in Korea, Laos, Viet Nam, Berlin, Malaya, Greece and other easily identifiable nations, Pearcy said.

However, Mackinder's thesis has been modified by the advent of modern technology.

Today, heartland nations can attempt to jump over the rimland areas of contact in their efforts to push out and upset the outer powers.

He listed two cases in point: The Congo, where the Russians attempted to establish a power base and failed, and Cuba where they established a base when Castro came to power there in 1959.

Technology has allowed Russia to jump over the rimland, but lack of technological progress prevents China from doing the same thing, he pointed out.

Where the water of the Pacific washes the shores of China, there ends the military might of that land power, Pearcy stated.

While China might have the power to overrun the rimlands to the south, it is unable to exert its force on Taiwan (Formosa), he pointed out.

The United States, as an outlying power, has allied itself with other outlying powers and with rimland countries, Pearcy explained.

The U.S. defense in the Pacific is divided into inner and outer zones. The inner zone is within lines drawn from the Panama Canal to Hawaii to Alaska. The outer zone is along the periphery of Asia —Japan, the Philippines, and Australia and New Zealand.

The country is in conflict with the heartland force in the rimland of Viet Nam as the communist power is blocked from further penetration into the rimland.

Within this general structure of the world — geopolitically— is the additional fact that since World War II, the world has been polarized so far as power goes — between Russia and the United States, Pearcy said.

In that struggle, the United States has certain advantages based on geography, he pointed out.

This nation has a tremendous advantage in agriculture potential, and also in production. Agriculturally, the natural resources this country has are unequalled in the world, he said.

Further, the country has the advantage of being a young society that has the idea of doing better — of every man and every generation getting ahead. That is not true in other parts of the world, he added.

Pearcy said that this country with its Purtian background, has always believed that right would triumph and that it is right. He added, "But, we must do something about it to win."

Health Index Survey to Start Here Monday

The City-County Health Department will start their Health Index Survey in the Metropolitan Area of Colorado Springs Monday.

The survey is one phase of the Communicable Disease Program which is being conducted in cooperation with the State Health Department and the United States Public Health Service.

The purpose of this survey is to determine the percentage of the population which are immunized against such diseases as Diphtheria, Whooping Cough, Tetanus, Small pox and Poliomyelitis.

Questions will also be asked regarding family experience with such diseases as Measles, Hepatitis (Jaundice), Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever and Tuberculosis.

Interviewers will present their identification immediately and the interview will only take a few minutes time. The teams will consist of Public Health Nurses and Sanitarians from the City-County Health Department.

Approximately 700 homes have been selected by a random sampling procedure and it is important that the interview be completed for each home selected.

This information is very important for planning of improved health services. Your cooperation will be appraciated.

Jaycees to Serve Breakfast on Ward's Lot

The Colorado Springs Junior Chamber of Commerce will serve a chuckwagon-style street breakfast Saturday on the Montgomery Ward Parking lot.

Jaycee officials said the cost will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for children.

To be parked on the lot at the time will be the newly repainted and renovated Jaycee Firetruck which is used to promote many of the more than 50 projects the Jaycees carry on here throughout the year.

The breakfast, to be served in public, is, of course, open to the public.

Champion Horses To Appear in Colorado Springs

The International Grand champion Six Horse Hitch will appear here Wednesday and next Sunday, at the two King Soopers stores.

The famous Clydesdale horses will appear at the store on 501 E. Pikes Peak Ave. between 4 and 6 p.m. next Wednesday, and at the 2727 Palmer Park Blvd. store from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. April 19.

The massive Clydesdales won the coveted Blue Ribbon at the 1963 International Livestock Exposition in Chicago. This team and its predecessors have won this award 27 times in 43 years of international competition against the best six horse hitches in the U.S. and Canada.

Clydesdales originated in Scotland near the River Clyde about 1810. They are descended from the great Flemish horses of armored knights in the Middle Ages.

The average weight of the six horse hitch is more than a ton a piece. Each horse carries about 110 pounds of harness. The shoe takes 3½ pounds of steel for each foot, compared with 11-ounce shoes for saddle horses.

The hitch will be harnessed to a gleaming white Corn King wagon weighing more than 4,400 pounds that originally was used to deliver meat products from the stock yards area to Chicago loop markets.

Machine Shop Practice Class To Open

Another evening class is Machine Shop Practice will be operated by the Adult Education Department of the Colorado Springs Public Schools beginning Tuesday 1964, according to John L. Cameron, Department Director. Men working in occupations requiring either limited or extensive knowledge of machine tools and their operation will find this training valuable.

Scheduled for a total of 39 hours, classes will meet each Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7:00 to 10:00 for a period of 6½ weeks beginning Tuesday.

The course covers theory and practice in Machine Shop techniques involving the use of shop hand tools and machinery including lathes, milling machines, grinders, drill presses, shapers, and power saws.

Classes are limited in size to provide for a miximum of individual instruction. Cost of the course if $12.00.

Vincent Price Art Collection To Be Shown Here

Vincent Price, noted actor and art authority, directs the famed Vincent Price Collection of Fine Art that will be unveiled here Wednesday, Sears, Roebuck and Co. announced today.

G. A. Cheney, Sears manager in Colorado Springs said Vincent Price had this to say about what is an original work of art? And how do you go about selecting art for the home or office?

"Art is art, no matter what it is painted on, whose wall it hangs on, or what it costs. Or for that matter, who painted it.

"A painting may be low-priced but appealing to you. It may be painted on cardboard. It is no less a work of art because of this.

"First, let's get over the popular misconception that original art is an oil painting on canvas. Oil paint can be used on boards, cardboard, paper, silk, or any other material that will hold it. Many modern painters use composition boards.

"Some of the greatest works of art are not oil paintings at all, but watercolors and gouaches which are more opaque than watercolors, but use water as the medium.

"The old masters often painted on wood panels covered with gesso, a superfine plaster, using eggwhite as the binder or medium, with finely ground natural minerals and earth for colors. This is tempera. Later, they glazed the tempera with oil paints or colored varnishes.

"No less important or valuable are the drawings in ink, pencil, crayon or charcoal which the artists did either as notes for future paintings or simply for their own pleasure.

"The graphic arts — etching, drypoint, woodcut, engraving, aquatint, lithography and others — are the artists' solutions to turning out more than one example of their work. Usually they limited the number of prints for a plate, either by choice or because the plate wore out.

"The signing of etchings and other graphic works began only in the last century. It originated partly from snob appeal and partly because artists wanted to be sure to differentiate between their own work and that done by reproduction processes. Whistler signed some of his works, others he didn't. Rembrandt and Goya signed only the plate, so the signature is printed.

"Most of the great artists excelled more in one medium than another, but some excelled at everything. Rembrandt's paintings are almost priceless, yet his etchings are often considered his greatest works. Durer, on the other hand, was a greater engraver and draftsman than he was a painter.

"An original work of art denotes the all-important fact that it comes directly from the artist's hand or was under his personal supervision. There are many reproductions today done to fool the purchaser. Mechanical processes are used to reproduce watercolors, and it's very difficult to tell the real from the false — but one has value, the other little or none.

"In buying original art the first thing to do is go out and look. My sources of art include museums, galleries, bookstores, interior decorators, art schools and individual artists.

"After you've looked decide on what you like. The name of the artist should be secondary in the consideration of his work, which must be honest, well executed and in good taste. Art is something you buy for your own enjoyment, and not even all the greatest masterpieces appeal to everyone. Keep in mind that everyone has different taste. Art buying should be a mutual thing. I would not buy a painting without first consulting my wife.

"Finally, when you know what you like, buy it. I think of art as a necessary luxury because it teaches, and only by buying what you know you like now will you learn what you will like in the future."

Other paintings that will appear with the Price collection are those of Cezanne, Chagall, Motherwell, Miro, Kokoshka, Braque, Redon, Pollack, Rembrandt, Bacon, Goya, Rouault and Tamayo.

Crafton Patton Dies In Veteran's Hospital

Crafton "Pat" Patton, 119 E. Vermijo Ave., died Thursday at Veterans Hospital, Denver. He was a veteran of World War I. He is survived by a brother, Joe A. Patton, of Hot Springs, Ark.

'I SAY, WHERE ARE YOU?' — The Cheyenne Mountain Zoo has just obtained this pair of rare Spectacled bears. Only four others of this species are known to exist in the United States. The Spectacled is the only bear found in South America and lives in the Andes Mountains from Venezuela to Chile. They are relatively small bears standing only two feet at the shoulder and are between three and four feet long. There fur is predominantly black with fawn colored areas on the chest and the muzzle and fawn colored eye rings from which the name Spectacled is derived.

Sears Sales Exceeds $5 Billion Mark for First Time in 1963

In its annual report, issued April 1, Sears Roebuck & Co. announced that 1963 was the best year in the company's history.

The reported stated that net income rose 11.3 per cent to $261,023,915, or $3.44 a share, from $234,590,360, or $3.10 a share in 1962.

Net sales rose 11.1 per cent to $5.1 billion, from $4.6 billion in 1962, exceeding the five billion mark for the first time in Sears history.

Combined net income (including equity in undistributed net income of unconsolidated subsidiaries and Canada's Simpson-Sears) rose 10.9 per cent to $293,588,663, or $3.87 a share, from $264,683,794, or $3.50 a share, the year before.

Expansion was stepped up 77 per cent with capital expenditures reaching $133,883,768.

Capital expenditures budget for 1964 will be $175,000,000, more than double the all-time record budget of 1962.

Forty-one stores are scheduled for opening this year and another 41 are scheduled for opening in 1965, against 25 in 1963.

Sears in Southgate Center is a spoke in a many-spoked wheel that seems to have discovered the secret of perpetual motion.

Now the biggest corporation in Chicago and the seventh biggest in the world, Sears Roebuck & Co. entered Colorado Springs in February, 1928, with a store at 120 S. Tejon St. (now Ajax Furniture).

The store remained downtown until March, 1957, when the new store was built in fast-growing Southgate Center.

G. A. Cheney, general manager, has been with the local store since 1943 but is a veteran of 36 years service with Sears. He is the fifth general manager of the Colorado Springs branch.

The local store has a personnel ranging from 250 to 500 employes, depending upon seasonal changes.

Like Sears stores across the country, the one here has specialized shops that stock items of regional interest. Here, the Sears store specializes in ski equipment with its own Ski Shop. Cheney estimates the shop sells more ski equipment than any othe shop in the region. The Southgate store also stocks a variety of sportsmen equipment, such as fishing and golfing, both year-round sports in the Pikes Peak Region.

The local Sears also maintains a service warehouse on Stone Avenue and keeps 17 motor vehicles in constant operation for delivery purposes.

This year, starting April 15, Sears Southgate will again offer the public art works from the Vincent Price Collection including paintings by such famous artists as Rouault, Goya, Hogarth, Chagall, Whistler, Miller, Corot, and Rembrandt.

The collection will be on view here for 10 days.

Although Sears has only been on the local scene for 36 years, its name is a by-word across the country and in many foreign countries.

For more than a quarter century, Sears Roebuck and Co. operated as a small but successful mail-order house.

Things changed, however, in 1924 when Richard W. Sears hired Gen. Robert Wood who had resigned from Montgomery Ward because the company wouldn't go along with his idea to add retail stores to its mail-ordeer business.

An experimental retail store was opened in Chicago in 1925. Less than five years later, the company was opening stores at the rate of three a week.

Today, the company has 220,000 employes, 761 stores in all the 50 states, 1,065 catalog sales offices and annual sales of nearly $5.5 billion.

Not content to merely deal in retail and catalog sales, Sears is branching out into new fields and new areas.

In the planning stage is a mutual fund which already has the go-ahead from the Securities and Exchange Commission. The public may expect to be offered shares in the fund this summer.

Sears acquired two S & L associations in Los Angeles, renaming one of them "Allstate Savings & Loan Association", thus marking the company's entrance into the savings and loan business.

Sears has begun merchandising services on a grand scale with 9,000 men handling more than 10 million service calls a year.

A couple of years ago Sears pioneered in the selling of costly original art. This unique adventure in merchandising has paid off for official who say art sales will soon be topping $1 million a year.

Extending its interests abroad, Sears is moving in on Europe. Already planned are two stores in Spain, one in Madrid and the other in Barcelona, at an investment of $4 million.

Other European cities may expect to see the stores soon after the Spanish invasion. Sears has 68 stores in Latin America and is part owner of Simpsons-Sears, a chain of 24 stores and 330 catalog sales offices in Canada.

All of this makes Sears one of the top-ranking leaders in the retailing field. This Chicago-headquartered empire figures one out of every three Americans buys its goods regularly.

There's something for everyone, and on this premise money is made. Sears after-tax profit on sales in fiscal year 1963 figured out at about five per cent, a couple of points above what most retailers in the United States clear.

This fantastic success story began in 1886 when a railroad station agent at North Redwood, Minn., bought several watches from a local jeweler. Richard W. Sears, then 23, sold the watches to other station agents, ordered more, and sold them out.

Realizing he was onto a good thing, Sears quit the railroad, moved to Chicago, and hired

Springs Youths Hear African Folk Singer

By JOHN FETLER

One of the most interesting folk singers in many a moon appeared at the Le Chat Noir (Black Cat) Friday and Saturday nights, coming most directly from Boulder, where he is an exchange student, but actually coming all the way from the Cameroons in West Africa.

Perhaps the best way to characterize this folk singer, Jean Kon, is to describe him as a kind of Belafonte in a quiet mood, although Jean Kon also manages, ever so often, to impart a more brisk pace to the folk songs which he sings, accompanied quite ably by guitar, and in one number with the addition of drums. In personality, this West African singer has a bubbling and charming vitality, which he effectively transmits to the audience, and he had the audience singing not only once but a number of times, joing in the rhythmic and rollicking tunes of the Cameroons.

The featuring of folk singers and similar events is a quite fortunate one for the Black Cat, where many of the young people of high school and college age congregate, especially on the weekend nights of Friday and Saturday. For instance, with the excellent singing of Jean Kon they personally had an experience from faraway West Africa, with songs coming from that part of the world and with a good artistic presentation as well.

Michael Conley On MacArthur Honor Detail

Michael O. Conley, of the Air Force, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Kelly, 1004 Montrose Ave., was chosen to represent his squadron in the Honor Detail for Gen. MacArthur's Retreat. He was chosen as one out of 500 airmen for this honor.

MICHAEL O. CONLEY

He is a former Harrison High School student and is stationed at Barksdale Air Force Base, Shreveport, La. He will have completed one year of service in the Air Force May 26 of this year.

Soap Box Derby Registrations Are Extended

Last minute registrations for the 1964 Soap Box Derby have pushed the number of entries to date ahead of last year's pace and forced an extension of the registration deadline.

Jaycee officials said that registration topped 100 with two days to go to deadline.

"The interest is so high," Walt Masel, chairman, said, "that we have been forced to extend the registration period for two weeks to make sure that all interested boys have the chance to enter the Derby this year."

Registraion was to close Saturday.

Maria von Trapp Will Speak to Town Hall Club

Town Hall of Colorado Springs will end this year's series with the famous Baroness Maria von Trapp who will speak Monday morning at the Fine Art Center.

On Broadway, Mary Martin originated the well-known role of the Baroness in "The Sound of Music" inspired by the real Baroness adventures as the mother and leader of the world-famous Trapp Family Singers.

A reception for the Baroness will follow the lecture in the lounge of the Fine Arts Center. Coffee will not be served before this lecture. Tickets for the reception will be available at the morning lecture.

Town Hall is sponsored locally by the Colorado Springs Junior League for Polly Grimes of Denver. Miss Grimes will introduce the Baroness von Trapp.

SPABA Opposes Any Park Encroachment

Sidney T. Guberman, president of Springs Area Beautiful Association (SPABA) has announced that this organization stands strongly opposed to any encroachment by public or private organization upon the Park and Recreational land of the Springs area.

More specifically we are actively opposed to the re-introduction of a road into Memorial Park to the North of Prospect Lake.

Such a road now proposed to be a main connecting link between Costilla Street to the West and Airport Road to the East, would amount to a moderate to high-speed through way devouring thousands of square feet of park land and eliminating Memorial Park as a safe green area for children.

Local Engineer Invents Fluid Removal Device

A Colorado Springs engineer has invented a device which has greatly facilitated the removal of fluids from gas transmission lines in the Colorado Interstate Gas pipeline system.

Burt P. Schaberg of 1447 Sunset Rd., chief service engineer for CIG, recently received a patent for the invention, which consists of a modification of an apparatus for launching inflatable balls into pipelines.

In an operation known in the industry as "pigging," these inflatable balls are forced through pipelines by the pressure of the gas behind them. As they move through the lines, they push before them liquids which have accumulated at low points in the system. Schaberg's invention has helped automate a pigging operation now being used at the CIG Mocane-Laverne fields in the Oklahoma Panhandle.

Gas moved through pipelines in the Panhandle region is loaded with hydrocarbons which in cold weather condense into liquid form inside the pipes. Since the lines follow the contour of the earth, the liquid accumulates at low points or "sags" in the lines. These pools of liquid, if not removed, block off the movement of the gas, causing a decline in pressure.

Several pipes of varying diameters are used to move gas in the Panhandle region, and it is necessary to insert "pigs" of different sizes into each of these pipes.

A launching device for the pigs introduces them into the pipeline one after the other at proper intervals and without interference with the normal transmission of gas through the line. When a 16-inch sphere reaches the point where the line size changes to 18 inches, it triggers another launching apparatus which in turn introduces a larger sphere into the line.

The larger sphere pushes the smaller through the pipe until it eventually triggers yet another launching mechanism. All of the spheres are eventually collected at the plant site.

Each launcher has a valve which allows the spheres to be introduced into the pipelines.

Originally, the launchers were equipped with metering devices which insured that only one sphere at a time would be inserted into the pipelines. Schaberg's idea was to modify the valve so that the valve itself could take care of the metering function, thus eliminating the need for a separate metering device.

The new valve is also used in a recovery device which extracts the balls individually from the pipeline. Schaberg has assigned the patent for the valve to the Rockwell Manufacturing Co., Pittsburgh, Pa.

The valve has been used in the CIG Panhandle system since last November.

Local Driver Wins Patrol Commendation

Pauline N. Cochran, of the Air Force Academy, has won a State Highway Patrol commendation for safe driving and will compete for the April Highway Safety Award to be presented by the Denver Post and the Denver U. S. National Bank.

Following an occasion on which she was seen operating her vehicle in an exceptionally careful, defensive manner, Mrs. Cochran was issued a "congratulation" card by Colorado State Patrolman J. D. Morrissey, 2123 N. Circle Dr.

Alvah C. Roebuck, a watch repairman.

In 1888, Sears and Roebuck published a catalog of their watches. Within seven years, the duo had expanded with a 507 page catalog offering a variety of goods. Their sales that year totaled $750,000.

During the next 25 years, they operated as a mail-order company until in 1924 when Gen. Wood joined Sears & Roebuck.

The visionary Wood built stores on cheap land out of the downtown district. Years later, there were the stores with their ample parking lots, when the people started the exodus from town living out to the suburbs.

The functional stores, simple and un-dressed up, appealed to men who came along to shop with their womenfolk. This was a bit of un-planned strategy.

But plannned strategy, however, entered the picture following World War II. Board chairman Gen. Wood knew that the shortages and rationing during the war years had caused deep frustrations.

Sears spent $300 million on a giant expansion program. The general was right again, other similiar companies had held back thinking a depression would erupt, and Sears instincts paid off to the point where the company sprinted ahead to fast no other company has been able to catch up.

But Sears officials discovered a long time ago, that in order to make money, you have to spend money. The company spends $90 million annually on advertising, not including the money it takes to have its catalog in American homes.

It distributes 55 million catalogs annually in two major editions, plus several seasonal catalogs, with each major catalog costing Sears about $1.70 to print and distribute.

Sears' president Crowdus Baker says the "catalog sales increases have been outstripping our retail sales increases for more than a year." And no wonder too, as the catalog offers parts to repair or restore "your Model A Ford."

The plain and simple fact that many Americans think of Sears as a hayseed operation because of the catalog get the company's back up.

For instance, for years Sears wouldn't give its catalog to New York City residents. The company maintains only one small store in the city, selling mostly appliances. Today, New Yorkers own catalogs and keep telephones busy placing orders.

Sears was refused permission to open a store in posh Park Forest, Ill., a housing development for junior executives commuting to Chicago. The excuse was that a Sears store would downgrade the sophisticated image. In 1963, Sears opened a store in Park Forest.

Critics hooted when Sears announced its advent into the art market. Ordering original art through a catalog would never go, they said. The sages were wrong, as mentioned earlier in this article, for where else can you get a signed engraving of a Madonna and Child by Salvador Dali. Sears commissioned Daili to create 300 and retails them for $400 each.

What Sears calls "hard goods" — appliances, hardware, auto parts-forms the company's backbone. They represent 64 per cent of all sales.

Sears owns 19 per cent of Whirlpool Corporation's common stock. In 1963, 65 per cent of the corporation's output went to Sears, representing more than $300 million in hard goods.

Sears can count wedges in other pies such as Armstrong Rubber Co. and DeSoto Chemical Coatings Inc. Sears buys 68 per cent of Armstrong's tires and 60 per cent of DeSoto's paints.

Most of Sears' merchandise is sold under its own label: Allstate tires, Tower film and cameras, Coldspot freezers, Kenmore washers, and Silvertons radios and television sets.

Bulk shipping is a skilful device the company uses to handle distrubution. Regional production is another as Sears often hands out cash to small suppliers to erect production where the company desired betproduction plants in areas where the company desired better goods distribution.

Allstate automobile insurance company is the second largest in the country. For a number of years, older insurance companies tried to push bills through state legislatures to keep retailers out of the auto insurance field. It didn't work, and boycotts of Sears's stores had little effect.

Despite the fantastic success of the Sears operation, there have been a few failures. The company once invested in a chain in Australia, but found it was more trouble than it was worth. However, Sears sold the chain at a profit of 17 per cent. The Allstate auto didn't go, so the company took its markdown, and retreated from this venture.

If the company is the friend of most Americans, it remains that it has enemies. The bitterrest is the Retail Clerks International Association, an ALF-CIO union, which argues that Sears refuses to continue long-standing union-shop argreements in cities throughout the United States.

Sears refuses to comment, although the union has put what it calls "the world's longe picket line" around Sears stores. The boycott has not been effective, glancing at Sears' sales figures.

Local Officers Named to Police Protective Group

The Colorado Springs Protective Association has announced that Sgt. Vernon Wilson, Colorado Springs police officer, has been elected 1st vice president of the organization. Lt. Jess Garred, also of the local department, was re-elected as trustee of the association.

The association passed two resolutions at Saturday's session. One requested Rep. C. P. Doc Lamb, R-Brush, chairman of the executive council, to arrange a meeting with a police committee to discuss changes in Colorado laws regarding publishing of juvenile's names, joy riding and age limits for juvenile drivers.

The second asked that Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy require all persons claiming civil rights violations against police officers to sign statements swearing to the violation and, if the statement is proven false, be liable for prosecution for giving false information.

Colony received head lacerations and a possible concussion and was taken to Memorial Hospital. Weed suffered a possible broken nose and was also taken to Memorial Hospital. His passenger, Stephen T. Walrath, 19, Slocum Hall had abrasions on the left leg.

Damage to the Colony car was $2,500 and $3,000 to Weed's.

Wasson Student Given Boettcher Scholarship

Leslie Ann Helfrich, 2480 San Carlos Circle, a Wasson student, was named among 40 other students who have been awarded college scholarships by the Boettcher Foundation.

The scholarships, which may be used at any accredited college or university in the State of Colorado at the recipient's choice, consist of full tuition, fees and book allowance, and a $600 yearly stipend for living expenses.

The scholarships, although granted for one year, are renewable normally for three additional years if the scholar maintains an appropriate academic record.

The Boettcher Foundation has awarded 419 of these scholarships to superior young men and women since this scholarship program was started in 1952.

This September 161 scholars will be attending Colorado universities and colleges under this program.

The Boettcher Foundation, which was established by Charles Boettcher and his son, Claude K. Boettcher, for the benefit of the people of Colorado, through this program hopes to encourage and assist young people who have the potential to become leaders in the vocational fields and in their communities in later life.

This year's winners and eighteen alternates have been carefully screened and selected from over 900 applicants on the basis of academic performance, demonstrated ability, leadership and personal factors. Represented in the alphabetical listing below are twenty-one counties in Colorado and forty-three different high schools. There are 25 boys and 15 girls in the forty winners.

Spanish Students At CU to Present Music Festival

Spanish students at the University of Colorado will present a Spanish song and dance festival today and Monday entitled "Fiesta Espanola" at 8 o'clock both nights in the chapel of Old Main Building.

The annual fee public event this year will be directed by Mrs. Dolores Nogueira-Martins, teaching assistant in the Spanish department. She will be assisted by members of the CU Spanish Club.

Mrs. Nogueira-Martins is regarded as an expert on Spanish music and dance, and many of the other participants are scholars of Spanish culture.

Dances will include "Malaguena," considered to be a variation of the fandango. The dance is smooth and colorful and is accompanied by guitar and castanuelas.

Others include "Jota Valenciana," a primitive, religious dance; "La Bamba," a popular Mexican dance, and "Muneira," an ancient dance which has been traced to Greek ritual and ancient Celtic dances.

Among the songs will be "Serrana," "Riverana," "Anda Diciendo Tu Madre," "En Lo Alto de Aquella Montana," "La Sinca" and "Los Gallos Cantan."

New Statewide Police Academy Being Proposed

DENVER (AP) — A plan to set up a statewide police academy was introduced before a legislative committee late Friday, and was immediately challenged as costing too much.

The plan was considered by the Legislative Council's Committee on Organization of State Government as the last item on the agenda of its day-long meeting.

Sen. Sam Taylor, D-Walsenburg, said the academy would eventually cost the taxpayers $1 million a year. He added that, like many state agencies, it would grow too much and too fast.

"You'll have every flatfoot in Colorado wanting to come up here to go to school for six weeks at taxpayers' expense," Taylor said.

Rep. John W. Nichols, R-Simla, suggested that the committee investigate the possibility of setting up regional police training centers at junior colleges.

The committee also heard a plan to set up a commission that would adjudicate claims against the state. The proposal was unveiled by Sen. Donald E. Kelley, R-Denver.

Kelley, an attorney, said that the commission would be composed of members of both houses of the Colorado General Assembly. The commission would be given the power to settle small claims — perhaps those of less than $500.

On larger claims the commission would have several choices. It could recommend settlement, recommend that the claim is invalid, or suggest that the claimant be given permission to sue the state.

In any of the three cases, the legislature would have to approve the commission's recommendation.

Kelley said that the commission would have subpoena powers and might be granted authority to hold persons in contempt — or recommend such action to the courts.

He said that the commission would eliminate the present lengthy process under which a claimant must have a bill passed by the legislature before he can sue the state.

If the bill is passed the claimant initiates a suit. If he wins he must again petition the legislature to pay the judgment awarded by the court.

States, which are considered sovereign entities, cannot be sued without their consent.

Kelley said that this sovereignty is constantly being whittled away through successive court decisions. He quoted a University of Colorado law student's paper which said that "the trend is to limit immunity (of a state) whenever possible."

Sen. Floyd Oliver, D-Greeley, committee chairman, said that the commission might eliminate —or screen—many claims which might be unjust. He noted that legislators are duty-bound to introduce remedial legislation at the request of constituents.

He said that sometimes these claims may not be just, but are approved anyway by the legislature. The only screening at present, he said, in by the appropriations committee of each house.

Patterson to Sell Race-Trouble Home

NEW YORK (AP) — Floyd Patterson, former world's heavyweight boxing champion, is looking for someone to buy the 11-room house for which he paid $140,000 three years ago.

"I'm not running" said Patterson. "It's only for personal reasons that I have put my house up for sale.

"Of course, there is some prejudice in the neighborhood, like most neighborhoods. But my wife has made friends with several white families and the school has bent over backwards as regards our children."

The Pattersons have four children, aged 2 to 7. They live in Yonkers, a suburb of New York City.

COLD FEET

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—A professor at a local university has struck a blow for all the husbands of the world who complain about their wives' cold feet. C. Wyndham of Witwatersrand University, says woman have a surface temperature three degrees lower than that of men, and that's why they have such icy feet. Wyndham says there is no major difference between the reaction of the two sexes to cold, but studies have shown women do not stand up to extreme temperature conditions as well as men.

Newspapermen Honored at Denver Meeting

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — A Denver newspaperman and a Montana journalism school dean were honored Friday night as outstanding journalism alumni of the University of Colorado.

The two are John W. Buchanan, assistant city editor of The Denver Post, and Dr. Nathan B. Blumberg, dean of the Montana State University School of Journalism.

Citations to both were presented by Dean Charles T. Duncan of the CU School of Journalism at a dinner during the university's annual Colorado Newspaper Conference.

Before joining the Post in 1946, Buchanan was with The Boulder Daily Camera for six years. He covered City Hall for the Post for nearly 15 years and has served on general assignment, covering as well the legislature and a number of special projects.

Buchanan, a 1940 graduate, was cited as a "trusted, throughly capable newspaper man who can handle any task in the city room."

He was assistant city editor of the Washington Post and Times-Herald and an editorial writer for the Lincoln, Neb., Star. Before going to Montana in 1956, Blumberg taught journalism at the University of Nebraska and Michigan State University.

He is author of a book, "One-Pary Press?"

Scholarships were awarded to six CU juniors majoring in journalism. They include Ronald Elbon, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Elbon of Grand Junction; Linda Joyner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Joyner of Greeley, and Kathleen E. Tiemann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Tiemann of Greeley.

CSU Receives $39,000 NSF Grant

Colorado State University has received a $39,344 National Science Foundation grant to establish eight graduate traineeships in engineering. W. H. Braconier, dean of the graduate school and director of the program, announced this week. This initial grant covers the first year of the program.

Describing the new NSF training program as much broader and more practical than previous ones, Dean Braconier said that both the students and institutions benefit from it.

"It is primarily a pump-priming effort directed toward qualified students who otherwise could not afford to continue their education in graduate school," he said. The NSF stipulates that 80 per cent of the trainees must be in their first year of graduate work, with the remaining 20 per cent at either the intermediate or terminal levels.

Each institution participating in the program — four of which are in Colorado — receives a cost-of-education allowance for each trainee. This fund not only covers the student's tuition, research expenses, and other charges incurred, but it also supports and strengthens the engineering education and research at the university.

At CSU, the grant provides for five graduate traineeships in civil engineering and one each in agricultural, electrical and mechanical engineering. A trainee may be reappointed each year, but for no more than six years, until he receives his doctoral degree. As the first year level trainees advance to intermediate and terminal status, new first level traineeships will be selected.

First year level trainees, of which CSU will have six, will receive yearly stipends of $2,400. This level includes students who either have never been in or have not completed their first year in graduate school.

Intermediate trainees will receive $2,600 a year. These students have completed one year in graduate school, but require more than one additional year to complete their doctoral degree requirements.

Terminal students who will receive their doctoral degree within one year, will be given a stipend of $2,600 a year.

Game Boundries Enlarged by Game and Fish

A series of changes in Game Management Unit boundaries adopted by the Colorado Game, Fish & Parks Commission, April 2, may affect national parks and monuments and Indian reservation lands within Colorado. The action was deemed necessary to facilitate game management in the areas.

By extending Management Unit boundaries to include these Federal lands, the commission, in effect, declared them as possible open hunting areas during any legally established hunting season.

Game Management Units 18 and 20 were extended to the Continental Divide and thus take in Rocky Mountain National Park. Dinosaur National Monument in northwestern Colorado now becomes portions of Units 1, 2, and 10 following Thursday's action.

The Colorado National Monument will be part of Unit 40. Game Management Units 63 and 74 are extended to the Gunnison River and includes Black Canyon of the Gunnison National Monument.

Great Sand Dunes National Monument is added to Unit 82. Management Units 72, 73, 74, 75, 77 and 78 are extended to the New Mexico state line thus admitting Mesa Verde National Park and the extensive Southern Ute Indian Reservation.

The responsibility for closing the Federal lands to hunting during an open hunting season now falls to the appropriate Federal agency in charge.

New officers for 1964 - 1965 were elected by the state Game, Fish & Parks Commission at their April 3 meeting. Melvern Renfrow, Montrose, was chosen as President to succeed Parker Sooter of Alamosa. A. P. Hann, Denver was named Vice President; and W. B. Hendricks, Burlington, will serve as Secretary.

Pikes Peak Region Yesterdays

By DORA FOSTER

My contribution to this column will be taken from an old long-neglected box of stuff that has seen little daylight for 10 years. A friend who thought it might be of interest to the Ford Motor Co. sent it to them, but it came back, as I thought it would, as not wanted. The reason given was that Ford had more advertisements already than it could possibly use. So I got no Ford car out of that deal. The column is just as I wrote it, using the facts but changing names of my friends. Here it is:

After thinking to call my letter to you this week "Foster's Ford Findings," it came to me that all of my friends who drive Cadillacs, Chryslers or Lincolns would turn away and say to themselves, "That does not interest me." Well, maybe it will not, but at any rate I believe I'll stick to my subject and talk about Fords since I have never owned any other kind of a car, and if I own this one long enough it is possible that Mr. Henry's grandson will send me a new one.

My Model A car reached me from the factory in March of 1929 and as yet the sheriff has not ordered me off the road. All the larger and more expensive autos pass me on the hills, or try to, but since they do not always succeed I can still hold my head high and push my foot down a little harder till those big car drivers drop back and say words under their breath that might not look pretty in print. I especially have the best of those big long fellows while rounding the hill on the Eighth Street Cutoff, otherwise known as Mesa Boulevard. Hope the county eliminates that dangerous curving spot, since their new cars have not as yet been equipped with eyes that can see around curves.

I ride alone more often than I used to when my car was new and I'll tell you why.

For weeks before I had possessed an automobile I spent many a happy hour planning what I would do if and when I had it. One of my pet car worries was the fact that I had to stand on cold street corners loaded with packages, waiting for an occasional streetcar home, while my friends and neighbors drove past me in their motor vehicles, sometimes picking me up but sometimes driving swiftly past to reach home a half hour or so ahead of me.

If I had a car, I'd say to the retreating [illegible], I'd stop and say, "Jump in, neighbor."

After I had purchased my car did I do all these things? I'll tell you.

Since I was timid about learning to drive, I bought a coupe, as it seemed the shortest of them all. I felt confident that I could manage the front wheels but the part of the car that was coming behind bothered me and it seemed best to have as little trail end as it was possible to have and keep within a Webster definition of a complete car — even though I realized that it would limit the number of passengers I might carry.

As soon as I had learned to keep Fordie in the road I offered to take my friends riding. At first they accepted with somewhat extravagant caution, but later the word "caution" was not in their lexicon.

So we went, all of us, every neighbor in the block, and some friends who lived at the other end of town, it being no trouble at all for me to drive over after them, "as you have a car, you know." Alas, how often since have I heard those very words.

Often, after finishing my errands down town, and when ready to start home, I'd drive slowly past the Busy Corner, package-laden groups waiting for streetcars, scan their faces and maybe once in a dozen times recognize someone who lived at my end of town. I'd stop my Fordie, open the window and beckon or halloo to them. Six other people would think I was calling to them and finally, after the impatient car just behind had sounded a horn, the designated passenger would come gratefully to my car, tumble headlong in and slam the poor innocent door, or else try to close it by the wrong catch.

Then, remembering again my good resolution of former days, and purposing to take my friends to their very doorstep, I would, in numerous instances, have to drive up the hill, around the back of Whitlock's summer cottage or else I'd take that high road that comes out from the old pasture, and bump along positing my still-grateful neighbor at his front door. Then I'd drive on home, feeling that I was a "good fellow." I was carrying out my good intentions to favor my carless friends.

Sundays saw my most interesting ventures. Mrs. Green suggested an all-day drive into the mountains. "Very good," I said, "you plan the luncheon and I furnish the car."

"I'm not good at planning the luncheon," she replied, "and I'd rather you did that. Just anything you take will be all right with me." Or, if I parked my car beside a beautiful waterfall in the canons, my passengers would sit in the car and wait expectantly for me to drive on and burn up some more gasoline and oil, not mentioning the tires.

Among the invalids, Mrs. Black said, "I catch cold so easily, my dear. We must keep the windows closed. Can't you signal without putting out your hand?"

Mrs. White said, "Please go slowly around curves, and when we are passing another motor vehicle please go over as far as you can to your side of the road, so I won't feel nervous."

One little sick fussy fellow bounced about in the seat of the car as if he had springs in his new overcoat. "You should drive in a rodeo," he remarked.

On bringing my club friends home I am often asked to drive through the business section of the city, that they might pick up a head of lettuce or a bit of meat for dinner that night. If parking is a little difficult at that time of late afternoon they say, "I won't be but a few minutes. Just drive around the block. I'll be right out."

One dear little old lady, who has more of this world's goods than I can ever hope to have, often asks me to take her to her club sessions and as she is backing painfully out of the little car she smiles pleasantly and says, "If you had a little box hanging near the door here, I'd drop in a nickel."

One day she said, "Just to let you know that I appreciate your taking me to my club every other week, I am going to give you a nice stretch of chicken wire that I have here and if you will come up some day I'll let you have it."

I went after that chicken wire (which I did not need nor want) next morning to find that it was under the house and reached by a cat hole, maybe a dog hole, near the kitchen door. But in I went with my erstwhile passenger holding the flashlight at the hole and found the wire was a stretch about ten feet long but attached at one end to a post. In trying to bring that combination out to the daylight I got it stuck in the hole and after leaving some skin behind [illegible], I crawled out and helped my hostess-passenger hunt for a pair of pincers. I was determined to have that wire. After crawling in again and experiencing some perspiration, since it was pretty warm under that house, I finally persuaded the post to let go and came out bearing my prize, triumphantly railing it up to get it into the Ford "Crazy." I said to myself, "You don't really want this but it is the first thing she has ever offered and you're determined to take it home."

Today whenever I look at that ten feet of chicken wire which I have laid over my garden to keep the dogs off, I think, "That is a Ford Finding."

I may not have given you any good reasons for my driving around so much alone but one reason is that my car has gotten so old and looks so out of date that none of my former fine friends would ride with me even if I should ever ask them.

$4.6 Million Highway Program Announced

A [illegible] National Forest highway program in Wyoming and Colorado was announced this week by Regional [illegible].

The program [illegible] and the [illegible] highway [illegible] has been allocated [illegible] projects in Wyoming and [illegible] on six forest highways in Colorado. The projects are decided upon at joint meetings of State Highway representatives, the Bureau of Public Roads and the Forest Service.

In Wyoming construction, a [illegible] contract will be let for grading, base and surfacing of 17 miles of U.S. Highway 14 between Granite Creek and Shell Creek, plus a bridge across Shell Creek in Bighorn National Forest.

Another $200,000 for FY 65, plus $500,000 from previous fiscal year funds will result in grading, base and surfacing of highway 130 between Centennial and Saratoga in Medicine Bow National Forest.

The largest project in Colorado calls for $700,000 to complete grading of 3.5 miles from the top of McClure Pass to the Marble Road near the Pitkin-Gunnison county line. This work on State Highway 133 is in White River National Forest.

In the same forest is the grading of 5.3 miles plus remedial slide control work between Marvine and Phippsburg. This requires $200,000 from FY 65, plus $385,000 from the previous year.

The Dolores-Rico stretch on Highway 145 is to receive $520,000 for 3 miles of grading, subbase and a bridge, plus 6.6 miles of base and surfacing work in San Juan National Forest.

Work on Cumbres Pass, including grading and a bridge across the Conejos River on Highway 17 in Rio Grande National Forest, has been earmarked for $380,000.

A fifth Colorado forest highway project calls for $370,000 on the Cedaredge-Mesa portion of Highway 65 where 7 miles will be rehabilitated. This is in the Grand Mesa-Uncompahgre National Forest.

Paving will be completed at a cost of $230,000 on 10.6 miles of Highway 7 between Lyons and Riverside in Roosevelt National Forest.

THE FRIENDLY WILLOWS

Have you noticed the willows and the pretty nooks where they grow? There are many folks perhaps who have not been attracted by the common lowly tree and have failed to see its real beauty. There is something about willow's really artistic and ornamental beauty that they always appear cheerful, happy and friendly and so spring-like, snuggling close together along streams and rivers which of course is their natural habitat, they add charm to the scene wherever they might be. At this season of the year, as you walk or drive through the canons or on country highways, your attention is directed toward the willows, which like the streams. Have you noticed the different coloring? The twigs of some are bright yellow, some red, gray and some have a tinge of blue, especially is this soft color effect quite noticeable as you drive up Ute Pass. They present a beautiful sight, clustered along the winding mountain stream as they wend their way through grassy meadows.

Willows are classed by some authorities as a near tree and others as a real tree, some varieties growing to be 80 feet so they deserve the name tree. There are at least 34 species and perhaps more that grow in North America. The common tree willow in our region is the peach leaved (Salixamygdaloides) closely related to Black Willow (SalixWrightii) of plains of Easter Colorado which has narrower leaves. The narrow leaf (Salix Pexigua) you know rivers, Irrigation ditches, and by the gray effect it gives to tall large patches along the rivers, irrigation ditches and mountain streams. The blue stem willow (Salixirrota) this is our beloved (Pussy Willow) the one we rave about and attract thousands of people in early spring, for their soft gray blossoms.

The willows will follow the mountain stream as far in the mountains as possible. There are several species of Alpine willows growing from above timberline to the top of high peaks. These are more like tiny bushes at the summit. In the early spring, the willows give forth a peculiar sweet fragrance as you walk among them. The willows are easily grown and have roots which grow a long distance through moist soil and bind it with a network of fibers preventing stream banks from being torn away. They are useful on the prairies as they are fast growers and serve to protect other trees from wind. Willows are suggestive of some of our favorite haunts along rivers or mountain streams, hunting rare wildflowers. Now with spring our thoughts are turned to the pussy willows along with the first wild flowers. The Easter daisy, a quaint and charming little plant is making its appearance, growing very close to the ground, crowded together and having a purplish tint with yellow centers. They wish protection from cold wind. This is different from the Easter lily which is white. Watch out for the rare beauties.

First Aid Classes Planned For Black Forest

Red Cross Standard and Advanced First Aid classes are planned for the Black Forest area and will be taught by a husband and wife team, Mr and Mrs. John C. Grier, Red Cross volunteer instructors of extensive experience.

The classes will be held weekly at the Black Forest Community Church, starting on April 15th at 7:15 p.m.

All interested persons in or out of the Black Forest area are requested to call the Pikes Peak Chapter house at 632-3563 to register. With the oncoming summer season and it's heavy incidence of both major and minor accidents, this is a good chance to learn how to save lives and lessen the severity of injuries, both within the family and for others.

As always, those interested in either of the above classes in the Colorado Springs area should call the same number. As soon as enough applications are received, classes will be started.

The underfoot comfort associated with carpeting is highlighted this year in deep, soft textures, the American Carpet Institute reports.

Governor Speaks at Women's Conference

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gov. John Love of Colorado spoke at a brunch Saturday honoring Republican governors and sponsored by the 12th annual Republican Women's Conference.

Gov. John H. Chafee of Rhode Island also spoke briefly.

The two were among nine attending the Republican Governors Association which Friday blasted the handling of the Bobby Baker case in the Senate.

By suspending an investigation into the outside affairs of Baker, former secretary to Senate Democrats, the governors said, the Senate is guilty of "an affront to the nation."

Wallace Seen as Leader For States Rights Cause

EDITOR'S NOTE — Gov. George C. Wallace won nearly 25 per cent of the votes in Wisconsin's presidential preference primaries with his stand as a militant supporter of states rights and foe of integration. Here is an Associated Press survey of how some Southern leaders view the result.

By DON MCKEE

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Relishing the role of interested bystanders, Southerners generally applauded the vote polled by Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama in his Wisconsin politicking.

Reaction was varied. Comments from about 35 political leaders and newspaper editors in an Associated Press survey included:

"A wild goose chase."

"A political revolution."

"A reaction to Negro militancy."

But most of the spokesmen viewed Wallace's showing as an indication of widespread opposition to the civil rights bill. Wallace got nearly 25 per cent of the presidential primary vote in a race with Gov. John W. Reynolds of Wisconsin, who carried the banner for President Johnson.

On his return to Montgomery, Wallace said the vote was "for the people of Alabama and the people throughout the country who stand up for constitutional government."

He did not say anything directly about racial issues which catapulted him into the national spotlight with his doorway stand against University of Alabama desegregation last year. But he plugged for support of an independent elector slate in Alabama.

Said the Montgomery Advertiser:

"The excursion to the far north by the little Alabama giant has shaken the Democratic party and alerted the Republican party to the possibility of a new national mood."

The Mobile Press called it a "political revolution. A defeat for President Lyndon Johnson and the ultra-liberal crowd to which he constantly caters."

Roy Mahall, Alabama's Democratic chairman, said the vote should show how "all the people felt about the civil rights issue."

Wallace's vote was viewed as reaction to the civil rights bill by both the Birmingham News speculated that "a white bloc may have come into being finally."

In Mississippi, Louisiana, Virginia and Arkansas there also were warm words for the Alabama governor.

"All Mississippi is thrilled," Gov. Paul Johnson wired Wallace.

Said former Gov. Ross Barnett, who with Johnson barred a Negro temporarily from the University of Mississippi: "It was a great victory for constitutional government, states rights and home rule."

Residents of Meridian, Miss., started a fund-raising drive for Wallace's next excursions into Maryland and Indiana.

Gov. Orval Faubus of Arkansas, who led the array of gubernatorial resistance to integration in 1957, said Wallace made an amazing showing.

Dr. Wayne Babbitt of Little Rock, a top Republican in Arkansas, said the Wallace showing indicated people in the North are not satisfied with the civil rights bill.

PRICE TAGS ATTACHED — David Schumm, a worker at Goodwill Industries, shows Frank Clark how he attaches price tags to garments for sale in the organization's stores. Frank, who attends Midland School, recently visited Goodwill Industries to see how the clothing he and other School District 11 pupils will collect during the Bundle Days drive, April 13-17, is processed.

Children Give Clothes to Bundle Drive

In 1963 children in District 11 schools collected enough used clothing to fill over 900 large bags with a gross weight of nearly nine tons. This year pupils are out to break that record during the annual Bundle Days drive, this week.

The discarded but wearable clothing will be divided among the Goodwill Industries and the Salvation Army Men's Social Center of Colorado Springs and the Save the Children Federation that operates in the United States and in free nations overseas. All three organizations rely heavily upon donations of used clothing to carry on their programs of relief and rehabilitation.

The Save the Children Federation was organized in 1932 and conducted clothing drives for 22 years. It helps Indian children and children and adults in the mountain regions of Kentucky, Tennessee, Virginia, and West Virginia where chronic unemployment has been a problem.

SCF operates over 100 clothing centers where people can obtain used garments and shoes at very low cost. The organization believes the small charge helps to maintain the dignity of the people in need. Clothing is also distributed without charge to encourage community self-help projects. National sponsors of SCF include many well-known Americans in business, politics, and the arts.

Donations of clothing to Goodwill Industries help provide work for 45 severely handicapped persons who are unable to work in a normal industrial situation.

In addition to helping these physically handicapped persons, Goodwill Industries sells good used clothing at low prices in its three Colorado Springs stores. Money from the clothing sales is used to pay operating expenses and a small wage to workers.

The Salvation Army Men's Social Center works with mentally and emotionally handicapped men in need of psychological and spiritual guidance to adjust to society. The Center provides its services to homeless men and parolees of the state prisons and state hospital.

In exchange for work in the Center's shops where they repair and renovate clothing and household items, the men receive room and board and a small gratuity to take care of their personal needs.

Residents of School District 11 are asked to look through their closets and storage areas for clothing they no longer need and send it to the nearest school.

Switchmen in Roseville, Calif., Face Revolt

ROSEVILLE, Calif. (AP) — Two hundred and fifty members of the Roseville Switchmen's Union voted Friday night to fire their officers who had called a meeting to urge a return to work during President Johnson's 15-day railroad strike postponement period.

J. Frank Young, chairman of Switchmen's Union of North America Local 263, said the vote was overwhelming following a motion from the floor to remove him and four other officers.

Young said he and the other officers immediately left the meeting. He said he wasn't sure who was in charge of the rebel movement.

Young said the switchmen, employes of Southern Pacific Railway, were dissatisfied when he "instructed, requested and advised" them to return to work. He said they apparently planned to press for further work stoppages along the SP line.

"The men obviously feel they have a just cause," Young told The Associated Press. "I can hardly feel bitter with my fellow switchmen. But, of course, I'm not too happy about it."

A federal injunction was issued Friday in San Francisco to prevent repetition of unsanctioned work stoppages of switchmen at five Southern Pacific yards.

The injunction was obtained by management attorneys after several hundred members of the Switchmen's Union of North America reported sick Friday. The stoppage affected yards of Roseville, Oakland, Tracy, Martinez and Stockton, all in northern California.

The stoppage was a violation of "the President's agreement for continued national handling of the work-rules dispute." Federal Judge William T. Sweigert granted the injunction at his home. It applies only in California.

Civil Rights Now Political Reality, Scientist Declares

Editor's Note: Dr. Phineas Bernstein of Colorado Springs has contributed the following story, of a book which treats "the development of civil rights and human relations in modern America." The subject is timely, in that the Civil Rights debate currently is being waged in the hall of the U.S. Congress.

The book, which traces the development of civil rights, is entitled "The Quest for the Dream," and is authored by John P. Roche, published by Macmillan at $5.95. The copyright is by the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, which explains the objectives of the book for civil rights in the following terms:

A foremost American political scientist declares in this book that the people of the United States — despite the grim aspects of the racial situation today — have made such radical changes in their attitudes toward civil rights and liberties in the past fifty years, that they have brought about one of "the greatest breakthroughs in human freedom" in history.

John P. Roche, chairman of the Department of Politics at Brandeis University, writes that the United States has managed, in a short historical span, to make a living reality of what had been, until the 20th century, only an abstract hope for millions of American minority group members.

His book is based on his year-long study of historical developments in the human rights field, commissioned by the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith as part of its fiftieth anniversary observance.

In showing how far the nation has come, Dr. Roche recalls that Woodrow Wilson was a Southern gentleman by origin and belief "who accepted racial segregation as a fact of life." Social scientists at the turn of the century and later, "nurtured race theories, concepts built around the hypothesis that there were innate racial differences which affected intelligence, health, and even honesty and diligence." He quotes H. L. Mencken as writing in 1910: "The brain of the Negro is not fitted for the higher forms of mental effort; his ideals . . . remain those of a clown."

The early days of the movie industry too, reflected benighted and incredibly harsh attitudes toward Jews, he says. "Jew comedy" was long a staple of the young industry with Jews depicted in a fashion later adopted by Julius Streicher and the Nazis. Savage race riots of the 1910's and the adoption of municipal ordinances in midwestern towns barring Negores from residence are other examples of prevailing attitudes of extreme prejudice.

Nevertheless, there was a measure of reform in the air until World War I, he declares — a war which served "to kill off progress in human rights for a decade." In view of all this, he says, it is remarkable that immigrants who suffered prejudice were never really alienated from their belief in the American dream.

By the time of Franklin Roosevelt, American intergroup and interpersonal attitudes were undergoing a basic change, Dr. Roche states, and, "it was FDR's destiny to preside over the reconstruction of the American community in an epoch of fearful crises."

"It was Roosevelt's genius that, at a time when the sharpening of ideological conflict was disrupting society after society, he succeeded in muting the ideological thrusts in the United States and, indeed, encouraged a process of social reconciliation from which the United States emerged united as never before," he finds.

He cites the appointment of Frank Murphy to the Supreme Court in 1940 as "signifying the coming of age of civil liberties" for it meant that while "the Yahoos were still in the hills, capable of occasional fierce raids, institutionally speaking, their back was broken: civil liberties and minority rights had become part of American public policy."

By World War II, attitudes had so improved that there was no mass reaction to Americans of German background as there had been in World War I, he says. "So Wagnerian opera was sung (during World War II), children learned German in school, sauerkraut defied transformation to 'liberty cabbage' and daschunds walked the streets with impunity," he says. He also describes in detail, "the major exception to self-restraint and the absence of hysterical chauvinism in World War II — 'our worst wartime mistake' — the treatment of the Japanese-American community after Pearl Harbor."

Dr. Roche believes that, conversely, the attitudes of minority groups have also changed drastically in their efforts to fight for self-defense.

"No Jewish group would today attempt to bar 'The Merchant of Venice' although fifty years ago it was a target of Jewish agencies," he says.

"When the issue arose over a TV performance of 'The Merchant' in 1962, for example, the Anti-Defamation League reiterated the stand it has taken in recent years that 'a work of great artistic quality cannot be subject to censorship.' What must be recalled here is that it was every man for himself for minorities in the United States of 1910. There was no civil liberties tradition; censorship was taken for granted in a society run on Victorian principles of conspicuous, if deceptive morality. Jews were on their own in a hostile universe, and, if their methods strike us today as less than utopian, it might be noted — that they were not living in a democratic utopia (but) a jungle."

Dr. Roche says that the transformation in public ideals has permitted Negro mobilization for full freedom in "an atmosphere of public concern that simply did not exist fifty, twenty-five or even ten years ago."

"The bravery and dedication of Negro protesters is not at issue but bravery and dedication cannot alone master the repressive instruments that modern technology has devised. The fact is that the nation will not permit the suppression of Negro protest, will not permit the white supremacists their traditional power of life and death over Negro citizens," he concludes.

Dr. Roche adds that despite lamentations about "mass culture" and other aspects of current society, the United States has achieved a level of individual freedom that "hundreds of millions of human beings can only conceive of as a remote, impossible aspiration."

"This accomplishment stands as an eternal monument to those fearless dreamers who, despite their bruises and their scars, never lost their faith in the ultimate decency of the American people or their vision of a great pluralistic, rambunctious community brining to fruition on the greatest scale in human history the ideals of brotherhood and human freedom," he adds.

Flower and Garden Show to Be Patterned After Similar Shows in Larger Cities

With Colorado Springs' first Flower and Garden Show set for next June 25 and 26 at the City Auditorium, residents of the Pikes Peak area will be participating in an activity which has become more and more important all over the country.

These shows have become a great institution in the United States, from the huge International Flower Show held annually for years in the New York Coliseum to the five-year-old Denver Garden Show which closed its doors last Sunday after a record attendance.

The larger shows such as the ones in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, San Francisco, Chicago, Oakland and others are usually held in March. They are tremendous in scope, the one in New York covering three floors of the enormous Coliseum. In 1962 203,250 persons saw the Chicago show, which covered 220,000 square feet in McCormack Place.

Individual gardens on display in the New York show have run as large as 2,500 square feet, and have used as much as 2,500 watts of electricity.

In the great California shows last year $300,000 was spent on background staging. In contrast to this the famous show held annually at Chelsea, England, places less emphasis on settings. All attention is given to showing masses of flowers of unbelievable beauty and perfection. The show is housed in large circus tents.

The basis for this widespread interest in flower and garden shows lies only partly in the public's increased enthusiasm for horticulture, according to Mrs. Morris Esmiol, chairman of the Colorado Springs Show. People in the Pikes Peak region and throughout the U. S. have more leisure and a growing desire to use it toward improving their environment. Beauty, as a goal toward which active effort is possible, has suddenly been discovered, as witness the increasing number of organizations like SPABA and the new Horticultural Arts Society in Colorado Springs and all over the country, as well as garden clubs, nurserymen's associations, and others.

The purpose of the Colorado Springs Flower and Garden Show, which is sponsored by the Broadmoor Garden Club, is to give the whole community a chance to participate in this cooperative adventure in beauty, according to Mrs. Esmiol.

Eleven of Colorado Springs' twelve garden clubs will take part in the show, along with many other organizations. Although nothing will be sold at the show, many commercial firms will exhibit.

The Flower and Garden Show will be held in the Colorado Springs City Auditorium, from 11 a.m. to 8:30 p.m., June 25 and 26. Admission will be 50 cents to adults, with children 12 and under admitted free.

Cascade Ave. which was restored recently by the National Society of Colonial Dames in the State of Colorado. Left to right are Mrs. Polly Ruhtenberg, Mrs. Albert Horn and Mrs. Robert Baskerville admiring an heirloom cloth which belonged to the late Mrs. Charles Tutt Sr., brought to Colorado Springs in 1880. The antique cloth originally belonged to the late Mrs. Charles Tutt Sr., and was brought to Colorado Springs by her in 1880. The Victorian theme of the table will be and "After The Symphony Supper," as it might have been arranged in the home of the late Maj. McAllister, whose home at 423 N. Cascade Ave. has been restored by the Dames.

The Victorian table will be one of the many displays entered in competition by prominent women's clubs in the unique Tournament-of-Tables, which will be held in the Terrace Room of the Antlers Hotel, between the hours of 11 a.m. and 8 p.m. April 22 and 23. Tickets are one dollar and may be purchased now from any of the competing clubs, or at the door when the show opens. Organ Music to Enhance Tournament-of-Tables

Conversational music by two talented young artists "Bob and Bob Organists" will add gaiety to the Symphony Guild-sponsored "Tournament - of - Tables" when it is held April 22 and 23 in the Terrace Room of the Antlers Hotel.

The two organists, Bob Zabel and Bob Bates are the best of friends and have shared the program before in numerous public appearances. Both are young men but as Bob Zadel, who is in his early thirties, humorously remarked.

"Its natural for people to refer to 15-year-old Bates as the "Young Bob" of the pair, but its surprising how much my friends relish the chance to call me 'Old Bob' at every opportunity."

In the gala Tournament-of-Tables which will be open to the public between the hours of 11 a.m. and 8 p.m. April 22 and 23, twenty-two prominent women's clubs will compete for prizes in artistic table settings. Tickets to view the displays are being sold by all competing clubs and by the Symphony Guild, or may be purchased at the door when the show opens.

A Gulbransen spinet organ is being furnished for the event by Music and Television Center. Organist Bob Zabel is a graduate of Joliet Conservatory of Music, Joliet, Ill., attended the Chicago Conservatory of Music and was tutored by Joseph Lyons, Leo Terry and Kay McAbee. He came to Colorado Springs in 1959 after serving as staff organist for Paramount Theatre and B and K Theatre chains in Chicago, and is now associated with Music and Television Center as staff organist. He has appeared as enteramer before numerous civic groups, and will present a full length concert of popular music at 8 p.m. Tuesday the Chief Theatre pipe organ. He resides with his wife and two-year-old daughter, Pamela Ann, at 2409 Paseo Rd.

Bob Bates is a sophomore at Wasson High School and the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. William Bates, 2138 Pheasant Place. He has appeared before numerous clubs and gave his first full length concert in January at the Reed auditorium of Penrose Hospital. He made his initial appearance as a church organist Easter Sunday when he played for the 8:30 a.m. services at Grace Episcopal Church. A former pupil of Wil Lohrey he is now a student of Dr. Julius Baird.

OPERA GUILD PLANS TABLE SETTING— "Madame Butterfly" is the theme chosen by the Opera Guild for its entry in the Tournament of Tables and pictured above are Mrs. Aiko Sturdivant, right, and Mrs. Crawford Scott, center, discussing arrangements for the event. Mrs. Sturdivant, a native of Japan, has given demonstrations of oriental art for numerous ladies clubs. The Symphony Guild-sponsored Tournament-of-Tables will be held April 22 and 23 at the Antlers Hotel and tickets to view the artistic display are being sold to the public by all competing clubs and by the Symphony Guild. At left is Mrs. D. W. Pettigrew, a member of the committee. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

Miss Carol Wehren registered the guests while the Misses Linda and Phyllis Wehren assisted with the gifts. All are cousins of the bridegroom.

Keep Your Promise!

DEAR ABBY: By the time I was 17 I had broken all the Ten Commandments except "Thou shalt not kill." I got into trouble with a boy and he ran away. The Salvation Army took me in and I had my baby at the Booth Memorial Hospital. I decided to keep my little son. I worked as a waitress to support him. I started going with a kind, sober, hard - working man. I told him the truth about myself right off, but he didn't care. He married me and adopted my 10-month-old son. He treats us grand. I don't deserve this kind of happiness. One thing bothers me. Both my husband and I have dark eyes and dark hair. My son has blue eyes and bright red hair. People keep asking us how come. My husband made me promise I would never tell anyone the boy wasn't his. Why can't I say I was married before and the boy is my first husband's? —HATES TO LIE

DEAR HATES: The boy is LEGALLY your husband's son. Blond and brunette parents can produce red - haired offspring. You owe inquisitive friends nothing. You owe your husband a great deal. Keep mum.

DEAR ABBY: My wife has frequently criticized me for not taking her arm when crossing the street. I say that it's the lady's place to take her escort's arm. All of the pictures I've seen of royalty, or continental personages of good breeding, show the lady taking hold of the gentleman's arm.

I hate to see a great hulk of a man pushing some frail thing around as if she were on casters, or slightly intoxicated. I would appreciate your opinion. —M. K.

DEAR M. K.: The gentleman should offer the lady his arm. If he does not, she may gently take his arm and ask, "May I?"

DEAR ABBY: Roger and I were married only 16 months. We decided that our marriage was a mistake, and since there were no children to consider there was no point in spending the rest of our lives in a loveless marriage. We got a divorce. Am I supposed to return Roger's wedding ring? How about my engagement ring? I put them in my drawer and have no desire to wear them. Would it be improper for me to sell the set? —DIVORCED

DEAR DIVORCED: The wedding ring and engagement ring are yours to do with whatever you wish.

DEAR ABBY: The woman who wrote to say that her husband took over the grocery shopping reminded me that my husband did that trick almost 30 years ago. He got the bright idea that I was too extravagant in the grocery store. He bought all sorts of silly items and overlooked the essentials. I got disgusted, so I went to his shop (he ran a garage) and started ordering the mechanics around. I made a real nuisance of myself because I didn't know a nut from a bolt. My husband got the idea, and gladly promised to stay out of my business if I stayed out of his. —"SILVER THREADS"

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 NT	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Queen of ♡

In the sequence shown above, North's two club bid is artificial and requests his partner to show a biddable four card major suit. South rebid two spades which North cheerfully raised to game.

South won the queen of hearts lead in his hand and laid down the ace-queen of trumps. When East showed out, declarer abandoned the suit temporarily, shifting to king and a small diamond. West discarded on the second lead and the ace won in the dummy. A diamond was returned and East was in with the queen. A heart was led to shorten dummy's trumps. Declarer countered by playing another diamond. West trumped in but could not prevent declarer from taking 10 tricks now.

At the other table, North raised South's opening no trump bid directly to three. Even might have reached the four spade contract, had North chosen a three diamond response for which he had the required 10 points. South could now bid three spades just as a check back on the way to notrump and North, of course, would choose the suit contract.

West opened the deuce of hearts against three notrump. Since this apparently marked him with four of the suit and East with six, declarer felt that if anyone were short in diamonds it would be East. So he cashed the king of diamonds first and, when West showed out on the next lead, the contract was down one.

North contended that his partner should have played spades first but, if East discards properly, South will still have the diamond guess. At four spades he could afford to lose a diamond trick and still make the hand.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Hey, there, Heloise:

Why don't you jump up and down, and holler and pound your desk?

"You" are the one who has made nylon net a household necessity! Those manufacturers will "have" to listen to you! Why don't you tell them? Manufacturer, retailer, or both?

Surely you have heard the same complaint from others by now?

I still pay the same price as usual for each yard of net I buy, but it's such an inferior quality that it just doesn't hold up anymore. Why? —Catherine

Dear Folks:

Manufacturers and retailers do "not" have to listen to me.

They have to listen to "you."

It seems a darn shame when a magnifying glass and a flashlight become necessary shopping equipment- Eh?

I would love to see some woman (besides me) pull out a magnifying glass and inspect something before purchasing it. I actually took a magnifying glass into one store once when purchasing yards of material and they nearly dropped dead. You can bet your bottom dollar that even if you don't know what you are doing or looking for, that the salesman will do a turn-about-face and will "respect" you and probably wonder why his wife never had the gall.

I am floded with complaints (and samples) sent to me about nylon net. I have checked many of your complaints through one of the biggest laboratories and YOU are all correct in your "mad letters" . . . but no one can do anything about it except YOU YOURSELF . . . you are powerful and don't even know it.

Remember the store is there for one purpose. To serve you.

If you do "not" complain about things, the manager will not know that he has been receiving inferior merchandise. He wants to please you, too. If he didn't, he "knows" that he would go out of business.

Since the women are using nylon net for so many items, there have been some inferior grades of it on the market. True, I have been in five different cities recently and bought as much as 60 and 80 yards of net at one time off the "same" counter at the "same" price and brought it home for testing!

When I got home, I put one piece against the other.

Here's what I found.

Some nets have bigger "open meshes" (which means that the "holes" in the the net are "bigger," etc.)

The "open" meshes provide space for oxygen. This type net does "not" lend endurance, and if flame is applied, burning of this type fabric will occur. Neither will this inferior type net hold up for mops, dishrags, pot and pan cleaners, etc. . . . for long.

Pick up a piece of net and "test it yourself." (I can't buy it for you . . . wish I could!) Put one piece of net against the other or on top of the other holes in each bolt of net (Yes, even if it is on the same table and the same price) and "buy the net with the "smallest" holes!" The smaller the holes in the net, the better bargain you will get . . . This is the easiest way I know of to test net yourself without taking along a chemist.

"Don't" buy inferior qualities of anything (unless it's really inexpensive and you can use it, and quality makes no difference to you) "without" comparing it with a better quality "First!" You might just decide to buy a better quality. Oftentimes it's worth the few extra cents you pay.

Don't waste your valuable time making curtains, scouring pads, floor mops, or dish cloths out of inferior net. Your time and energy are valuable.

Only "you," my dear housewife, can complain and demand . . . and get your money's worth.

I wish I had a thousand eyes and a thousand mouths and a thousand arms so I could do this for you. (Wouldn't I look funny with that many arms and impossible, learn to compare eyes and mouths?) Since this is for yourself . . . —Love you all, Heloise

Women Prisoners' Problems Told at AAUW Meeting

Speaking to members of American Association of University Women at their luncheon meeting last Saturday, Mrs. Gertrude A. Davis, superintendent of the Women's Division of the Colorado State Pentitentiary at Canon City, remarked on how like the luncheon guests were her charges at the prison, in some respects, at least.

However, she quickly assured the seventy women present that her charges lacked education-academic, emotional, social. The majority of women prisoners have an eighth grade education or less. The occasional college graduate who arrives in prison arrives there by a more skillful crime-embezzlement, perhaps.

The new women's prison which is being planned will see an increase in efforts for rehabilitation, she said. Each maintenance area will be a vocational area. Very little provision has been made for teaching of skills in present custodial care, although Mrs. Davis is making arrangements for obtaining sewing machines, typewriters, a switch board, and home nursing text books for teaching these skills.

There are ninety women in the state who have been committed to custodial care and when the new prison planned for 90 women opens in 1965, it will be overcrowded. It is, however, expandable to care for 200 women.

Population increase in Coloado in the last two years has been 2½% per year, with crime in the same period increasing 11%.

Mrs. Davis remarked that poisoning used to be a woman's method of committing murder, but poison deaths are decreasing and women are becoming more violent in their methods. She wonders if violence seen in our mass media is decreasing our sensitivity.

The play, "Pied Piper of Hamelin," presented by the Children's Theatre of the University of Denver and sponsored by AAUW, was well accepted by the community with ove 1800 in attendance at the four sell-out performances, thanks in large part to the cooperation of the news media, School Districts 11 and 12, Chinook Book Shop, and the community at large.

A profit of $405 was realized and of this amount, $200 was given to the International Awards Committee, a Fellowships program of AAUW. The Fellowships program is sufficiently important that in mid-February, on the national level American Association of University Women received the award for distinguished service in international education by a private organization from the Institute of International Education.

The citation focused attention on 1000 fellowships presented to American women since 1888, a majority of whom have pursued their studies abroad, and on the awards to 912 women from 61 conutries for study in the United States.

The Colorado Springs Branch of AAUW also voted Saturday to give $100 to the Summer Crossroads program sponsored annually by Colorado College to be used in the 1964 summer program.

The EXCHANGE was only 26 years old when the Myron Stratton Home was completed in 1914!

Winfield Scott Stratton, an ex-carpenter who became a millionaire as a result of the famous Independence Strike, is remembered as a man of deep understanding and compassion for the "plain" people. His will instructed that a home for older people and children be established so that they might live in comfort and dignity. The only qualifications for admittance being their need and that they be residents of El Paso County. The Myron Stratton Home, named for his father, is evidence of these deep feelings and stands as a living memorial to the people he loved.

LONG - LIVED FLOWERS

To keep flowers looking fresh for the longest time, try to pick the blossoms early in the morning or late in the evening when the stems are full of water. Cut the stem base at an angle so they can get more water. Place the flowers in a cool place at night and keep them out of drafts or direct sunlight. If the flowers begin to wilt, recut the stems and plunge them into warm water — 85 to 100 degrees Fahrenheit — to revive them. When cutting rosebuds singe the cut end of the stem with a match and the flower will stay in the bud stage longer.

Helen Corbitt to Discuss Fashions in Food at FAC

Miss Corbitt, now Director of Restaurants for Neiman-Marcus of Dallas, will talk on "Fashions in Foods." The talk at 10:30 a.m. in the theater, is open to the public, with tickets available on a first-come, first-served basis. Price is $1 for Fine Arts Center members and $2 for non-members.

Miss Corbitt is perhaps most widely known for her two cook books, "The Helen Corbitt Cook Book" and the "Pot Luck Cook Book." She is currently working on a third book which promises to be as popular as the first two.

She also writes a bi-weekly food column for the "Houston Post," titled "Kitchen Klatter."

Before joining Neiman-Marcus in 1955, Miss Corbitt had wide spread experience in food management and education. Following graduation from Skidmore College, Miss Corbitt accepted a position at Cornell Medical Center as Administrative Dietitian. She came to Texas from the Medical Center and became an instructor in home economics at the University of Texas.

From there, she became manager of the Houston Country Club, then Director of Foods at Joske's of Houston, and Executive Manager of the Food Department at the Driskill Hotel in Austin.

She is a member of the Board of Directors of Skidmore College in Saratoga Springs, N.Y., Altrusa and of "Confrerie de la Chaine des Rotisseurs," the world's oldest gourmet society.

In 1961, she was selected to receive the Golden Plate Award as Food Service Operator of the Year, the only woman ever to be so honored.

Young Musicians to Be Heard in Artists Concert

Elizabeth Borgen, 17, piano, James Boitos, 17, clarinet, and Joan Zimbelman, 12, piano, have been chosen to represent the Colorado Springs Junior Music Club at the Future Artists Scholarship Fund Concert at the Fine Arts Center Music Room at 8 p.m. May 2.

Honorable mentions were given Don Patterson, 16, who entered both piano and trombone, and who will accompany James Boitos for the concert. Donna Ferguson, 17, soprano, and Anda Zirnitis, 12, piano. Miss Borgen will also appear as guest artist at the April meeting of the Colorado Springs Music Club.

The benefit concert has been initiated to reward a graduating High School student for music accomplishments and Junior Music Club participation, with financial aid to be used for further musical study. Tickets are now available from any club member, or from Mrs. Robert Kushnir, 632-4429, as a $1 donation to the Scholarship Fund.

The judges for the auditions were J. Julius Baird, Musical Director of the Colorado Springs Opera Association and Organist and Music Director of Grace Episcopal Church; Carlton Gamer, Assistant Professor of Music at Colorado College and well known composer; and John Fetler, Music Critic and Director of Music at First Congregational Church.

All contestants were judged on the merits of their six minute performance with only their age, instrument, selections, and number of years of study being known to the judges. Each participant will receive a comment sheet pertaining to their individual performance.

The evening was successful, both from the point of view of the judges and the contestants. It proved to be an excellent opportunity for learning under the extreme condition of close competition. High interest was shown by the number of participants and the solid preparation by the contestants and the teachers for this event. Most important was the display of fine talent and promise of the contestants. The development of many of the students was considered by the judges to be well worth watching and encouraging, and gave indication of an excellent musical future for Colorado Springs.

Those auditioning were Christine Kleager, Kathy Jones, Patrice Newman, Shirley McCumber, Corinne Parise, Laurence Dickinson, Joan Zimbelman, James Boitos, Fred Radke, Victor Evans, Kirk Petre, Elizabeth Borgen, Don Patterson, Kathy Haskins, Margaret Tuilis, Steve Kushnir, Carlotta Card, Anda Zirnitis, Richard Bradley, Diane J. Adams, Tom Applegate, Donna Ferguson, and Don Carlson. The teachers represented were: Max Lanner, Shirley Shaffer, Dean DeLaney, Ben Gahart, Mr. De Witt, Velte Gravitis, Margaret Smith, Alfred Charley, Mrs. Hemus, Richard Maag, Evelyn Hamilton, and H. C. Thorpe.

It is the sincere hope of Junior Music Club that the Future Artists Auditions and the Scholarship Concert and Fund may become an annual event as well as a source of pride in the community. Anyone wishing to receive further information and to contribute to the Scholarship Fund, may contact Mrs. Robert Kushnir, Junior Music Club Counselor, 632-4429.

UNFINISHED FINISHES

If you have an unfinished room that you can't afford to complete right now, try using this method temporarily. Get large cardboard cartons such as those which contain mattresses and cut them into large sheets. Tack the cardboard all over the wall. Cover the seams with inch and a half strips of finished wood you can get at a lumber plant. Paint all over. The walls will look well and will last for quite a while with proper care. When the time comes to do a complete finishing job just pull down the cardboard.

PUNCHY

NEW YORK (UPI) — A lot of punch-makers have difficulty chilling their punches without making them watery. Home economists report the secret is to mix the base well in advance and let it stand at room temperature for an hour or two to ripen and blend. Then, let it chill in the refrigerator for at least an hour before pouring it into the punch bowl.

When ready to serve, pour the mixture over as large a block of ice as your punch bowl will accommodate. The larger the block, the less dilution of the drink.

"National YWCA Week gives us in Colorado Springs an opportunity again to demonstrate to its friends some of the work we are doing," she added. College Choir To Present Final Concert

"Distinguished singing;" "Floating, flowing tones, clear and very much alive, melding in perfect tune, created sounds of great beauty;" "A near-perfect blend of voices, with bright even brilliant articulation;" "The spellbound audience scarcely breathed" — such were the critics' reviews of the concert series given by the Colorado College choir last week during the 6,000-mile spring tour.

This afternoon at 4 p.m. the choir will give its final performance, for the city of Colorado Springs, in Shove Chapel on the college campus.

The choir, under the direction of Prof. Donald Jenkins, departed March 26 and returned Thursday. The tour included concerts in Indianapolis, Pittsburgh, New York City, Detroit, and Chicago, as well as six other cities. Friday evening the group sang in Denver. The trip was marked by rave reviews and a feverish pace, as eleven concerts were given in as many days, officials said.

Prof. Donald Jenkins, who conducts the entire program without a score, is a graduate of Oberlin Conservatory of Music and holds a master's degree in choral conducting from the Juilliard School of Music in New York City. He is director of the choirs and Opera Workshop at The Colorado College. This past December he conducted the 150-voice Christmas Choir and chamber orchestra in a presentation of Handel's "Dettingen Te Deum;" more recently he led the College Madrigal Choir in the first American performance of Alessandro Scarlatti's "Mass in E Minor."

The major works of this afternoon's program are J. S. Bach's 'Motet No. I, "Sing Ye To The Lord," for two four-part choirs, and the difficult and dissonant Opus 13: Friede Auf Erden by Arnold Schonberg. Critic Walter Whitworth of the Indianapolis News called the choir's performance of the Bach motet "little short of magnificent;" the Schonberg, he said, was "strangely beautiful and superbly sung."

Also on the program are Giuseppi Verdi's romantic and flowing setting of the Pater Noster, and the early 17th century Psalm 116 of Johann Schein. Other composers represented are Oldroyd, Lotti, and Biordi. The concert ends with a series of Easter carols and Negro Spirituals.

The program, to which the public is cordially invited, will conclude at 5:15. There is no admission charge.

Arena Players Set Reading Date for Monday

Arena Players, Inc., who will present the melodrama at the Cliff House this summer, announced a second date for readings and casting.

The new date is Monday. The readings will be held at 2824 N. Hancock Ave. The time will be 7:30 p.m.

James Moore, newly appointed director for the Manitou Springs location, said, "We find that we have a shortage of men trying out. All who qualify should attend the readings on Monday.

"We need people who can sing, dance, act, etc., but especially we need people who are enthusiastic and want to entertain," he said.

"We are always looking for new talent and this is a good opportunity for anyone who is interested in a "summer stock type of operation," Moore continued.

Rehearsals for the production will begin this week.

11—SOME NOTES ON TAKING NOTES

By THE READING LABORATORY, INC.

Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Time your reading of this column and compare your speed with that indicated at the end. The expected speed assumes a daily five per cent improvement.

Each student has his own system for taking notes from reading. Now there is a really loose statement! System implies intelligent planning and ordering, so let's rather say that each student takes notes and most need a system. We'll answer three questions here: when to take notes, why take notes, how to take notes.

WHEN SHOULD YOU TAKE NOTES? During thorough reading. In a certain sense you already took notes in the process of self-quizzing following prereading. They were in question form but they were notes. Your real note-taking, however, accompanies the thorough reading. That answers WHEN.

WHY SHOULD YOU TAKE NOTES? To improve your learning during and after reading and to retain your learning.

How does note-taking improve your learning? By involving more of you. First the eye saw the words and phrases, then the mind translated them into knowledge. That's one learning process. When you take notes in your own words, other muscles are engaged in transcribing what the mind has cast in another way. The mind is involved in two different ways; it is both producing and reproducing. How note-taking helps you to retain is obvious: you have something to save which you actually wrote— your understanding of the subject.

Don't ever make taking notes which you can file away be a substitute for memory. You can have a stack of notes four feet high at the end of your school career and it may be worth only the going price of old paper.

Another point in this connection. One author will cover as much of a subject area as he wants; he may not do all you want. So you will be reading other books in this field. Good. Whether you thoroughly read them or skip and skim through them, you'll have material to supplement the notes you have from the first book. Include the new notes in the proper place with the old notes, and you have more than either author. Your note-taking will reveal points that have to be strengthened and points that have not been covered. You are now motivated to complete those notes by further reading.

HOW TO TAKE NOTES

First, distinguish the useful from the useless, then the more important from the less important. Your clear purpose, prereading, self-quizzing and skipping and skimming make this simple.

Second, write the note fully enough so you'll understand it a year from now, and write it in ink.

Third, use only one side of the filing card or paper. Further reading will give you additional notes, and you want them in the proper place.

We recommend filing cards for note-taking and notebooks for summarizing. Notes on the same subject, taken from other books, may easily be placed in the appropriate place in the pile. If you prefer the notebook then be sure to leave space where you feel further notes are forthcoming.

Finally, you should have some way of recording the source of your notes. Here's one system you can adapt to your preferences. The opening card lists the title and author of each book. For each title, make up a code number. On the following cards include the code number of the book plus where the information was found. This makes later reference easy.

Above all, write all notes in your own words.

You should have read this column in 68 seconds.

India - Pakistan Talks May Fail

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—A five-day effort by India and Pakistan to negotiate their way out of a tense confrontation on their common frontier ended Saturday in an impasse.

Informed sources said the home ministers of both nations in long talks agreed only on one substantial point—that another conference should be held, this time in Pakistan later this month.

There were fresh reports, meanwhile, of border clashes between Pakistani and Indian forces in the disputed state of Kashmir. India's Defense Ministry reported a two hour fire-fight in which two Indians were wounded.

After years of quarreling over Kashmir, Pakistan and India were prodded to the conference table by the far that such skirmishing and the mass movements of refugees over the border would explode into a major conflict.

POTATO PORCUPINE

Here's an easy-to-make, inexpensive gift for a youngster who is confined to bed with an illness. Take a long round potato, make a hole in the top side covering almost all the surface and scoop out half the potato. Make a head on one end by inserting white thumbtacks dotted with black paint for the eyes. Make a nose with the same black paint and use red for the mouth.

Stick four wooden sticks (popsicle sticks are ideal) in the bottom for legs. Fill the hole in the top with dirt and plant grass seed. Dampen with water and let the child watch it grow.

When you are using chocolate, pay careful attention to melting it over low heat; too much heat may scorch it and affect its color and texture.

Credit Women Will Lunch at Swiss Chalet

The Pikes Peak chapter of the Credit Women's Breakfast Club will meet in the Heidi Room of the Swiss Chalet at twelve o'clock Tuesday. President Anne Barrett, of the First National Bank, will be in charge.

Doris McCartin, program chairman announces that Mrs. Wallace Lundquist will be guest speaker. Mrs. Lundquist is a specialist in the field of fashion. She began her career sixteen years ago by taking a modeling course for self improvement which led to a successful modeling career in Denver. Later she became coordinator and organizer of fashion shows for CARE, The March of Dimes, and recently the highly successful Trianon Fashion Show which benefitted the Colorado Springs Symphony. At present she is teaching three classes — a teenager's self improvement class, a self improvement class for housewives, and a professional modeling course.

The meeting is open to women employed in credit, whose business, firm or professional office holds membership in the local Credit Bureau affiliated with the Associated Credit Bureau of America and or the International Consumer Credit Association.

LBJ to Throw First Pitch of Season Monday

By MILTON RICHMAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — The 1964 major league basball season officially will be opened Monday by a rookie right-hander from Texas who isn't even listed on your scorecard.

His name is Lyndon B. Johnson and even though he's the President of the United States, he may be a bit nervous because this will mark the first time he has ever been called upon to throw out the first ball for the season inaugural in Washington.

Along with the President, a near capacity crowd of 43,000 is expected to be on hand at District of Columbia Stadium in the nation's capital where the Washington Senators will follow a long established tradition by opening one day earlier than the other American League clubs in a game against the Los Angeles Angels.

Similarly, the Cincinnati Reds will get the jump in the National League by playing host to the Houston Colts on Monday before an anticipated sell-out crowd of 29,000 at Crosley Field.

When President Johnson is through with the ceremonial first toss in Washington, a couple of youngsters with a little more hop on their fastballs will take over the pitching. Right-hander Ken McBride, who put together a 13-12 record last season, is expected to start for the Angels and southpaw Claude Osteen (9-14) for the Senators.

There could be even more drama in Cincinnati than in Washington, where the late President John F. Kennedy threw out the first ball the last three years.

The crowd in Cincinnati undoubtedly will show its feeling for Freddie Hutchinson, the popular manager of the Reds who learned he had cancer last Christmas Eve but has been battling back ever since.

Hutch probably will name southpaw Jim O'Toole (17-14) as his starting pitcher while Houston Manager Harry Craft, another favorite in Cincinnati dating back to his playing days with the Reds, says that either Ken Johnson (11-7) or Don Nottebart (11-8), both right-handers will start for the Colts.

As far as the oddsmakers are concerned, the world champion Los Angeles Dodgers and New York Yankees should repeat as pennant winners. Both are favorites, the Dodgers chiefly because of their pitching with the likes of Sandy Koufax, Don Drysdale and Ron Perranoski, and the Yankees because of their power with sluggers like Mickey Mantle, Roger Maris and Elston Howard.

The Dodgers begin defense of their title at home in a night game on Tuesday against the St. Louis Cardinals, who threw a mighty scare into them by slicing their league lead from seven games to a mere one with a spectacular spurt last September.

Koufax, who had a 25-5 record last year and an 11-1 mark at Dodgers Stadium, will open for the Dodgers while Cardinal Manager Johnny Keane probably will nominate right-hander Ernie Broglio (18-8).

In other NL openers on Tuesday, Milwaukee will play at San Francisco where 42-year old Warren Spahn (23-7) and Juan Marichal (25-8) will draw the initial assignments; Chicago will be at Pittsburgh with lefty Dick Ellsworth (22-10) due to face left-hander Bob Veale (5-2) and those amazing Mets, as Casey Stengel refers to his struggling New York crew open their season in a night game at Philadelphia with southpaw Alvin Jackson (13-17) expected to go against right-hander Art Mahaffey (7-1).

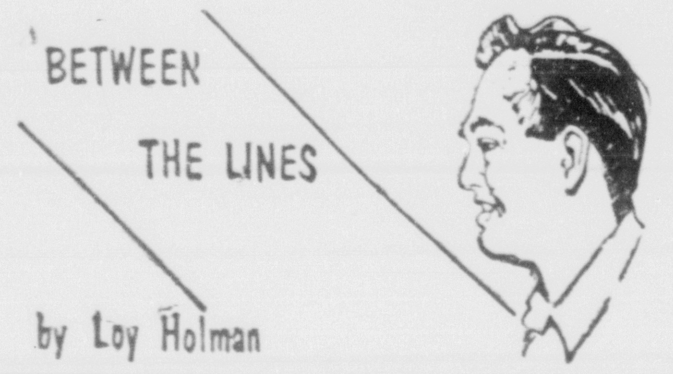
All four American League games on Tuesday will be daytime contests.

Left-hander Whitey Ford, the Yankees' perennial opening day pitcher who won 24 games and lost seven last year, will attempt to make Yogi Berra's managerial debut a success when he opposes Bill Monbouquette (20-10) of the Boston Red Sox at Yankee Stadium.

The Minnesota Twins, given a chance by some to dethrone the Yankees, will open at Cleveland. Camilo Pascual (21-9) will do the honors for the Twins and George Strickland filling in as manager of the Indians while Birdie Tebbetts recuperates from a recent heart attack, is expected to name either Jim (Mudcat) Grant (13-14) or veteran Dick Donovan (11-13).

Right-hander Milt Pappas (16-9) will open for the Baltimore Orioles and right-hander Ray Herbert (13-10) for the White Sox in their game at Chicago while Kansas City gets under way at Detroit where right-handed knuckleballer Orlando Pena (12-20) and left-hanger Hank Aguirre (14-15) will be the likely mound opponents.

Not a single rookie is listed among the opening day pitchers, which is customary, although virtually all 20 major league clubs are planning to start the season with at least one or two newcomers on their rosters.



It's Yanks and Cards

It's that time of year when tulips dare the frost, short-shorts become fashionable again, dad untangles his fishing gear from the winter's storage — and those of us with inky fingers are supposed to make a few wild guesses as to how the major leagues will finish after six months of playing.

* * *

Needless to say, a guess is all it can be. There are too many things that can happen between now and October which will alter the best laid plans. It might be a little more accurate to delay any forecasts until mid-July or so — but even then it would be pure speculation.

So without further alibi on to the task.

AMERICAN	NATIONAL
1. New York	St. Louis
2. Minnesota	San Francisco
3. Chicago	Los Angeles
4. Detroit	Philadelphia
5. Baltimore	Cincinnati
6. Cleveland	Pittsburgh
7. Boston	Milwaukee
8. Kansas City	Chicago
9. Los Angeles	Houston
10. Washington	New York

ROGER MARIS
Could Make Comeback

As usual, it takes much less flipping of coin for the American as the main question is in what order will they wind up behind the Yankees. Yogi Berra will be one of four new managers this spring, but should have little trouble directing the pin-stripers to another pennant.

Whether Yogi will strap on the mask now and then to give Ellie Howard some rest behind the plate will be one of the few question marks for New York. Otherwise, pitching should be little changed over a year ago — although no one expects Whitey Ford to ring up 24 again — and Ralph Terry, Jim Bouton and flame-throwing Al Downing should get 60 between them.

Mickey Mantle's aches and pains will be of concern all season and Joe Pepitone may have leftover nightmares from his bobble at first in the World Series. Tommy Tresh will be moved all over the lot to fill for the usual injured, and with some of the pressure off his back this season Roger Maris could make a comeback . . . with about half those record-setting 61 homers.

Otherwise, look for Minnesota's sluggers to make things interesting until about the Fourth of July when the Yankees usually start printing Series tickets. Pitching is too questionable for a title run, however, and defense is hardly the best in the business.

Youngsters will carry the load for the White Sox and in a couple years Chicago could be back in the race. Don Buford at second is a candidate for Rookie of the Year.

Detroit could be the most improved in the league, but pitching is the big "if" for the Tigers with everything depending on Frank Lary's comeback. Charlie Dressen could dress up the Bengals, though.

Other new pilots will be Hank Bauer at Baltimore and Gil Hodges at Washington, but they'll have to be content at looking up at the leaders. Kansas City will try all the gimmicks but is a long way from a solid club.

The fact is that I'd like to pick the Phillies to take it all — but just too chicken. The reasoning here is that the Dodgers are the same as the world-beaters of last fall's Series and should have everything going for them, but it's next to impossible to repeat. The Cards are the most logical as an improved club, so probably won't. The Giants never do. So that leaves the Phillies.

Still, look for another down-to-the-last-day race with all four of the top clubs involved. And with St. Louis, Los Angeles and San Francisco all winding up at home in the final week's play it should be a dilly of a finish.

The way it looks here, though, is that the Cardinals who nearly did the trick a year ago loom as the most imporved so they take the top pick in this book. Bob Gibson and Ernie Broglio both will be right around 20-game winners and Manager Johnny Keane has good depth in Curt Simmons, Ray Sadecki, Ray Washburn, Roger Craig, Lew Burdette, Bobby Shantz and Ron Taylor.

Match that kind of pitching with unquestionably the best infield in the business and it sounds like a sure winner. The only shaky point is the pasture, but they shouldn't see many balls out there anyway.

So how 'bout the Dodgers?

No matter what you saw during the World Series, any club that is so dependent on so few as was the case in Los Angeles with their Big Three pitchers can easily fall into trouble. Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale, along with reliefer Ron Perranoski, form a hard-to-beat combination but should any of them find trouble in duplicating last year's feats it would spell the end.

Walt Alston could juggle his lineup from now 'til doomsday and still couldn't come up with anything to match the Cards' infield of Ken Boyer, Dick Groat, Julian Javier and Bill White. And that goes for glove or bat.

One of these years the Giants are going to surprise everyone and play to their full potential . . . but don't count on it this season. The Bay Area boys are trying to experiment and that can cause untold headaches in the tough NL.

Look for the Phillies' Ritchie Allen, who comes equipped with a powerful bat, to make a run for Rookie of the Year. The addition of Jim Bunning to the throwing corps will also help, and Philadelphia may be hard to handle.

As for the rest, you can just about shake 'em in a hat and pull out the finishers . . . with the exception of the last two with Houston and the poor, pitiful Mets fighting it out for last place.

The Cubs made threatening gestures in '63 but the loss of Ken Hubbs hurt more than they would like to imagine. They'll make it 19 years straight out of the first division.

Pitching will be the strong suit at Cincinnati, if Jim Maloney comes through again after a 23-game winner last season. There's too little support behind them to make a contender, though. And in the case of Pittsburgh, it's an example of putting all the eggs (or pitchers) into one basket and lack of work will be their downfall.

As said in the beginning, at this stage in the game it's only a guess so don't order Series tickets yet unless you're planning a trip to New York in October . . . and it's not the Mets that will be selling them.

Palmer Five-Up on Masters Field

Another Birdie Binge Nearly Cinches Title

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — A gambling, charged up Arnold Palmer exploded three straight birdies in a thunderclap finish for a three-under-par 69 Saturday and shot into a five-stroke lead with one round to play in the Masters Golf Tournament.

Consecutive rounds of 69-68-69 over the demanding par 72 Augusta National course gave the comeback marvel from Latrobe, Pa., a 54-hole total of 206, 10 under par, and made him a virtual cinch to become the first ever to win four Masters.

A wiry Australian outsider, Bruce Devlin, knocked in an eagle on the 15th hole for a 67 which put him closest to Arnie's heels at 211.

Other of Palmer's sternest challengers, including defending champion Jack Nicklaus, fell by the wayside in an epidemic of late, pressure-proved bogeys — and it looked like a one-man show.

Arnie's Army, making up most of the record throng of 40,000, was delirious.

Nicklaus, his big, booming game wild and unwieldy, shot a 71 and found himself tied at 215 with a ghost out of the past, Ben Hogan, who thrilled the gallery with some of his old wizardry for a third round three-under-par 67.

The new champion and the old had nine strokes and five other players separating them from the front-running Palmer.

Dave Marr, a young pro from New Rochelle, N. Y., was in third place at 212 after a third round 69, followed by hard-luck Gary Player of South Africa, whose game cracked up on the final two holes to give him a 72, and little known Peter Butler of Birmingham, England, who rallied with a 69.

Devlin, a 26-year-old master plumber from Canberra, only three years out of amateur ranks, came out of nowhere to move into top contention.

Palmer, the slumping golfing capitalist who hasn't won a tournament since last October, was slow getting off the mark and had to scramble to play the first seven holes in par.

He rang in his first biride at the eighth, chipping to within three feet, but lost another shot at the 11th where he duck-hooked his second into the water. He dropped out and chipped to within inches for a bogey that could have been much worse.

His birdie explosion started on the 14th. He ran in a putt from 25 feet.

While the cheers of his vast army were still ringing in his ears he ripped into the long 15th reaching the green in two and two-putting from 25 feet and added a third straight birdie on the 16th where he ran the ball in from 12 feet.

Even with his long lead, he never ceased to play bold, gambling golf. He hit all out from the tees, went for the greens even with threatening water staring him in the face.

With Arnie's Army

By JIM BECKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

With Arnie's Army, Tramping Through Georgia (AP) —
"Through trees and traps and down hill lies,
"From tee to one-putt green,
"We will fight our Arnie's battles,
"And never treat him mean.
"D-dah-da-dah-ta-ta. Charge!"

"Loyal to a fault, hardy as a pack of Death Valley mules, strong, agile, loud, kind, obedient, reverent and clean, Arnie's Army charged, rolled, swept, cluttered and straggled around the Augusta National Golf Course behind their hero Saturday as Arnold Palmer clomped out ahead to an apparently untouchable lead in his guest for an unprecedented fourth Masters title.

It was a little awesome to behold.

Recruiting standards seemed to be a little loose. It looked like almost anyone could join, although ideally a member of Arnie's Army should be about the length of Wilt Chamberlain and equipped with non-tiring feet.

Palmer hooked his tee shot into another fairway. The army applauded anyway, and set out in pursuit.

"Don't run, don't run," said a man, who was nearly run over as the herd thundered down the first fairway, trying to keep up with the fast-striding Palmer.

Palmer hit a perfect approach shot over the trees to the green, and the army screamed and shouted. A lot of fellows shook their fists in the air, and said, "At's the way to go, Arnie baby."

On the long second hole, Palmer took an iron out of his bag for his second shot.

Uppercut Takes Excelsior 'Cap

NEW YORK (UPI) —Uppercut pulled away from the field in the stretch at Aqueduct Saturday to win the $27,000 Excelsior Handicap by three lengths with favored Mongo a poor fifth in the 57th running of the race.

With jockey Johnny Sellers in the saddle, Uppercut, winner of only one previous stakes throughout his career, easily romped home ahead of Golden Triangle Stables' Rocky Link in the mile and one-eighth event with Morry E. third in the field of six.

Mongo, dropping out of contention in the turn into the stretch was fifth behind Bonjour with Red Gar last.

The crowd of 56,368, largest of the year in New York thus far, backed Mongo down to 6 to 5 while Uppercut was 92 to 2. The bay horse paid $11.00, $6.10 and $4.30 across the board.

Rocky Link, winner of the Westchester Stakes in his last start, paid $6.50 and $4.50 after beating Morry E by a head. Morry E returned $5.50.

Air Force Gridders Near Halfway

With the halfway point of spring football practice at the Air Force Academy quickly approaching, Coach Ben Martin will turn this next week to stress on teamwork and polish of formations for his Falcons.

The AFA grid team held the eighth of the allowed 20 practice sessions on Saturday with an intra-squad game in Falcon Stadium. It was a controlled scrimmage with plays and situations picked by the coaching staff.

The 2½ hour scrimmage was filmed and the coaches will evaluate the performance of individuals from this showing, a spokesman said. All players will still be watched on an individual basis, but from now on there will be more emphasis on team play.

Preparing for the new rules of substitution which will go into effect this fall, Martin has divided his squad into offensive and defensive specialists. The AFA hopes to use platoon substitution as much as possible, although players will have to be versed in play on both offense and defense.

So far, players have been working both ways, but with about two-thirds of the time spent on their specialty. This was the case for Saturday's scrimmage as well as work all last week.

The Falcons are scheduled to scrimmage again on Wednesday and again next Saturday, weather permiting. Wednesday will probably mark the halfway point in spring drills.

The windup of the spring session will come May 2 when Martin will divide his team for the annual Blue-Silver intra-squad game in Falcon Stadium. This will be open to the public.

Those standouts in Saturday's practice included quarterback Paul Stein, a junior from Lansing, Mich., who worked on both offense and defense. His play at safety on defense was especially impressive.

Among the veterans returning, halfbacks Paul Wargo and Dick Czarnota looked good on Saturday. These two started with the No. 1 offensive unit. John (Nate) Sanderson, a center from Jonesboro, Ark., played well as a defensive linebacker.

Newcomers to catch the coaches' eye were fullback John Ondrejko, a sophomore from Yukon, Pa., who will weigh in at 200 pounds; guard Fred Jackson, a 190-pound soph from Berwyn, Ill.; and tackles Gerry Twardowski and Phil Bacigalupo. Twardowski, from Reading, Pa. will play at about 230 pounds and Bacigalupo from St. Paul, Minn. weighs 221 pounds.

Springs Gets '500' Telecast

Colorado Springs will be one of some 50 cities throughout the country to have a closed-circuit telecast of the famed Indianapolis "500" Speedway race this coming Memorial Day, May 30. The telecast will be staged in the City Auditorium on a new theater-sized screen recently installed for viewing of the last world's heavyweight championship fight.

The telecast will start at 8:40 a.m. the day of the race and continue for approximately four hours. Race fans with tickets may stay the entire time or come and go as they please, according to the promoters.

This will be the first time the "500" will have been telecast anywhere and it will be done by the same company which broadcast the last fight.

Wasson Gains Tie for SCL Lead

Shortstop Out . . .

Tigers to Open Season In Twin Bill With Regis

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Colorado College finally launches its 1964 baseball season today at Memorial Park with characteristic bad luck already clawing at the Tigers—even before the opening pitch.

Today's opponent will be Regis College of Denver and the two teams are scheduled for a doubleheader, with the first contest set for 1 p.m. Tiger coach, Bob Johnson, said Friday that both games would probably be seven innings, but no definite agreement with Regis officials had been reached at that time.

Johnson, a former professional baseball player, took over the task of guiding the CC baseball club with hopes of boosting the sport to a reasonable stature at the local institution. But even before his Tigers take the field for the first time, the new mentor is running into roadblocks.

The most crippling to date is the loss of his first string shortstop. Joe Hendricks, a former Wasson star who transfered to CC from Colorado State College, has been declared ineligible. CSC claimed Hendricks participated in freshman ball at that school last year and forced his exclusion from participation this season for that reason.

Johnson said the ruling deals a crippling blow to the Tigers. "Hendricks is an excellent baseball player," he said Friday. "He has all the tools to be a fine shortstop and we feel that he was really a key player for our team. There is no way we can make up for his loss."

Shortstop has been a trouble spot for the Tigers in recent seasons and Johnson had hoped that the addition of Hendricks would give a new defensive fiber to the CC infield.

Another damaging problem has been that of spring vacation. The Tigers had an early start on practice but then were dismissed for the spring break and the CC coach did not see his squad for nearly two weeks. They regrouped only Wednesday and according to Johnson are not nearly ready for opening competition yet.

"If we had about three more weeks to prepare I think we could field a sound ball club," the CC coach said. "But with spring vacation the school was virtually closed down and the students had to leave. Loss of workouts for that long were really damaging, especially to the pitchers. I doubt if we have a pitcher who is ready to go more than three innings at this point."

But, regardless of the woes, CC will break the seal on the season today. Johnson has named a pair of freshmen to draw the starting roles on the mound. Bill Janowski, a righthander from Illinois, and Warner Reeser, who played his high school ball at Denver Lincoln, will open for the local team. John says that both "should become fine pitchers with experience."

In reserve the Tigers have a pair of returning starters from a year ago, righthanders Jeff Sauer and Mike Irfield, plus Jim Railey. Johnson indicated that all will probably see duty today.

Elsewhere the team is fairly well set. Roger Williams, a returning starter, will handle the catching with Gus Hart as a backup man. Hard-hitting Dennis Walker will be at first with John Simus, the leading stickman a year ago, back at third. Either Mike Mestek or Tom Mahoney will open at second and the shortstop position will be filled by John Genz or Don Wilson.

In the outfield veteran Reno Van Putten will be in right with freshman Steve Mills from Denver in left and Carl Clay in center. Steve Ebert is a reserve outfielder.

Following today's games the Tigers host Southern Colorado State College Wednesday and then play Mines in a home and home set this weekend.

Sandra Haynie Four Under Par At Baton Rouge

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI)—Pretty Sandra Haynie reeled off seven birdies for a 4-under-par 68 Saturday to wrest the second round lead of the Baton Rouge Open from Kathy Whitworth.

Miss Haynie, a blonde beauty from Phoenix, Ariz., pulled four strokes ahead of the field in the $7,500 Ladies Professional Golfers Association meet with a 36-hole total of 138.

Miss Whitworth of Jal, N.M., was shoved into second place at 142 by the strong iron and wood performance of Miss Haynie. She led by a stroke with a 69 going into Saturday's action but slipped to a 73.

Miss Haynie, pulling out of a three-way tie for second place, encountered only one bogie and one double bogie Saturday over Sherwood Forest Country Club's 6,696-yard course.

In third place was Baton Rouge's Sybil Griffin at 144. Then came a three-way deadlock of Betsy Rawls, Carol Mann and Kathy Cornelius at 146. Wanda Sanchez was alone with a 147.

The Detroit Tigers had more than 40 certified fan clubs in 1963.

Cheyenne Returns to Form In Shutout Over Buffs, 7-0

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

After dropping two straight games this week, the Pikes Peak League kingpins from Cheyenne Mountain regained their composure to pound out a 7-0 non-league victory over visiting Denver Machebeuf, Saturday afternoon at the Cheyenne junior high diamond.

Ted Garcia, Cheyenne's front line hurler, tossed a nifty one-hitter. The portside chucker was denied a no-hitter for the second time this season. Garcia started the season off in high fashion when he hurled six hitless innings against Lamar in 1964 opener last week.

The Buffaloes' left fielder, John Kalinski, spoiled Garcia's no-hittter Saturday as he belted a single in the second frame. But from that point on the Cheyenne ace settled down and recorded 12 strikeouts during the seven-inning venture; his best performance to date.

Garcia only allowed three Buff batsmen to reach first base including Salinski and his teammates played errorless ball in the field to give him proper support. Coupled with Garcia's control and effective breaking pitch and Cheyenne's sound fielding, the Indians kept visiting Machebeuf, members of the Denver Parochial League, from reaching second base.

Spear headed by Bill Massarand's big bat, the Tribe batters bombarded starting Machebeuf pitcher Tom Wais for five runs on that many hits during his four-and-three quarter innings on the mound. Centerfielder Mike Freeman came in to relieve Wais in theh fifth stanza with one out.

The Indians tabbed Freeman for two more runs before putting the game on ice. In all the Cheyenne aggregation collected eight hits, and even though they failed to score in the third frame with the bases loaded and no one out, the Indians presented Coach Eldon Helm with his 109th victory during eight years at Cheyenne.

The Cheyenne team dropped two games this week to St. Mary's, 5-2, and succumbed to fellow PPL member, Air Academy High, 1-0 last Friday. However, the Cheyenne - Academy High outing was a non-league contest.

Helm's charges face two opponents this week when the Indians attempt to unseat cross-town Class-AAA Wasson in Tuesday's outing at the Cheyenne diamond. And this Friday the Cheyenne team launches its defense of the PPL title against Manitou Springs at the latter's home field. Should the Tribe win the Manitou encounter it would give the Indians their 53rd consecutive PPL victory during the Helm era.

In Saturday's non - loop contest, the Indians were doomed to accept a 1-0 margin until the Cheyenne big gunners started to crack in the fifth and sixth frames. Massarand proved successful at the plate as the Indians' third baseman collected three hits for that many times at bat and scored two RBIs.

Florence Nine Clips Manitou In League Play

FLORENCE — The Huskies of Florence High School pounded out a 10-7 victory over Manitou Springs here Saturday afternoon to preserve their unbeaten record in Pikes Peak League play.

Darrell Browning went the seven-inning distance in picking up the victory while Jack Fowler paced the Florence attack with a double. The Huskies banged out eight hits and made the most of them, especially in the first inning when they chased the Manitou starter with seven runs.

The Mustangs staged a comeback in the fifth with six tallies, but it fell short of the victory. Browning struck out 10 and walked only one, giving up five earned runs.

Kochis Blanks Terrors In Intra-City Showdown

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

Unless the unexpected should strike the South Central League in the next couple weeks, the showdown for the league title will likely come May 5 when Wasson and Palmer meet for the second time.

The two Colorado Springs schools are locked in a tie for the league lead after Saturday morning's 2-0 victory by Wasson and each has already beaten back the nearest challengers in early play. Saturday's game gave both 3-1 league marks and although there are plenty of chances for either to stumble before the next game, the next time around probably will settle the race.

Wasson's Bob Kochis and the Terrors' Phil Johnson were paired against each other Saturday and the Thunderbirds' hard-throwing right-hander tossed up an impressive two-hitter that had the cross-town rivals swinging at space through most of the sun-baked contest. Only once did Palmer threaten and that came in the second inning when both hits were spotted back-to-back, but the rally died in one of three double plays that were featured in the well-played game.

The first of Wasson's runs in the opening inning was the first earned tally off sophomore sensation Johnson, and it was enough to give the side-arming youngster his first loss in four decisions. The T-Birds scored again in the third, but the run came across on one of two errors by the Terrors.

A good sized crowd of around 1,500 watched Palmer go down in order in five of the seven innings as Kochis was in control all the way. In going the distance the fast-working veteran of Coach Gib Funk's staff struck out seven and walked only one.

Wasson's defending champions won't have their next league test until next Saturday in a game at Pueblo South, but in the meantime the 'Birds will be able to tune-up with a non-league contest at the home of Cheyenne Mountain, last year's Pikes Peak League champs, this coming Tuesday.

Palmer, however, will be right back in the SCL race on Tuesday by hosting Pueblo Central at Memorial Park and then on Saturday they will again be at home to Pueblo East with both games vital if the Terrors are to remain atop the standings.

Wasson opened the game as though they were to win in a runaway as Mike Teague, who played a flawless game at third base as well as leading the attack with three hits in as many trips, doubled off a full count into left center. Right behind him, Johnny Wickham bunted safely and promptly stole second. Second baseman Clay Chambers lofted a high fly to center to score Teague, but the potential big inning died with a sacrifice bunt and strikeout.

In the second, Palmer tried to stage a comeback and had runners at first and second with one out on the back-to - back singles authored by Don Stouffer and right fielder Rich Grapp. That was erased by a heads-up play by Wasson's Teague, however, as he fielded Rich Tafoya's grounder for the force out and relayed to first for the first double play of the game.

That was the last time Palmer was to threaten at all, though, and they never again advanced a runner as far as second. In the sixth, the Terrors rors put three different hitters on first via a walk and two fielder's choice plays, but two were cut down trying to reach second.

Again in the third the T-Birds scored a singleton, although the Terrors almost escaped without further injury because of one of their two double plays. It was Teague again that started the uprising as he led off with a single and went to third on Wickham's single to right. Chambers hit to shortstop and the Tribe had Teague caught in a rundown between third and home.

The never - hustling Wasson third baseman scrambled safely back to third, though, but by this time the runner at second had gone on to third. So the action shifted to the middle of the diamond and there Ollie West tagged out the runner and then wheeled to catch Teague running for home again.

While all this was going on, Chambers had scrambled all the way to second and he went on to third when West bobbled Butch Meller's grounder. A pickoff attempt went astray and Chambers scored while Meller ran to second.

Teague got his third straight hit in the fifth inning, but again a double play by the Terrors smothered what might have been a scoring opportunity. After stealing second, Teague was caught off base when Wickham lined out to West, who quickly tossed to nail the runner at second.

The Thunderbirds threatened again in the seventh when pinch-hitter Frank Baird was safe on a fielder's choice and stole both second and third while the walking Teague went as far as second. But the inning ended with Wickham flying deep to center field for the third out.

Johnson was also impressive in his first start for the Terrors, striking out nine and walking but two. Altho rapped for six hits, only in the first and third were they bunched in twos. Besides the three hits by Teague and two by Wickham, Chambers' scratch single in the sixth was the only other safety.

Wyoming Okays Strannigan Pact

LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP) — The University of Wyoming Board of Trustees approved a new, one-year contract Saturday for Bill Strannigan, head basketball coach, effective July 1.

Strannigan's first, five-year contract ends June 30. He formerly coached at Colorado State University and Iowa State.

A one-time Wyoming basketball star, the 45-year-old Strannigan compiled a 12-14 won-lost record this past season and a 44-83 record in his five years as coach.

Catholic Gets Second Win Over Air Academy High

Pueblo Catholic recorded its second victory over Air Academy High within eight days as the visiting Shamrocks posted a 6-4 non-league triumph over the Kadets, Saturday.

Although Russ Lyon's Big Blue squad, which tallied an impressive 1-0 win over the Pikes Peak League perennial kingpins, Cheyenne Mountain, last Friday the Academy High aggregation couldn't cash in the nine hits against Pueblo Catholic.

On the other hand, the Shamrocks only required two less hits to post the victory. Last Saturday the Pueblo Catholic nine dumped the Big Blue, 5-0, despite a fine effort from transfer student, John Gannon who struck out 11 batters in that encounter. But the Academy team committed a host of mistakes which resulted in the loss a week ago Saturday.

In the most recent encounter, Carter Dean took the loss for the Academy High team as Shamrocks scored all six tallies during his venture on the mound.

The Kadets are slated to meet St. Mary's in their next outing this Tuesday afternoon on their home diamond. That game is scheduled for 4 p.m.

DIGGING THE DUST — Wasson's star third baseman Mike Teague beats the throw back to third base after he was caught in a run-down by the Palmer Terrors during Saturday's intra-city battle for first place in the South Central League's baseball standings. Trying to make the tag is Palmer's Gary Johnson as umpire Joe Morgan looks on. Later, Teague and another runner, Johnny Wickham, was doubled up by the Terrors. The T-Birds managed one run of the inning and went on to post a 2-0 victory to tie Palmer for the lead with 3-1 records. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

Trojans Win A Division In Huge Aurora Relays

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

AURORA — Fountain's flying Trojans combined an unexpected display of depth with the expected brilliant performance of Randy Carter here Saturday to post a runaway victory in the "A" division of the unwieldy Aurora Relays.

Fountain's smashing victory led a strong showing by Colorado Springs' area teams. The Trojans had local company in strangling the "A" division as Air Academy High's swifties buzzed to victories in both sprint relays and finished fourth in the overall standings. In the "AA" class, Bill Westbay's Palmer squad got fine performances from several in rolling to a ninth place finish with 11½ points while Wasson finished in a tie for 14th with 8 points.

Fountain rode the churning heels of Carter to one of the most decisive victories ever in the lower classification. The Trojans piled up 52 points to easily outdistance Julesburg and Lafayette. Those two teams had 36 points apiece while Academy High was fourth with 33.

The "AA" division featured a tight battle between two Denver powerhouses, Manual and East. The Thunderbolts, who did not appear to have their usual outstanding squad when competing in the Pikes Peak Relays last week, were up to their old tricks Saturday. They swept both sprint relays and eventually finished in a tie with neighboring East. Both teams scored 50 points. Wheat Ridge, led by record-smashing Mike Sandberg, was third with 42 points while the remainder of the field lagged well to the rear.

The banner field of athletes, representing 63 schools around the state, eclipsed any ideas that uncooperative weather and heavy losses by graduation had left Colorado below par in the track and field sport this spring. Nine records tumbled during the day, which could hardly have been more perfect weatherwise. Temperatures were in the 60s and there were only occasional gusts of wind.

The oversized field did cause several problems in the management of the meet. The morning trials ran far behind schedule due to the excessive number of heats necessary and the final event in the afternoon was not concluded until over an hour past what the timetable called for.

Sandberg, and his Class "A" contemporary, Mike Tomasini of Brush, accounted for four of the meet records by wiping clean the old standards in the weight events. Sandberg sailed the shot put beyond the listed state record for the second time within a week with a heave of 60-4. He also smashed the old discus mark, soaring the platter 167-5½. Tomasini was not far behind. He fired the shot 58-2¼ and the discus 157-6.

Warren Gillette of Boulder wiped out the existing broad jump record with a leap of 22-0. The old mark had been set by Pete Rowe, Wasson's first track great, in 1960 and Gillette snapped it Saturday by only one-quarter of an inch.

FINAL TEAM STANDINGS

Did not score: Erie, Estes Park, Fort Lupton, Fowler, Idaho Springs, Louisville Valley, Weld County, Yuma, Simla.

Fountain's Carter had himself quite a day as well. Although he skipped the record-breaking, the Trojan jet sped to a 10.3 victory in the 100 yard dash, the same time turned in by the "AA" division, and captured the broad jump with a leap of 20-8¾. He also ran the anchor leg on a pair of relay teams that finished second to Academy High in both the 440 and 880.

Air Academy High's swift quartet of Brink Spear, Matt Luksic, Scott Haney, and Rob Stockhouse salvaged some satisfaction in the dual with their local rivals by besting the Trojans in both sprint relays. The Academy foursome traveled the 440 distance in 45.8 and the 880 in 1:34.6.

Palmer's Bobby Joe Williams may have had another of the day's most exciting feats within reach — except that he'll never be certain now. Williams, powering his way over the high hurdles, had a slim lead over Manual's Anthony Booker and was matching Dave Stevens of East Denver stride for stride until he tripped at the next to last flight and was left sprawling in frustration on the cinders. Williams returned later to place fourth in the lows, however, and certainly indicated that he is one of the state's best in the highs.

Wasson got a standout performance from its two mile relay team. Anchored by distance star, Jeff Berven, as the Thunderbird quartet easily won its heat but was nosed out by Denver Lincoln on the basis of comparative times. Lincoln's 8:23.7 clocking was one of the new track records established.

The T-Birds also qualified their 880 relay team for the finals and hurdler Dominic Flacco reached the finals in that event. However, neither placed in the swift afternoon competition.

Air Force Drops CSU, 11-7 Before Home Opener Today

FORT COLLINS — The Air Force Academy baseball team won its ninth of 10 games this season here Saturday as catcher Al McArtor blasted a bases-loaded home run in the sixth inning to pace the Falcons to an 11-7 victory over Colorado State University.

The Falcons added two more runs on outfielder Frank Packer's one-on homer in the sixth before the Aggies shoved across all seven of their runs in the last three innings.

The victory went to lefty Fred Olmsted who lasted until the sixth and was relieved by sophomore Bob Guido. Garry Brunner, who left in favor of Gary Moyle in the fifth, was tagged with the defeat.

It was the eighth loss in nine outings for CSU this season.

This afternoon the Falcons are to open their home schedule after playing all 10 of their first games on the road. The home opener with the University of Wyoming is slated for 1 p.m. at Falcon Field, just north of the Cadet Gymnasium on the AFA campus. The game is free of charge and open to the public.

Wyoming has just returned from a swing through the southwest and will have the slight edge on the Falcons in experience. However, Coach Connie Sparks has his Cadets hitting at a rapid clip as testified by the 18 safeties pounded out against Colorado State University.

Finley Defied Officials Over Fence; To Appeal to Committee

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Charles O. Finley, owner of the Kansas City Athletics, defied baseball's top officials Saturday after they ordered him to remove the fence he had erected in Municipal Stadium to make right field the same depth as that in Yankee Stadium.

Finley, here for an exhibition game, confirmed he had received telegrams from Joe Cronin, president of the American League, and Ford Frick, baseball commissioner, directing him to take down the fence.

Finley said he had been warned that unless he complied any games played here would be forfeited to the visiting team. The season opens here with Cleveland, April 21.

"You can say for me," Finley said, "that the fence will be up when the season opens."

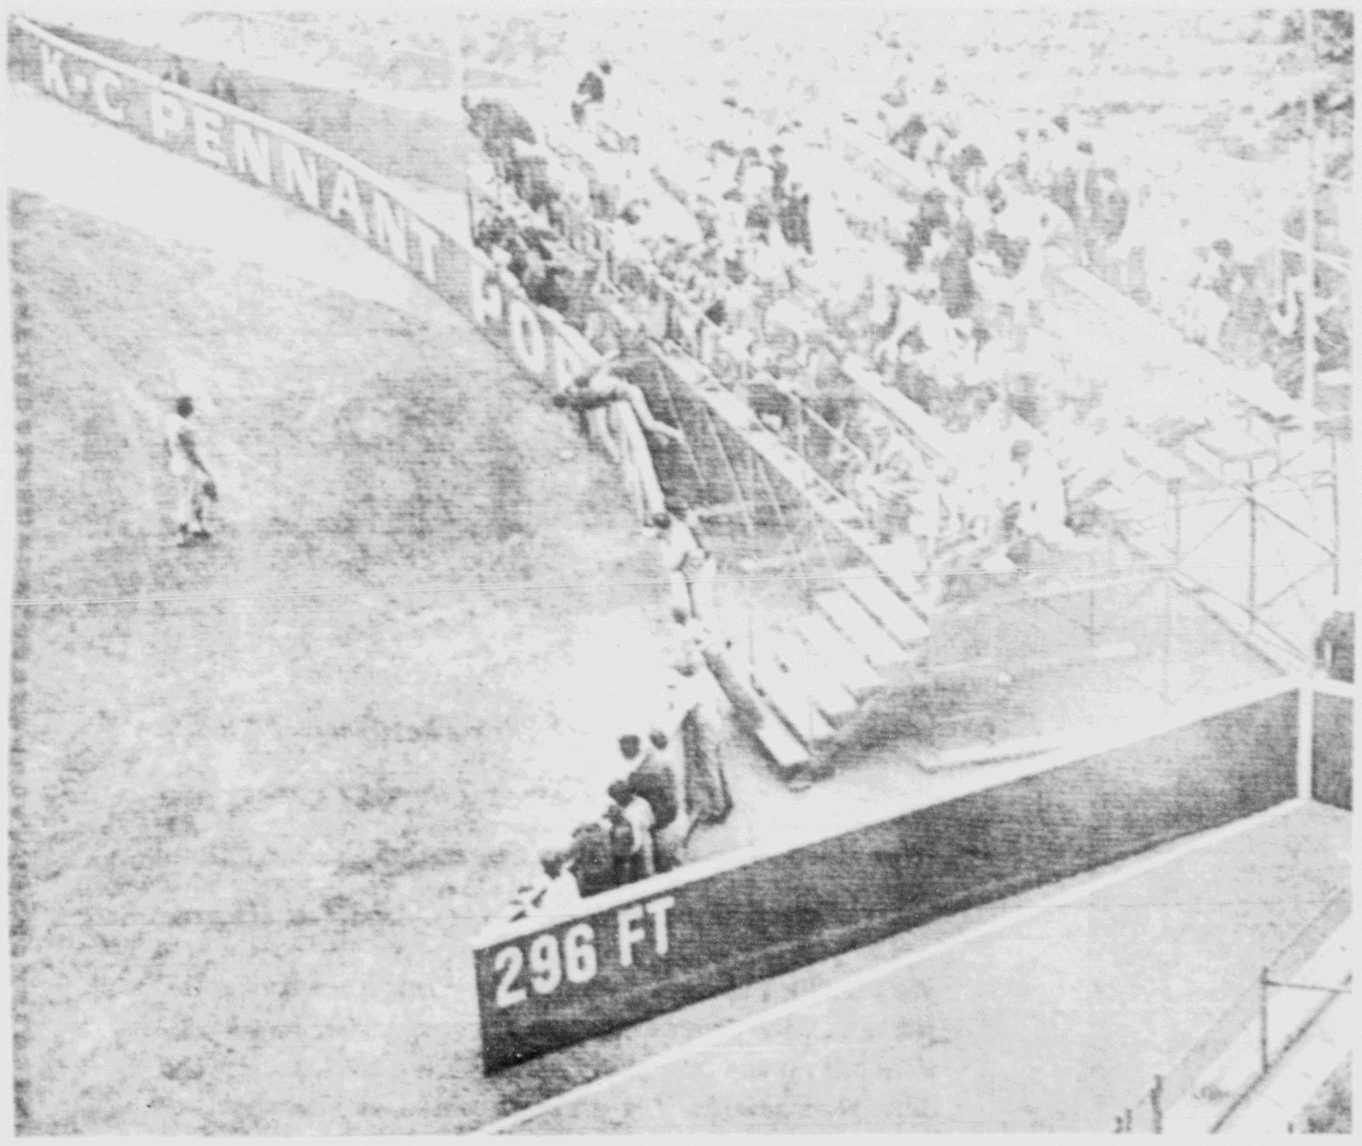
He added he would appeal to the baseball rules committee.

"The rule book permits me to do what I am doing," he had said earlier in Chicago. "I have read it thoroughly and I know what I am saying."

The A's owner ordered the fence built last week to conform to the right field barrier in Yankee Stadium after his demands on Cronin and the Yanks for a screen to stop easy home runs at New York.

The distance from home plate to the foul pole in New York is 296 feet. The fence at the stadium here starts at the 325-foot mark, which conforms with the rules, but the 296-foot mark, the point of the V, is only two feet in fair territory.

It was in the bleachers near that point that Finley took his seat today as the A's faced the Cardinals.



CONTROVERSIAL FENCE — This is the "Pennant Porch", a fence erected in Municipal stadium's right field by Kansas City Athletics' owner Charles O. Finley, which he says conforms with measurements of Yankee Stadium's right field. Joe Cronin, president of the American League, has told Finley that no American League game will be played in the ball park until the fence is removed. (AP Wirephoto)

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds and Chicago White Sox put on a baseball power show Saturday and the Reds whipped the American Leaguers for a fifth straight time 7-6.

The Reds survived three Chicago home runs.

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—The Chicago Cubs batted around twice during a six-run first inning and a five-run fourth Saturday to defeat the Boston Red Sox a fifth straight time 12-3.

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles rapped out 12 hits, including home runs by Boog Powell, Sam Bowens and Lou Jackson, and routed the New York Mets 11-0 Saturday in an exhibition baseball game.

Powell knocked in four runs with a single and his seventh homer of the spring, hit with two runners aboard in the fifth inning. Bowens also drove in three runs with his homer during a six-run rally in the seventh off Galen Cisco.

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — the Pittsburgh Pirates hammered Jim Bunning for 11 hits and eight runs Saturday, defeating the Philadelphia Phillies 16-3 in an exhibition baseball game marred by a fist fight and ejection of Phillies' manager Gene Mauch.

Tony Taylor, the Phillies usually mild-mannered second base man, traded punches with Pittsburgh first baseman Donn Clendenon in the fourth inning. Both benches emptied and several blows were aimed. However, few landed and no one was injured.

Tempers began to flare in the Pirates' half of the third when Bunning low-bridged Clendenon after being tagged for a three-run homer by Jerry Lynch.

COCOA, Fla. (AP)—The Oklahoma City 89ers gave their parent Houston Colts an unhappy send - off Saturday, whipping them 4-3 in Houston's final spring exhibition baseball game.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Jimmie Hall smashed a two-run homer in the bottom of the ninth Saturday to give the Minnesota Twins a 4-3 baseball victory over the Detroit Tigers.

The Twins' victim was reliever Fred Gladding, who gave up a single to Bob Allison and saw his first pitch to Hall sail out of the park after the Twins had collected four hits off Phil Regan, Frank Lary and Ed Rakow.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Ricardo Carty, a rookie outfielder, drove in Milwaukee's winning run with an eighth-inning double off Hal Reniff Saturday for a 2-1 victory over the New York Yankees.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Julian Javier's 10th inning home run, one of four roundtrippers by the St. Louis Cardinals, lifted the Redbirds past Kansas City 9-7 in an exhibition game in Municipal Stadium Saturday.

BROADMOOR GOLF COURSE

NEW GOLF COURSE—Contractors from all over the U.S. will combine their talents in the expansion of the Broadmoor Golf Course, planned for completion in 1964. It will be the only 36-hole course in Colorado. Famed golf architect Robert Trent Jones who designed the Broadmoor's first Championship 18 has drawn plans for the new addition. Play on the present 27 holes is not expected to be interrupted during construction. Looking over the plans are, from left to right, Thayer Tutt, president of the Broadmoor Golf Club; Jones; back row, John Dellis, Redwood City, Calif., who is in charge of constructing the electrically controlled underground water system; Nick Pinello of Colorado Springs who will handle the heavy construction; and John Schmeisser, Hollywood, Fla., who is in charge of landscaping the new greens and fairways. Adams State's Runners Easily Win Tigers Meet

Adams State College placed first in 10 out of 17 events, and turned in 74 points to top a day In second place was Colo- Colorado College quadrangular meet at Washburn field Satur- rado School of Mines with 37½.

Adams State's firsts included two by Bob Kincaid in the shot put and discus, the 440 relay, the 440 run, the 100-yard dash, the 220-yard dash, the 220 low hurdles, the 880, the mile relay and the broad jump.

Tony McGinnis, the Colorado College's crack distance man, pulled across the only two first place finishes by the hometown squad, finishing strongly in the mile and two mile runs.

Colorado Mines fared well in the field events, posting firsts in the triple jump, the javelin throw and the pole vault. First places in the high jump, high hurdles were made by Western State.

Overall strength in track events was Adams State's winning weapon. The visitors from Alamosa had a crew of short runners that stole first and second places in the 100, 220, and 440 runs, and first in the 440 and mile relays. The Walters, Turner, and Smith brothers team had too much speed and left competition eating cinders.

AF Frosh Win First Of Season

The Air Force Academy freshman track team opened its season Saturday with a 106-33 victory over New Mexico Military Institute with five track records either matched or bettered.

The records to fall came in the pole vault, discus, 220-yard dash, 330-yard intermediate hurdles and the mile relay. Especially impressive was fourth classman Royce Wooddell who turned in a 10-flat clocking in the 100-yard dash, set the new mark of 22.4 seconds in the 220, and ran a leg on the record-setting mile relay team.

Air Force won all but three events in the meet to dominate throughout.

Pastrano May Defend Title Against Any of Contenders

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Light heavyweight champion Willie Pastrano enjoyed a conqueror's holiday in his native city Saturday but there were plans in the works for possible title defenses against either Bobo Olson, Eddie Cotton or Harold Johnson.

Olson, the balding ex-middleweight champion enjoying a new lease on life among the 175-pound set, appears to be the most likely candidate for the next shot at Pastrano.

"We may sign for a non-title fight with Olson in San Francisco for May 22," said manager Angelo Dundee, "or a possible title fight there or in New Orleans later in the year. Cotton and Johnson are possibilities, too. Willie will fight anyone if the price is right.

"But after that big win over Peralta, Willie is entitled to a holiday. We'll talk business in a couple of weeks. I never saw Willie better than he was last night."

Pastrano, trained to a keen edge and hitting with speed and pinpoint accuracy, opened a 1½-inch long cut over Gregorio Peralta's left eye and stopped the Brave Bull of the Argentine on a technical knockout after five rounds. It was listed as a sixth-round TKO.

Peralta and his American manager, Charley Johnston, were burning mad when Dr. Anthony Italiano ordered referee Pete Giarrusso to end the bruising, action-packed fight, scheduled for 15 rounds at Municipal Auditorium.

In New York Saturday, Johnston said Peralta "would have positively knocked Pastrano out in a couple of rounds" if the fight hadn't been stopped.

"That boy will thank me some day for what I did," said Dr. Italiano, the ringside physician. "It was real bad cut. I know some people will question my decision on stopping a championship fight, but it was better to end it there than to have Peralta lose an eye.

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

By Bob Foss

What was the greatest start ever made by a big league player in baseball history? . . . Bob Nieman hit home runs HIS FIRST TWO TIMES UP in the majors . . . Nobody else ever made a start like that . . . Nieman achieved this feat when he broke in with the old St. Louis Browns in 1951.

* * *

One question a lot of fishermen ask is what's the biggest fish ever caught? . . . The official record for catching a salt water fish with rod and reel, is held by an Australian, Alfred Dean, who hooked a shark that weighed 2,664 pounds! . . . The shark was just two inches of being 17-feet long . . . Dean made his record catch in 1959.

* * *

Here's an oddity . . . Only once in big league baseball history has a team finished first one year, then, last the next . . . That strange fate befell the Philadelphia A's of 1914-15 . . . And what makes their tumble even more unbelieveable is this . . . In 1914, the A's won the pennant finishing 8½ games ahead . . . In 1915 they not only landed in last place, but they finished 58½ games behind!

Personal Drama Seen in Civil Rights Debate

By JOHN CHADWICK

The youngest member of the Senate, Edward M. Kennedy, 32, was standing by his back-row desk last week appealing for passage of the embattled anti-discrimination measure.

Kennedy, making his first major Senate speech on a national issue, spoke clearly and forcefully. At times he tapped his desk with his clenched right hand; at others he made a sort of chopping motion with his left arm.

About a score of Democratic senators listened attentively. The Republican side of the chamber was nearly empty. GOP senators were meeting in a party conference to discuss amendments to the bill.

The public galleries were about half filled.

"There are some personal reasons why I am so interested in the passage of this bill," Sen. Kennedy said. "As a young man I want to see an America where everyone can make his contribution, where a man will be measured not by the color of his skin but by the content of his character."

"And finally," he began.

His voice broke. He appeared to be struggling to control his emotions.

"And finally," he said again in a low, choked voice, "I remember the words of President Johnson last November 27th: 'No memorial oration or eulogy could more eloquently honor President Kennedy's memory than the earliest possible passage of the civil rights bill for which he fought so long.'"

In the gallery the young senator's wife couldn't keep back her tears. She quietly wiped them away with a small white handkerchief. A hush hung over the chamber.

Although his voice faltered, he went on:

"My brother was the first President of the United States to state publicly that segregation was morally wrong. His heart and his soul are in this bill.

"If his life and death had a meaning, it was that we should not hate but love one another; we should use our powers not to create conditions of oppression that lead to violence, but conditions of freedom that lead to peace.

"It is in that spirit that I hope the Senate will pass this bill."

As he started to take his seat, several colleagues rose to praise the speech and predict it would have an impact on the nation. Others simply went over to Kennedy's desk and shook his hand.

ROAD BLOCKING HIPPO

JOHANNESBURGH, South Africa (AP) — Mootrists in South Africa have a lot to contend with —including hippos.

M. Robinson, an officer at a forestry plantation in Zululand, was driving home one night when his headlights picked up a fully - grown hippo. The hippo lumbered across the road in front of the car and fell into a ditch. It reared out of the ditch, started crossing the road again, and collided with the car, wrecking the auto and causing Robinson to go through the windshield. The hippo escaped with a slight limp.

Freeman Tells Details of Farm, Cotton Program

Freeman must decide how much farmers will be required to reduce cotton allotments to become eligible for payments designed to help reduce production at a time when surpluses are large. There have been indications that this will be around one-third.

He must also decide the rate of these payments under a provision of the new legislation. It specifies a maximum of 4.5 cents a pound on the normal production of the reduced allotment. The speculation is that Freeman will decide on 3.5 cents a pound.

Furthermore, the secretary must decide whether there will be an export acreage allotment. The new program allows the secretary to permit growers to increase their original allotments up to 10 per cent, but providing that cotton grown on this extra acreage be sold abroad only without benefit of the government's export subsidy payment.

In the case of wheat, he must decide on details for shifting from the present price support program of $1.82 a bushel to $1.30, affective with the 1964 crop. Growers planting within wheat allotments already assigned them will be eligible for supplementary payments made from funds collected through a certificate plan from processers and exporters.

Meanwhile, the department arranged to send teams of its experts to the field next week to explain details of the new programs to its state administrative officials.

The schedule of these explanatory meetings includes:

Seattle — April 16 and 17 for officials from Idaho, Montana, North Dakota, Oregon, Washington and Wyoming.

San Francisco — April 16 and 17 for officials from Arizona, Calif., Colorado, Kansas, Nevada, New Mexico and Utah.

Would-Be Assassin Sentenced to Prison

TOKYO (AP)—An ultra-rightist who tried to assassinate Premier Hayato Ikeda was sentenced today to five years imprisonment by the District Court in Fukushima.

Takao Ishimoto, a member of the Great Japan Patriotic Youth organization, was arrested last November while trying to approach Ikeda with a knife in his hand. The premier was campaigning in Fukushima.

Ishimoto denied he intended to kill Ikeda. But the court said the evidence showed that Ishimoto planned to kill the premier because his policy toward Communist China wasn't tough enough.

Order Prohibits Sale of Stock In Publishing Firm

NEW YORK (AP) — Seven Denver stockholders in a publishing firm were prohibited last week by a federal injunction from selling unregistered shares of the company's stock.

The order — which also bars the publishing firm from selling unregistered stock — was handed down by Judge Edmund L. Palmieri. It was issued against the Harwyn Publishing Corp. of Manhattan and its president, Harvey R. Siegel of Jericho, N.Y.

Both the firm and the president agreed to the order which had been requested by the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC).

The firm publishes a children's encyclopedia, distributes an eyelash cosmetic and engages in commercial lithography. The SEC said that the company's stock is traded on the over-the-counter market.

The commission charged that between August 1961 and October 1963, Siegel sold to the public at least 45,650 unregistered Harwyn shares for $220,951. Since February 1963, the SEC said, the seven Denver defendants have acquired a controlling interest in the firm and have sold and pledged some of their holdings.

Teenage Girl Saved By Net in Plunge

NEW YORK (AP)—A 16-year-old girl after spurning pleas of two priests, her guardian and several policemen for 45 minutes—leaped five stories from a Harlem roof Friday. She landed in a net before some 3,000 onlookers.

Miss Fuller, whose parents are divorced, came to New York about seven months ago from Ithaca, N.Y., to live with her guardian, Lt. Charles West of the Salvation Army. The West family lives on the top floor of the Manhattan Citadel, Salvation Army headquarters, on East 125th Street, from which the girl jumped.

INDEPENDENCE, Iowa (UPI)—The burglars who looted the J&P Shoe Store here Friday ignored the money in the cash register but took $300 worth of shoes.

Full Integration Seen in Atlanta Classrooms

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—School rooms in the South, early targets of civil rights demonstrators, move from gradual integration to open classrooms for all in at least five school districts in the fall.

Southern School News, a Nashville, Tenn., publication, reported that the five districts would end gradual desegregation, which Negro leaders have called too slow.

The publication says desegregation in all grades will become effective in September in the districts in Knoxville and Knox County, Tenn., Little Rock, Ark., Reidsville and Randolph County in North Carolina.

A new order by the Defense Department forbids training of military personnel at a school or college practicing discrimination. The directive permits a number of exceptions. It was estimated that 100,000 service personnel are engaged in a variety of educational programs.

It takes five years for a tree to grow from 10 to 12 inches in diameter.

Britain Complains About Yemen Flight

LONDON (AP) — Britain has written to the president of the U.N. Security Council claiming that a Soviet-made plane from Yemen violated South Arabian air space near Beihan Friday, a Foreign Office spokesman said.

Britain asked that the letter be circulated to all Security Council members.

The aircraft, an Ilyushin, was said to have flown about five minutes over the area reported to be the scene of an attack by Yemeni aircraft last month. As a reprisal for that raid, eight British air force fighters destroyed a Yemeni fort at Harib on March 28.

W. T. Heyer Is Owner Of Auto Body Shop

H. K. Peifer, whose appointment as a salesman for Perkins Motor Co. Inc. was announced in the Gazette Telegraph last week, should have been identified as the former owner of Kim's Body Shop, according to W. T. Heyer.

Heyer said he purchased the body shop business from Peifer two years ago and has since changed the name to Craftsman Auto Body.

Heyer said the story also erred in saying that the body shop business was leased to him. He explained that Peifer has no connection with the business whatsoever and said that he leases the building itself from Mrs. Viola J. Peifer, the wife of the former owner.

Tie Defeats Immigration Bribe Probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a bitter crossfire of personal recrimination, the House refused by the closest possible vote Friday to give a veteran Ohio Democrat funds to investigate claims that some congressmen have taken payoffs to sponsor immigration bills.

The House voted, 69-69, on a motion by Rep. Michael Feighan, D-Ohio, to finance a House - Senate committee investigation of immigration policies and practices. Under House rules, a motion fails on a tie vote.

Members listened to Feighan, ranking Democratic member of the House Judiciary Committee, and Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N. Y., its chairman, swap insults for more than an hour. Then they turned down Feighan's request for $160,000 to hire extra staff for the joint committee on immigration and nationality policy for an "uninhibited investigation."

The action upheld a recommendation of the House Appropriations Committee, which voted to continue the token $20,000 budget allowed the long - dormant House - Senate group.

TEEN RECORDS STUDIED

DENVER (UPI)—Driving records of state teen-agers came under close scrutiny Thursday by a legislative committee which is thinking of increased restrictions on the young group's driving licenses. The committee is headed by Rep. Norman Ohlson, R-Colorado Springs. Tentative proposals under consideration include eventual adoption of 18 instead of 16 as the minimum age for unrestricted driver licensing and elimination of a special license for motor scooter operators under 16 years of age.

Clyde Casey Opens Pet Shop at 1109 S. Tejon St.

Clyde W. Casey, a native of Colorado Springs who's been raising tropical fish, birds, dogs and cats as a hobby, has gone into business operating Casey's House of Pets at 1109 S. Tejon St.

Casey, whose father, M. M. (Slim) Casey operated Casey Welding Works here for many years, opened the House of Pets April 4 for business, and plans a grand opening in about two weeks.

The business is open from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. seven days a week.

Casey will handle a full line of pets — dogs, cats, birds and fish — and has a grooming parlor for pets in the rear of the 1,500 square foot building.

Since opening, Casey has sold an ocelot to Douglas O'Brien, data processing man at the First National Bank, who said he wanted the medium-sized American wildcat as a pet.

Casey attended Colorado Springs High School and Colorado College, and operated his own tire shop in Pueblo before becoming manager of the B. F. Goodrich Store here. He is a member of the board of directors of the Junior Chamber of Commerce and is in charge of tourist promotion. He also is a member of Silver State Lodge No. 95, AF and AM, in Pueblo.

He and his wife, Mildred, have a daughter, Terry, and two sons, Shawn and Timothy. The family lives at 530 Yellowstone Rd.

AFA Members Dig Deeper for Joint Crusade

Air Force Academy personnel (military and civilian) dug a little deeper in their jeans this year than last to push participation rate in the Federal Services Joint Crusade for 1964 to 83 per cent.

The 1963 rate was 82 per cent.

Exact dollar amount collected will not be known until the Denver bank handling accounting for the drive delivers a final figure.

A total of seven Academy organizations reached 100 per cent participation. They included: Judge Advocate, Command, Athletics, Inspecition, Personnel, Information, and Registrar.

Comptroller, Preparatory School, and Administration hit 97 per cent and Dean of Faculty, 95 per cent.

Project officer Col. Harry C. Greene, commander of the 7625th USAF Hospital, said the increase in participation was "an indication of the efforts of project officers and key workers in all organizations."

Three out of every four children are now attending schools which participate in the National School Lunch Program, the U.S. Department of Agriculture reports.

The house is of frame construction and has white lap siding. The roof, too, is white.

Hermanson acquired the 40-acre tract from Grace Caton of McAllen, Tex., late in 1962, and since then, 27 homes have been constructed in the area by various builders. Originally, the area had 86 building sites.

Hermanson said the area is being left in its natural state. The area has wildflowers, scrub oak and cactus, and most lots have 100-foot frontages and are 100 to 115 feet deep.

The area is at the south edge of the Garden of the Gods and has the same type of terrain as the Garden of the Gods. It is served by city utilities.

Hermanson has lived here since 1953, moving to Colorado Springs from Leeds, N. D., where he operated an automobile agency. A native of Mahnonen, Mich., he served five years in the U. S. Air Force and spent time in the Pacific Theatre as an aerial gunner and crew chief with the 11th Air Force during World War II. He was discharged from the service in 1949.

Mr. and Mrs. Hermanson live at 3521 Bowdoin St. in the new development area. All streets in the area are named for colleges, including Vassar, Hamilton and Holyoke.

Stock Market Weathers Unsettling News

By Ed Morse
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market this week weathered some unsettling news — the indictment of eight steel companies on charges of price fixing and the renewed threat of a railroad strike.

The stock list remained on an even keel. Slight changes in the popular market averages for the week were in conflict, but more stocks advanced than declined.

Since the market was near its highest level in history at the time the adverse news came, market analysts were encouraged.

The week began with all popular averages moving up moderately to record highs. Steel production for the week was at a ten-month high. The government reported that consumer credit rose in February by the largest amount in more than four years.

The bullish mood was broken on Tuesday by news that the steel companies had been indicted.

The railroad strike threat appeared on Wednesday.

President Johnson's anouncement that the rail strike threat had been postponed 15 days provided the basis for a recovery by rail stocks on Friday and a fairly good advance by the over-all market.

The five most active issues this week on the New York Stock Exchange were:

Chrysler, up 3⅛ at 48 on 500,600 shares; Texas Gulf Sulphur, up 3⅛ at 30⅛; Transitron up 2⅛ at 6⅞; Radio Corp., up ½ at 35⅞; and Fairchild Camera, up ⅝ at 29¾.

The five most active issues on the American Stock Exchange were:

Mohawk Airlines, off ⅞ at 9¾ on 254,000 shares; White Eagle International, unchanged at 9-16; Syntex, up 4⅞ at 83⅜; Goldfield off ¼ at 1⅞; and Seaboard World Airlines off ⅜ at 8⅝.

'Chronic Ailment' Still There at Age of 95

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — In 1939, when he was 70, Dr. Rush E. Castelaw told an interviewer:

"Worry shortens life. People with adequate annuities outlive those with financial worry. A man with a chronic ailment is apt to take good care of himself. I have an ample annuity, and I have a chronic ailment. I should live to be a hundred."

Dr. Castelaw turned 95 Thursday and said he couldn't see anything remarkable about it. He's the only survivor of the class of 1887 at Greenfield, Ill. High School and came to Kansas City in 1888.

New Drug Compared to Morphine

A new drug, believed to be nonaddicting, that approaches the paid-relieving ability of morphine, has been developed, Harvard University researchers reported today in the current Journal of the American Medical Association.

Pentazocine, classified as a morphine antagonist because it reverses the effect of morphine and similar-acting drugs in man, was described by Drs. Leo J. Cass, Willem S. Frederik and Jose V. Teodoro, Boston.

The drug was tested in a double-blind study among 16 patients, 15 men and 1 woman ranging in age from 41 to 72, with chronic moderate to severe pain. The patients received injections of pentazocine in two different amounts, morphine sulfate, or an innocuous substance at different times over a three-day period.

"Pentazocine in 40 mg (milligram) dosage approaches though is not equal to the analgesic effectiveness of morphine sulfate 20 mg," the researchers said. "It produces basically the same side effects (nausea, vomiting, excitement, drowsiness, dizziness) as morphine, but more severe and more frequent drowsiness.

"Pentazocine in 20 mg dosage produces considerably fewer side effects than either morphine or pentazocine 40 mg, but still maintains a fairly high level of pain relief over a period of at least two hours."

So far, they said, pentazocine has not been found to produce or support tolerance or dependence.

The earlier discovery that nalorphine hydrochloride, another morphine antagonist, had pain relieving properties opened up new possibilities in the field of analgesics, the authors commented.

Studies with nalorphine showed that potent pain relief could be separated from dependency and a pain reliever of the morphine level of effectiveness without addictive properties could be developed, they said. However, nalorphine had to be abandoned because of the severe side effects it caused. Work with other morphine antagonists followed.

Miles Spanned In Seconds by MARS Operation

The thousands of miles separating Colorado and earthquake torn Alaska were spanned in seconds by the Air Force Academy MARS (Military Affiliate Radio Station) during the height of the recent disaster.

Shortly after learning of the Alaskan 'quake, Academy MARS personnel began attempts to contact their counterparts at Elmendorf AFB. Contact was established at 9:30 a.m. on March 28.

Despite great technical difficulty in maintaining contact, the connection was held until midnight March 29.

Lay Off Fails To Dull Eye of AFA Rifle Squad

George Suro took the marksmanship class championship to lead the victory parade. Cadets also won the two-man and four-man team title in the sharpshooter classification. Four-man team members were Suro, R. D. Krobusek, W. S. Lawhorn, and W. K. Shepard; Krobusek and Suro formed the two-man squad.

Shopping Center to Be Built At Airport Road, Circle Drive

A shopping center with a medical building and four commercial buildings will be constructed at the northeast corner of Airport Road and South Circle Drive this summer by G. P. Enterprises Inc., organized by Dr. Kenneth E. Gloss and Joseph F. Pieper.

The area will be known as Circle Fair Shopping Center, and will be located just west of the Timbers apartments.

Plans for the shopping center are being drawn by E. R. Tillman, Colorado Springs architect, and the general contract has been awarded to Godwin Bevers Co. Inc.

The medical building will have seven physicians' suites, two dental suites, a pharmacy, a laboratory and an X-ray suite, and will be two stories high and have storage and public space. This building will face a landscaped mall, around which will be the commercial buildings, one story high. Each of the commercial buildings will be 40 by 100 feet in size.

The buildings will be of masonry, native stone and heavy timber construction, Tillman said. Construction work is scheduled to begin June 1 and tenants will begin moving into the buildings after Oct. 1.

The project, embracing 3.2 acres of land, will represent an investment of about $500,000, an will include parking spaces for 317 vehicles.

Venetian Palace Sold at Auction

VENICE, Italy (AP) — A 17th Century Venetian palace and its antique furnishings have been sold at auction for nearly $1.5 million, but buyers passed up one of the building's more modern fixtures.

A refrigerator in good working order drew no bidders as the five days of auctions and private sales ended Friday night.

More than a thousand antique dealers and art lovers crowded Labia Palace, near the Grand Cana. The palace was bought for $560,000 by Italy's state radio television network, Rai, to house its Venice operations.

Ground Breaking At Carson Set This Week

Ceremonies will be held this week to begin construction on 280 new family housing units at Ft. Carson. The ground breaking is scheduled for 10 a.m. Thursday.

The 54 multi-plex buildings for officers and non-commissioned officers will be built by R. P. R. Construction Company, Inc., of Phoenix, Ariz. The company submitted the low bid of $3,539,200 to construct the units.

Non-commissioned officers will get 250 of the new units to be built north of the present housing area and south of Gate 2. Thirty officers quarters will be built southwest of the company grade housing area.

Completion of the first 15 buildings for non-commissioned officers will be in 365 days, followed by 15 more units 60 days later. Buildings in the officer area will be completed 120 days after the first group.

The buildings will be of frame construction with brick veneer. Each unit will have stoves and refrigerators installed.

Included in the contract is installation of storm sewers, water, gas, service lines, grading, paving, concrete walks, curbs and gutters, landscaping, electrim primary and secondary distribution services, street lighting and transformers.

Work on the $513,750 Chapel Center started March 31. It is due to be completed May 12, 1964.

Bids will be opened April 28 in Omaha for two battalion motor shops. The project will close out the $10 million construction projects for FY 1964.

Diary Tells Story of Capture of Jeff Davis

By RICHARD WHALEN

NEW YORK (AP) — A diary found in a Michigan attic bids fair to stir up an old feud among Civil War buffs over the capture of Jefferson Davis. The diary contains a first-hand account of the event.

Davis, president of the Confederate States of America, was wearing woman's clothing when Union troops took him prisoner near Irwinville, Ga., on May 10, 1865. The puzzler that has divided historians is whether the cloak and shawl Davis admitted having worn were intended to be a disguise.

At the time, many people in the North made Davis, a courtly and stern gentleman, the butt of derision and ridicule. Cartoons of the day lampooned him in a woman's dress.

"One o'clock a.m. Have just arrived at Irwinsville (sic). Moon is shining brightly. Have examined the roads. At 3½ o'c a.m. moved up & captured the whole camp without firing a shot, which proved to be Jeff Davis (who attempted to make his escape in disguise of an old woman, fit ending for such a cause as his), together with his family, and portions of his civil and military staff. Soon after capture had a verryy (sic) sad & unfortunate collision with 1st Wis Cav in which several men were wounded & two killed, either of whom was worth more than the whole Southern Confederacy. . . ."

The diary and 75 of 100 other items of Pritchard's papers were sold at auction recently by John Fox who said tips led him to the papers in trunks in the house Pritchard built in Allegan, Mich. He said Dudley H. Pritchard, the Civil War officer's grandson, lives there.

Until now, one of the main pieces of evidence that Davis was disguised in woman's clothing was Pritchard's account 15 days later to Secretary of War Edwin Stanton. Pritchard's copy of this document is among the papers auctioned.

BANK NEEDS LOAN

After a hasty conference, a cashier slipped across the street to Barclay's Bank for a loan. The trouble — "a little bother with the combination lock" — was sorted out later, according to a Midland official.

Life Term Is Given In Murder Case

DULUTH, Minn. (AP)—Norman Mastrian, alleged payoff man in the slaying of Carol Thompson, starts a life term in prison Monday.

At Stillwater Prison, Mastrian will join T. Eugene Thompson, sentenced to life for engineering his wife's slaying last December.

Dick W. C. Anderson, who admitted killing Mrs. Thompson in March 1963 for a $2,300 fee — paid by Thompson through Mastrian — was the state's chief witness at both trials. He also is charged with murder.

The state charged the killing was undertaken so Thompson could collect a million dollars insurance on his wife and resume an affair with a former secretary in his St. Paul law office.

Looking at Hollywood

'I'LL TAKE SWEDEN' TO BE BOB HOPE'S NEXT FILM

HOLLYWOOD — Bob Hope's next picture will be "I'll Take Sweden," and if present plans jell, he'll be playing Tuesday Weld's father. The comedy has him taking his offspring to Sweden so he can forget a romance. There he becomes involved with a notoriously ardent Swede. No, not Ingrid Bergman. Hope didn't get to hear President Johnson's off-the-record remarks at the Press club in Washington. He was told to wait in a nearby room where Johnson would join him. Bob waited, but the Secret Service men whisked Johnson right by. The President took Hope and others on a tour of the White House. When he had them all seated in his office, he turned to Bob and asked "When do you find time to make any money?" Said Hope: "Every time he'd leave a room he'd turn the lights out and leave the rest of us to stagger out in the dark. I told him it was the first time I ever walked out of a room by braille."

There's no business like show business. After Mitzi Gaynor agreed to appear at the President's opening campaign rally, she was invited to lunch with him. Rock Hudson and Gregory Peck will also break bread in the White House. I understand Lloyd Shearer, Hollywood writer, is in Washington working on some Presidential speeches. Pierre Salinger has Marilyn Monroe's press agent, Pat Newcomb, helping run his Senate campaign and named Lew Wasserman his treasurer. Actor George Murphy's running his own.

Max Showalter was all set to direct "Touch of the Sun," for which he wrote the music, on Broadway in January, but hasn't stopped working long enough to catch the plane. So producers Horace Masterson and Norman Twain will move the play to Hollywood. Max is currently in "How to Murder Your Wife" with Jack Lemmon, will go into a Perry Mason, and will play opposite Vivian Vance in three shows she and Lucille Ball are going to do at the World's Fair for next season.

Every time I see a commercial featuring an athlete with shot, but when she saw it in of the first time Doug Fairbanks Sr. bared his chest for the screen. His wife, Beth, was out of town when the scene was shot, but when she saw it in the projection room, she insisted the studio rebuild the set, shave Doug's chest, and reshoot it. Progress marches on.

When Dan Duryea starts "Taggart," a western at Universal, his 22-year-old son, Peter, will be co-starring. And to confuse you, Dan's the hero and Pete, the heavy. They've appeared together in summer stock, but this will be Pete's picture debut.

Harpo Marx is off to Seattle and Portland in behalf of the United Jewish appeal.

John Smith spent six months in Madrid doing tricky acrobatic stunts in John Wayne's "Circus World." Came home and was helping wife, Luana Patten hang pictures in their new home and dislocated both shoulders.

Delay of General Assembly Predicted

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Diplomats expect the scheduled Sept. 15 opening of the 19th annual session of the General Assembly to be delayed until November.

They said 50 nonaligned countries would ask Secretary-General U Thant within two weeks for the postponement so they can give attention to the October conference of nonaligned nations in Cairo.

The United States and Russia are in tacit agreement to postpone the assembly session until after the U.S. election Nov. 3.

Water Lawyer Dies at Greeley

GREELEY (AP) — John R. Clayton, a noted Colorado water attorney, died of an apparent heart attack Friday in an ambulance en route to a Greeley hospital.

Clayton, 48, was attorney for the Northern Colorado Water Conservancy District, administrative agency for the Colorado-Big Thompson Project.

He was a vice president of the Colorado Bar Association, president of the Greeley School Board, a director and attorney for the Greeley National Bank and the Home Light & Power Co. of Greeley and past president of both the Chamber of Commerce and Rotary Club.

In recent years Clayton was active as a member of the Colorado Bar Association's committee for recodification of water laws.

He was born at Syracuse, Kan., and a law graduate of George Washington University.

Brutality Charge Protection Sought

PUEBLO, Colo. (AP) — Colorado police officers were asked Friday to seek federal legal action against persons who falsely charge police with brutality.

Chief Roy F. Harper of Pueblo introduced the resolution at the annual convention of the Colorado Police Protective Association. The statement calls for the Justice Department to prosecute persons who use the claim of brutality to cover their own activities or to embarrass officers.

"We're tired of having some punk holler brutality when he resists arrest and has to be hauled off to jail," Harper said.

The issue arose from the case of a Pueblo man who severely hit a police officer arresting him, and then complained to the FBI that his civil rights had been violated. The FBI conducted an investigation and cleared the police department of any blame.

In the 18th century snuff manufacturers added rose scent, oil of lemon, Spanish saffron, molasses, tincture of rhubarb, licorice, ambergris and seaweed to the powdered tobacco.

Criminologist Says Vast Change Creating Crime

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — A noted criminologist warned today that far-reaching changes in American life had caused crime rates in the United States to soar way beyond population growth.

Joseph D. Lohman, dean of the school of criminology at the University of California, called for deeper cooperation between law enforcement, welfare and service agencies as a possible solution to the problem.

Lohman, speaking at the University of Colorado's annual Colorado Newspaper Conference, said the ultimate answer to crime was not a matter of law enforcement alone.

He said it also was a problem of "education, family organization, employment opportunity and housing."

The former Cook County, Ill., sheriff said the rush to metropolitan areas had created new difficulties for both the big city and small town police officer. He said it had created a society in which the individual counts for little and cares little about the fate of his fellow man.

Local Student Gets NSF Summer Grant

Willard R. Chappell of Colorado Springs was among 17 University of Colorado graduate students who have been awarded National Science Foundation grants for study at CU this summer or next years.

Chappell was awarded the grant to study physics.

Florence History Uncovered in Strong Box

An interesting chapter of Florence history was uncovered this week with the opening of a metal strong box which reposed beneath the cornerstone of the old McCandless school building for 69 years.

The school, now being torn down by Milo Werner of Penrose, was once a proud new high school in Florence and for several decades served as an elementary school building for literally thousands of local youngsters.

On a hot July afternoon in 1895, a parade launched the impressive ceremonies with the Petroleum band leading the way.

A host of the state's Masonic lodge officials and representatives from other lodges and fraternal orders joined in the celebration.

City officials too were on hand to see William L. Bush, most worshipful grand master of the Grand Lodge of Colorado, AF&AM conduct the rites.

Before the heavy 500-pound cornerstone was set in place by the Masonic officials on the traditional northeast corner of the building, a strong box containing a host of documents of one kind or another were placed inside the box.

The box was sealed and placed in the foundation. The heavy stone was cemented in place and the ceremonies were concluded.

Many of the builders were on hand for the celebration including the carpenters — Jacob Juergens, Sam Cronk, Edward G. Welch, Lewis Fisher, and Cory H. Munsell; the stone cutters — Fritz Kober, Frank Sell, Jim Allen, Charley Landstrom, and Charles Smith; the stone masons — John McCruden, Al McCullan, Patt Toroye, Henry Weber, Archie Brown, and Guss Anderson; the stone laborers — Mike Brady, Phil McCullen, G. Jones, John Boyle, and Mike McGuyre; the brick layers — George Bridges, Jim Bridges, Frank Little, C. Harvey, G. Flanezan, W. L. Rinsheel, John Lynch, Andy Halberg, A. Rifle, Neal Corners, George McDillen, and John Shake; and the painters — George Stivers and Edward J. Huber.

The McCandless school block has been purchased by Frank Witty and will eventually be the site of new home construction.

Meanwhile school officials have been sorting out the papers and documents found in the strong box and will place most of them on exhibit. All documents will remain in the school's archives.

It is interesting to note that among some of the papers found within the strong box, one contained the cryptic information that some reconstruction was performed in the year 1909.

A check through old newspaper files of the period and interviews with several pioneer residents revealed that in the year 1909 the school district found it necessary to reenforce the foundations which had been built with sandstone. The workmen at that time had uncovered the strong box in the foundation, opened it and inserted the notation.

The box was then sealed with concrete and preserved through the years until opened by Superintendent of School Barto Babitz and Business Manager Wayne Strickland this week.

Newspapers Found in Box Under Old School

Three Florence newspapers were among the relics found in the strong box buried deep within the foundation of the old McCandless building now being razed by Milo Werner of Penrose.

Covered by a huge cornerstone for nearly 70 years, the box was removed and opened this week by school officials. Articles are now being prepared for public display.

The three newspapers found at the building site included the July 1895 editions of the Oil Refiner, the Florence Daily Chronicle, and the Florence News.

Each of the four-page papers had a variety of news items and advertising which would enthrall old timers of the area and delight history addicts.

The Daily Chronicle headed the movement of U. S. cavalry units to the Jackson Hole country of northwestern Wyoming to fight off an Indian uprising. Troops were moving into the area from Ft. Russell, parts of Colorado, and Wyoming militiamen were being assigned to protect the Lander, Wyo., area.

A Cuban expedition was under way with a large and well-armed vessel sailing from New York to battle "insurgents." There was a flood in Kansas City, an asylum struck by lightning in Wisconsin, and James J. Corbett, heavyweigth boxing champ, had been granted a divorce.

The Colorado Fuel & Iron Company had been awarded a contract to supply 3,000 ton of steel rails for the D&RG and the Union National Bank failed in Denver.

In the columns of the Florence News, published by Hawkins & Cleghorn, the program for building McCandless school was given considerable attention including the proposed programs for the laying of the cornerstone and its dedication by the Masonic fraternities.

The News also had a story recounting the jury trial for a gang of train robbers headed by Kid Wallace. Catholic church services were then held at the Florence City hall. Considerable space was also devoted to the construction of new brick homes in Florence and the plight of those people still forced to live in tents within the city.

Young men about Florence were being encouraged to form a military company at the Florence Land company office at the suggestion of General Moses. Those signing up the group were Al Harris and F. W. White.

A notice for excursion trips to Manitou Springs from Florence at $1 was carried by the News along with an article urging the country to erect a bridge over the Arkansas river between Florence and Canon City.

The News was highly indignant over the "grand opening" of a sporting house on lower Pikes Peak Avenue and noted that "these establishments have been winked at and indulged so much by the authorities that they begin to think they owned the town."

A struggle was being made over Beaver Creek water by Colorado Springs, Victor, and Crippled Creek, and considerable mining activity was reported in area.

Two promoters, DeWeese and Dye, were laying out a new water system for Lincoln Park.

The Oil Refiner, published by J. W. Work, noted that "a large boarding house" in Canon City now has 662 boarders. . .referring to the state prison, and also reported that F. M. Smith has picked 827 quarts of strawberries on one-half acre of ground.

Traffic on the Florence & Cripple Creek railroad was delayed three hours when two tank cars were derailed on a sharp curve in the Canon.

The editor also commented that "Pueblo is putting on airs as a famous summer resort. . ." He added that "a famous watering place would be more appropriate."

The three newspapers, soon to be displayed by the school district, are in excellent condition.

Rev. Garlick To Train Taiwan Young People

Training young people in Taiwan for Christian service through boys club and camp work will be the task of the Rev. David Garlick who will be guest speaker at Temple Baptist Church Wednesday, at 7:00 p.m.

Garlick has had experience in working with boys in clubs and camps in the United States. When he goes to Taiwan as a missionary he expects to adapt the methods and techniques he used here to the Taiwanese culture.

To prepare for missionary service with the Conservative Baptist Foreign Mission Society of Wheaton, Illinois, Garlick graduated from the Moody Bible institute, Chicago, and from Sterling college, Sterling, Kansas.

He has a M.A. in educational administration from Denver university, Denver, Colorado. He also studied for three years at the Conservative Baptist Theological seminary in Denver.

Girl Injured When Struck By Car

A 12-year old girl was knocked down by a car Saturday and taken to Penrose Hospital suffering from multiple abrasions and contusions all over the body and a minute pelvic bone fracture, police reported.

Jeannie Marie Owen, 820 Manitou Blvd. was crossing at Pine and Bijou Streets when she was hit by a car driven by Elmer Combs, 36, of Penrose. Combs told police officers that he was going south on Pine Street and stopped at a stop sign. He started to cross Bijou Street when he saw the girl by the left of his front fender and braked and stopped.

The girl who was carried 26 feet on the fender, said she was crossing the street when she suddenly saw the car and was unable to get out of the way.

Driver Misses Curve; Police Lower Boom

A driver who failed to negotiate a curve at the intersection of North Circle Drive and Van Buren Street was ticketed by police Saturday for reckless driving, careless driving, damage to city property and damage to private property.

Otis Earl Hasty, 22, of Monument, was going west on North Circle Drive when he did not make the curve. The car jumped the curb, hit a utility pole, sheared it off in three places, traveled on west across part of the Audubon School grounds, jumped a couple of more curbs on East Van Buren Street and finally came to rest in front of 2300 E. Van Buren Street. The vehicle was totally demolished as was a planter outside the spot where the car stopped.

Clothing Reported Taken From Car

A quantity of men and women's clothing worth a total of $69.45 was stolen from a car belonging to Douglas LaMar Chavez, 1820 E. Yampa St. police reported Saturday.

Chavez said he had parked the vehicle which was locked, outside Sno-White Cleaners, 116 S. Cascade. When he returned he found the window had been forced.

Antibiotics Taken During Pregnancy Can Harm Baby

Abnormal teeth were found in seven children whose mothers had taken a tetracycline (oxytetracycline, demethylchlortetracycline or tetracycline) after the fourth month of pregnancy, Allen H. Kline, M.D., Russell J. Blattner, M.D., and Martin Lunin, D.D.S., Houston, wrote in the current Journal of the American Medical Association.

The affected teeth showed yellow fluorescence indicating tetracyclin edeposits in calcifying tissues, according to the report. Six of the seven children, aged two to five, had teeth showing varying degrees of decay and incomplete enamel development.

A total of 13 children were studied, 9 from the Venereal Disease Clinic of Jefferson Davis Hospital in Houston and 4 from private practice. None had received a thetracycline since birth.

Nine of the children were born to mothers given a tetracycline or erythromycin, another antibiotic, for syphilis during pregnancy because of penicillin allergy. The private patients all received a tetracycline. All drugs were taken by mouth.

None of the four children of mothers given erythromycin in the sixth, seventh and eighth months of pregnancy had abnormal teeth. The other two children who had no tooth abnormalities were born to mothers given a tetracycline in the third month of pregnancy.

The pregnancy records of the four private patients were reviewed after tooth abnormalities were observed in the children, the report pointed out. The nine children of clinic cases were called in for examination because of the administration of the drugs to their mothers during pregnancy.

The dosage and duration of medication required to damage the teeth are being studied by the authors.

Of special interest was the drug history of the mother of three children included in the study, the authors said. She was given erythromycin when six months pregnant with her first child, who has normal teeth. She was given oxytetracycline when six months pregnant with her second child, who has yellow fluorescent teeth. She was given oxytetracycline when three months pregnant with the third child, who has normal teeth.

"It would seem reasonable, therefore, that in this instance the tetracycline received at three months' gestation did not affect the teeth adversely because the mother received the drug before the teeth were being calcified," the authors commented.

Drs. Kline and Blattner are affiliated with Baylor University College of Medicine and Dr. Lunin with the University of Texas Dental Branch.

Two Local Homes Damaged by Vandals

The first happened at the home of Mrs. H. D. Daniels, 1305 La Paloma Way. She told Deputy Sheriffs Vincent Denboske and Larry Holien that her mail box had been completely demolished with two large rocks. A similar incident happened to her a week ago.

The second case was reported by Robert Munro, 1653 Apache Trail who told Deputy Sheriff Ray Carey that two plate glass doors and five windows had been smashed at a house under construction at 1830 Parkview Blvd.

Firemen Kept Busy With Grass Fires

The Colorado Springs Fire Department put out three grass fires Saturday. The largest was in the rear of 2842 Country Club Drive. The alarm was received at 12:49 p.m. The fire was caused by a trash fire which got out of control. Grass was burned over several acres of ground. There was no damage other than the loss of grass. Company 6 fought this fire.

Company 2 on a 3:48 p.m. alarm put out a grass fire at 1118 N. Meade St. There was no damage.

Companies 1, 2 and the aerial at 2:36 p.m. went to a box on Monument Street, between Nevada Avenue and Weber Street. This proved to be a false alarm.

A New Blank for Taxpayers

Since it is now apparent that all of us are to become increasingly subject to government investigation, either by the Internal Revenue people or other departments of our giant state, it is important that certain safeguards be introduced to protect the privacy and good name of each person thus coming under investigation.

To that end, a friend in Chicago has suggested that a blank form be prepared, preferably in quadruplicate, to be made available to all Americans so they can ask each government man making any kind of investigation to fill out the form before any interrogation ensues.

Since it is now quite clear that government intends to leave no stone unturned insofar as acquiring knowledge of us is concerned, it is equally clear that we are considered to be "official" taxpayers of the nation, and as taxpayers, we are part of the official "government" family and have certain rights and privileges thereby.

Since it is our money that pays even for our own investigation, it is important that we not be set upon by imposters, that we are treated courteously, that promises made to us in the course of any investigation be kept, and that questions which are not pertinent to any specific investigation remain unanswered.

It is also important that higher-ups in government be furnished with copies of these blank forms so that appropriate disciplinary actions can be taken where it appears to be warranted.

Important information granted to one bureau must not come into the hands of a second bureau.

To that end, we have prepared a blank form which you are at liberty to copy as many times as you wish, making such deletions or additions as to you seem appropriate. It appears below.

Now, there will be some who will say that this is an impertinence and that we should not try to question those sent by the government to question us.

But surely that argument is not substantial. Since the government depends on all of us primarily, not only for the money by means of which its giant payroll is met, but on our obedience to understand and comply with all of its various causes, demands, assessments, levies, controls, regulations, restraints, compulsions and so on, it is only fitting and proper that we protect ourselves, since we are a kind of government property.

Damage to us which impairs our ability as wage earners will unquestionably cut off future government revenue. Damage to our peace of mind, our security in property, our health, mental or physical, all can have a deplorable reaction on the ability of the government to coerce us and injure us in the future.

And since, as citizens of America, we have rights which derive from the Creator or from the nature of man as he is, and not from government, and since the Declaration of Independence sets forth in specific terms that whenever governments overstep their bounds and seek to deprive us of our rights, we retain a prior right, namely, to alter or abolish our government and to provide "new guards" for our security, then it behooves us to safeguard ourselves from undue and unnecessary prying.

Our nation depends upon the freedom of the people. If that freedom goes, then our nation will fall. The fall of the nation, should it occur, will be upon our own heads, and therefore, not only our own rights are involved, but it becomes a simple matter of common sense to protect ourselves since we cannot really depend on the government to protect us from itself.

Conceivably, we have an obligation to ourselves and our posterity as well as to the government itself, that we do not assist or participate in any action which would contravene our rights as individuals.

Public Servants Questionnaire

To be executed in quadruplicate. Original to taxpayer's files. Second copy to head of department from which public servant was sent. Third copy to taxpayer's attorney. Fourth copy to public servant. Taxpayer will assume responsibility of mailing to appropriate persons.

Name of private person (if any) who suggested that investigation be made. ________ Address ________
Was private person paid for turning in the name of taxpayer? —— How much was he paid? $——

Note: Amendment VI of the Constitution says: "In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy trial, by an impartial jury of the state and district wherein the crime shall have been committed, which district shall have been previously ascertained by law, and to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation; to be confronted with the witnesses against him; to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor, and to have the assistance of counsel for his defense." Since government investigations are frequently followed by criminal prosecution, the taxpayer has a right to know the names of his accusers and to also be informed of the nature of the accusation brought against him. Also, Amendment V guarantees the right of the individual not to incriminate himself. Thus, a failure on the part of the investigator to satisfactorily answer the foregoing may provide grounds for refusing to answer questions. See a lawyer if questions remain in your mind on this point.

Will you (the public servant) guarantee that the information requested will not be used by persons in departments, bureaus or agencies other than the one for whom you are employed? ——. If not, why not? ________

Answers to questions should be put down by taxpayer. If, at the end of the questioning, the public servant declines to swear or affirm to the truthfulness of what he has answered, this fact should be noted and the forms sent off as directed.

Nation's Press

Disagreements

From The Royal Bank of Canada Monthly Letter

More disagreements between people and between nations can be traced to misunderstanding than to any other cause. The bitterest conflicts within families and within offices and workshops have not been waged for great ideals, but for one opinion against another.

If, as has been said, life may be defined as the continuous adjustment of internal relations to external relations, then here is an area where we may contribute greatly to our peace of mind.

Adaptation implies tolerance. Intolerant people have a limited outlook in an age which demands that we take wide views. Their intolerance shows itself in many ways, from simple withdrawal from society to "hate-gnarled features, twisted by passions as old as mankind," as a newspaper reported a race riot in the United States.

The argument against intolerance is not only a moral argument, but rests solidly upon two simple considerations: (1) it is not humanly possible to know all the facts, or even all of any one fact; (2) we live in a tense age in which the overmastering need is to accept the rights, duties and privileges of individuals regardless of their family, church, political and national background and environment.

Question Box

(We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not invite [illegible])

Question No. 476: Why do so many who seem to think they are conservative take no stand against the government using a different standard of right than men use who understand the Human Relations Commandments?

Answer: In the first place, "conservative" is a loose term. There are about as many ideas of what a conservative is as there are individuals. We, of course, want to conserve what is in harmony with the Human Relations Commandments but since they have never been fully in use, we want to be radical and try to approach more fully the use and the understanding of the Human Relations Commandments.

Undoubtedly the answer is that most men have been indoctrinated by their environment and from what they got from tax-supported schools and colleges that the state has a right to do things that would be a violation of the Human Relations Commandments if done by an individual.

Two different standards of right means no standard at all. It means chaos. It means might makes right, the end justifies the means and we do not reap what we sow.

When people believe they have a right to force a man to pay for something that he does not want when it is done by the state, they have a double standard of what they claim they have a right to do as an individual. It is doubtful whether any man who believes and understands the Human Relations Commandments would contend that he as an individual has a right to force his neighbor to pay for the kind of education he wants. Yet he will turn right around and contend that the majority or the state can make what is a crime for an individual to do, a virtue if it is done by the majority.

To summarize, people who regard themselves as conservative and take a double standard of right and wrong — one for the state and another for the individual — are doing it simply because they are products of their environment. They have not been taught to think and to reason and those who have accumulated a little capital are looked up to and followed as if they knew what they were doing. Many of them got their wealth by being born where there were lots of natural resources and people flocked into the territory thus appreciating their land in value infinitely more than it would have if it had not been for them being born or locating in their youth in the land which was rapidly increasing in population. When the population increases and the people go to work, the community develops and the man who has a lot of real estate becomes wealthy.

So be careful of following a man because he is wealthy and regards himself as a conservative unless he will answer questions about what he is advocating or doing without evasion or contradiction. Most of our trouble comes from not knowing in whom to have confidence. We have been taught that men holding a certificate from the state to teach in the schools and colleges are educators. But they are anything but educators, because they are not educated enough to answer questions about what they are doing. They are pretenders and are leading us into slavery.

Questions are limited to general human relations questions that will improve the well-being of all mankind on this earth.

SPEECH BY NAIR

To the Editor:

About 9 p.m. on April 2, a communist sympathizer by the name of Harry K. Nair Jr., supposedly an active attorney in Denver, spoke to the Colorado Springs Junior Chamber of Commerce. This writer attended that meeting and was happy that he did.

Attorney Nair gave one of the most ridiculous speeches that has been witnessed personally throughout my lifetime, and that has been a lot of years.

In this speech, Nair endeavored to sell the JC's the idea that Cuba is better off today in every respect than it has ever been. Oh, yes, the topic of his speech was fair play for Cuba.

Nair wants the travel ban for Americans lifted. His argument is to let us Americans see for themselves the true conditions in Cuba. Actually, it is believed that Nair wants the travel ban lifted in order that the American tourists will pour money into Cuba in order to build up their economy which, according to the radio program "Life Line," program No. 71, the economical condition of Cuba is the lowest in its history. Life Line, in my humble opinion is, to the fullest extent, more reliable than the statements made by Nair.

Nair said he hasn't been in Cuba since the ban was imposed in 1961. As well informed as he said he is on their economical condition, this is difficult to believe. It is believed that he is informed, but to the contrary as to the thoughts he tried to convey to the JC's.

This guy even stated that the lower economic strata of the U.S. population would also benefit from a similar revolution. What kind of thinking is that? The entire speech was sickening.

After his putrid oratory, there was a question and answer session which was really enlightening, for the JC's tore into him with hammer and tongs, verbally, I mean, not in the sense that it sounds. When he answered their questions, his answers were typical, a lot of double talk, but never getting to the point and never giving a direct answer. This stooge must have been trained extensively in the art of talking on any subject a question may pertain, but never giving a concrete answer.

At one point during the question and answer session, one JC asked Nair if he believed in communism, condoned communism or was he a communist. Nair talked for a least five minutes detailing the good things which have been accomplished by the communists, but never answering the questions. After his drawnout praise of communism, another JC told him that he never answered the questions. Nair had the gall to reply, what was the question? That was it. I asked him pointblank, loud and clear, are you a communist? His answer was, no, I'm not a communist, but there are many things that communism and socialism have to offer that we should look at.

It was a pleasure to find out, first hand, the attitude of the JC's on this matter. It was learned that most of them are better informed on communism than the average citizen realizes. However, average citizen, don't take this to mean that we should become more complacent by thinking that the JC's are informed and will protect our interest. This fight against the communists is everyone's business, including the lower economic strata.

Russia and Cuba are having serious economical troubles, which is good for the free world if we will take advantage of the situation. What is meant by "we" is the citizens of these good old United States, not the wheels in Washington who have been selling us down the road to communism for the past 30 or more years. We must combat this trend individually, or by groups.

It is time for every freedom-loving American to obtain every tiny bit of information obtainable as to what our servants in Washington do to aid the communist - bloc countries. When this information becomes available, regardless of media, let your congressman and senators know that you are against any type of aid going to the communist countries who are our sworn enemies and are dedicated to bury us. A letter, postcard, telegram or telephone call will be sufficient. But do something. Don't just let George do it, or the JC's.

A detailed account of Nair's speech and the question and answer session appeared in the Gazette Telegraph, page nine, on April 3. If anyone who reads this paper and failed to read about the speech and doesn't have the issue on hand, it is suggested that some effort should be made to obtain same. The detailed account was covered by Ray Herst, Gazette Telegraph staff writer, and it may be added, he did a swell job. Congratulations, Mr. Herst.

SPRINGS SYMPHONY

To the Editor:

May I take this opportunity to thank you and your staff for the fine cooperation and help you have given the Colorado Springs Symphony this past season.

In order to continue to grow, our organization must have the support of the community. We have endeavored to win this support in the only way we feel it is possible — by striving to produce the highest possible quality of music. It is not easy to maintain this goal in a community of our size. Few people realize the amount of hard work and sacrifice involved. The players of the Colorado Springs Symphony Orchestra deserve the highest praise for their accomplishments.

We are happy to realize that an ever increasing number of people are convinced of the value of a fine symphony in our community. We thank you for your support which has helped made this possible.

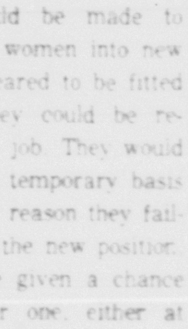
The Local Scene

A Free Enterprise Cure

By RUFUS L. PORTER



Ed Richardson, local capitalist, businessman and consultant, has come up with an idea, plan or scheme that just might be a solution to many of our personal battles with poverty, and all in the realm of free enterprise.

It is Ed's idea to present the plan to interested employers who are willing to give men and women who have been displaced in business or industry by automation, age or any other cause, a second chance. He would form a dues-paying cooperative, the dues being spent in examining and finding solutions for the problems of those unemployed persons who sought help from the organization. The whole thing would be on a strictly voluntary basis.

Efforts would be made to place men or women into new jobs they appeared to be fitted for, where they could be retrained on the job. They would be hired on a temporary basis and if for any reason they failed to click in the new position, they would be given a chance to try another one, either at that plant or the plant of another cooperative member. Ed believes this would be a scientific approach to each one's personal problem and that most workers are adaptable enough to be able to learn a new way of making a living if given an opportunity.

This sounds like a logical scheme and it would be a far different and better approach to the "war on poverty" than the one being proposed by the federal government. The weapons of free enterprise would be far superior to those of government in such a war. If this plan were started locally and proved successful, it could quickly spread across the nation and bring an end to a great many hard-luck cases before the politicians could unlimber their guns.

Some such plan as that offered by Richarson could, conceivably, spike the guns of government and save the taxpayers a lot of money. Without so much government interference, business and industry are fully capable of solving, and have solved, greater problems than the present unemployment one. If the government would repeal the minimum wage law, and all other labor laws, and let private enterprise become again FREE private enterprise, there would be no unemployment problem in this country. There would be a labor shortage within six months.

Due to a freer climate in the European Common Market, there has been for several years a labor shortage in each one of the market member nations. They are all importing labor from other, less enlightened, countries. If the trend continues, they will before long be importing workers from these United States. That will be quite a reversal from the usual procedure.

Adam Lyre thinks he was born 60 years too soon. He likes the idea of equal pay for everybody whether they ever work or not.

"Just think," he says, "scientists say they can soon guarantee us all 150 years of living, barring accidents. Just think, 150 years of fishing, traveling and horsing around. What a life. Of course, somebody's going to have to work, but think of the fun the rest of us can have."

This wouldn't be anything new for Adam. I never knew him to have anything but fun anyhow. It is nice of him, though, to want to cut in some of his friends on it — at the producers' expense, of course.

Babies Have a Stake, Too

By GEORGE BOARDMAN, PhD

Those who do the bidding of rulers, politicians and others addicted to the multi-hued aspects of rulership and socialism are enjoying many happy days during which they attempt to work up interest in the idea that 18-year-old children should vote. To readers who arrived late, like today, I now reiterate my absolute refusal to sanction the right of any human being to rule me and I'll not vote on it.

The standard unthinking comment on the subject states that if a boy is old enough to fight for his country, he should have a voice in its management. In the first place, he does not fight for his country but for the government. It might be well to note at this time that the people of this country have never given their consent to conscription. The government passed a law, then passed additional legislation which made it possible for this government to turn over those who have been shanghaied into the armed services of the government to a collection of demi-rulers, political losers and other misfits who get kicked into the upstairs junk yard called the United Nations. The right of human beings to their own lives has been totally disregarded. Obviously, the 18-year-old boy or a human being of any age has the right to protect his life and property but government denied this right when it passed a law to shanghai human beings into the service of government.

In the second place, voting gives no one a voice in the management of the affairs of the government. It only permits people to vote for another mere human being to represent them provided the representative doesn't decide to represent the other guy or just worry about his own urge to hold power over others.

Finally, a baby also holds a stake in connection with this matter and since the child is enslaved by a monumental debt with its first breath, it also should have something to say about what goes on. As a matter of fact, a day-old infant could not do worse than have adults.

From personal experience, I can say that you don't need to be able to think to vote. I well remember the times I wrote in the name of Mickey Mouse, Leo Carillo and J. Bracken Lee, a relatively innocuous activity compared to the shame I feel over the unfortunate fact that I voted one time for Eisenhower because I believed he could not be as bad as his opponent.

Among rulers and politicians generally, there is the growing fear that more and more people may learn to think. Millions of dollars have been spent on advertising designed to sell the idea that voting is a civic duty and such campaigns have been only moderately successful. If the voting age limit is reduced to 19 or 18, nationally, those who reap the benefit of elections figure the youngsters will really go for it.

But take a look, if the voting age is lowered, what about the 16-year-old wife of the 18-year-old boy? Obviously, she will have a vital and personal interest at stake.

Fortunately, a majority of the young people who have been polled oppose the idea of lowering the voting age. I've received a few letters from unusually bright youngsters who feel the voting age should be raised to 45 or 50. Others express a huge disinterest in the whole business and say, "Who cares what the age limit is? I don't see any sense in voting anyway. Look at the mess we're in right now."

A good many young people have the ability to look at facts and they wonder why they should be conscripted for conversational defense purposes against enemies which are being supported with billions of tax dollars. The resentment against compulsory military service is actually very strong. One young man wrote, "If government can force me into military service, it can also force me to be a mail man, a member of the phony peace corps or draft me for any other government agency. They say they wouldn't do such a thing but I certainly do not trust politicians."

Good luck and good health to you, in Freedom.

These Days

In Communist Cuba

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

The answer of Senator Tom Dodd, Democrat of Connecticut, to Senator Fulbright's assertion that Fidel Castro should be accepted as a disagreeable but bearable nuisance has been to send a copy of a newly issued pamphlet titled "Terror and Resistance in Communist Cuba" to every one of his senatorial colleagues.

The pamphlet, the first in a series projected by the extremely knowledgeable Citizens Committee for a Free Cuba, is the product of Paul Bethel, who was press attache at the U.S. Embassy in Havana from 1958 to 1961. It is in every respect a shocker. It has convinced Senator Dodd that there is going to be an uprising against the Castro regime sooner rather than later, and that when the explosion does come, the attitude of the U.S. may be the make-or-break factor.

The Bethel material, drawn from new refugee sources and a careful monitoring of internal Castroite radio communications inside Cuba, makes it plain that virtually nothing is done today in Fidel's red paradise without the use of extreme compulsion. Resistance calls forth terror, but the terror only compounds the resistance. Peasants — the Guajiros — are commanded to cut the sugar cane, but the Fidelista command corps has not been able to keep the Guajiro from sabotaging the cutting. The fields burn, the grinding equipment in the mills breaks down. And, as a last resort, the Castroites have to turn to a universal military draft to get the crops in.

ON EVERY DESK

In putting a copy of "Terror and Resistance in Communist Cuba" on every senator's desk, Tom Dodd is serving notice that Fulbright does not speak for the Democratic party in the Senate. The Bethel pamphlet, in Dodd's opinion, effectively combats the fallacy that the Castro regime can be made stable. The truth is that its seeming solidity is based on Russian support — but such support is extremely vulnerable when it must operate over thousands of miles of ocean. Uprisings, according to the Bethel thesis, are possible against a Communist terror regime, as has been proved in Hungary, Poland, East Germany, and Tibet. Whether they can succeed or not is a function of distance. The Hungarian anti-Communist revolution, for one, would have succeeded if Khrushchev had not moved in the Red Army with 5,000 tanks. It would be impossible to move such a force into red Cuba in the event of an uprising.

The irony, according to Senator Dodd and Paul Bethel, is that the resistance inside Cuba is increasing to the point of imminent explosion at a time when the U.S. State Department believes that living conditions in Cuba have improved. In Miami, the Cuban refugees have given up hope that this country intends to do anything to help them return to their homeland.

LESS AND LESS

Of course, Fidel Castro is "bearable" for the time being. So is cancer in its early stages. It is only when metastasis occurs, with the disease jumping to distant parts of the anatomy, that cancer becomes something more than a nuisance. Castroism is "bearable" only so long as it can be prevented from leaping to Chile or Brazil.

The Dodd retort to the Fulbright attitude would shape itself into a five-point program reminiscent of U.S. behavior back in the eighteen nineties, when our policy was to encourage the Jose Marti Cuban rebellion against Spain. One, Washington would withdraw its restrictions on Cuban anti-Communist freedom fighters. Two, we would commit ourselves publicly to a declaration that Cuba must be freed. Three, we would let the anti-Castro exiles in Central America purchase arms. Four, we would reaffirm the Monroe Doctrine. And five, we would encourage the creation of a legion of exiles from all Communist countries to take the part of the anti-Castroites.

Will we do any of this in time? Or will the explosion predicted by Paul Bethel for Cuba be permitted to waste itself?

The Old Mountaineer

Thoughts by the Wayside

By FRANK McDONOUGH JR.

He puts his foot in the bucket. When a rookie in the spring training camps of big league baseball, it means that he steps back from a close fast pitch, or commits other basic errors, and that he will be sent back to the minors where he belongs. Stan Musial is one of the few exceptions to the rule, but Stan is one in a thousand.

Lyndon Johnson is a veteran of the political wars, but he is a rookie in national and international diplomacy. He has made a good start in the big league, but will he put his foot in the bucket? I think he already has — twice. In his state of the union message he planned to get rid of poverty. This was utter demagoguery and he knew it. When the decalogue failed to do away with poverty through nonobservance, Moses followed with the most horrendous set of frightening laws in the history of man, and these too failed. Solomon thought that by living the life of splendor and luxury at the top, it would automatically raise the status of the impoverished, but it didn't. Christ alone had the common sense to recognize that the poor — the indigent, sick, aged, and just plain lazy folks — we would always have with us. Christ, of course, was not running for office. But Lyndon has promised to do away with poverty, and thus he has put one foot in the bucket.

Another foot has also stepped back into the oratorical bucket. Suddenly, no doubt with coaching from the sidelines, his public speeches have taken on the nasal sing song of Franklin Delano, mixed somewhat with the dulcet cadence of one of Ted Armstrong's sermons. It won't work and Lyndon better go back to plain Texas talk.

The pathway of the next few months is strewn with buckets, one of which is labeled CUBA. That one may be your final test in the big league.

The Boom Is Here

By AMBROSE HILLS

Never one to refuse to say I told you so, I point out that in this column many weeks ago the present boom was predicted. Employment, consumer spending, and higher incomes are following like a tail on the end of the business-expansion kite. Only storm-cloud on the horizon is the threat of inflation.

Why the boom?

Many factors are involved, but I'd give the nod to the restraint of Canadians during the vital period when everybody was crying blue ruin.

When will the boom become a bust?

Never, let us hope; but it could be ended promptly if Canadians start to dump all the restraint that brought the boom right into the wide-mouthed ash-can of greed.

Canada industries have proved that they can operate efficiently and invade other markets effectively given half a chance. Here in Canada, however, we have a habit of cutting them down every time they show signs of real vigor. In some minds, the only time business is popular is when it is in deep trouble. Then they rush to help it. When it is succeeding, they do everything in their power to check its growth. . . and then condemn it for not providing jobs.

If, during the next year or two, Canadian business is allowed to keep costs down, we can win and hold markets that will be ours for the next decade. However, if costs spiral through unreasonably high taxes or labor policies, the surge that has brought the boom will stop.

I am betting the boom will last. I believe Canadians in large number have learned that when business is good, times are good, and they'll want to keep it that way. In spite of automation, or even perhaps because of its adoption by Canadian firms, the next three or four years could see us with more jobs than suitable applicants. At any rate, let's give the jobmakers every incentive to create that situation.

A Rift Between Friends in the War of Ideas

Editor's note: George and Martha are real persons although these are not their real names. The letter addressed to them was written by a graduate of Freedom School and is reproduced in this manner through the courtesy of the School and the permission of the author. We consider this letter one of the finest we have ever read and hope that you will read it and think deeply about the keenly personal nature of this struggle for the minds of men. Copies in pamphlet form are available at the Gazette Telegraph or at the Freedom School, Box [illegible], Colorado Springs.

Dear George and Martha,

I am deeply disturbed by our conversation last night, and just as concerned as I know both of you must be. It seems incredible, after having been so close to you during all the years, that we should now disagree so sharply, that the gulf between us, of which you spoke, should now become almost uncrossable.

I am filled with an inexpressible sorrow that this must be so. Yet, the realization is that it is so—the realization that in the days to come (days which I face with a sense of foreboding and dread) the gulf must inevitably widen unless we can find some means by which we can meet or talk to each other with mutual understanding and respect. In a world like this, it is no longer possible (at least for me) to maintain friendships, loyalties or even family relationships which are based on the superficialities and trivialities characterized by cocktail conversation while underneath we maintain a total opposition to each other upon fundamental problems which concern our very existence.

Oddly enough, and sadly, neither of you disagrees with me on these fundamentals. Actually, we agree. Yet, paradoxically, the gulf between us exists and widens. How can this be?

I say to you — "We believe that each of us must be responsible for his acts, and his life; that unless each individual is responsible and held responsible for his actions by his fellows, that neither the individual nor his social group can ever achieve anything worthwhile." You say — "Of course, that is true. We all know that."

I say — "I must teach my children responsibility. I must teach them values. I must give them a moral code by which they can determine and judge what is right and what is wrong. I must teach them to respect their own lives and their own property and the property and lives of others. I must teach them that they deserve only what they earn, and that what they achieve can only be done through education, self-discipline and the maximum development of their own ability. I must discipline them in these matters so that they may achieve, as adults, the self-discipline which is absolutely imperative to any human if he is to become a responsible and self-respecting being. I must teach them these things because these are the attributes from which arise all that is noble in man, and which give him what we call human dignity, incentive, understanding and compassion." In all this I know that each of you will most definitely and sincerely agree.

I say further: "What is true for my children is true for all children; that if most of the citizens of the community, or of the state (nation) do not follow these same principles, then the community and the nation cannot achieve anything but chaos which no amount of law and order can control." In this, too, I am sure you will agree with me.

Yet, and this is the crux of the matter, when I say further that "government (that is the policy and beliefs of men in government today) is systematically destroying every one of these concepts," (it is unimportant whether intentional or unintentional) then it is at this point that the curtain comes down, and the gulf between us begins. "Politics" — you say, and that is your whole and only answer. Without further thought you close the doors of your minds to any further suggestion and dismiss the whole thing with that one single word — "politics." Then as an afterthought, and perhaps regretfully, but with what is to me a terrifying display of infallible self-assurance, you apply the label, Extremist! Reactionary! No further thought is required. Case dismissed.

I cry out to you in anguish and frustration and despair. "It is so much more than that. I only want to live. Is that politics? I only want you to understand that we cannot live as decent human beings much longer, if we are to be deprived of our responsibility, our property and our moral code. Is that just politics?" But the door is closed. I cannot reach you. "It cannot happen here in this great country," you say, and the curtain falls.

Let me state my position as briefly and as bluntly as I can. For as long as you believe in the individual human values and rights I have outlined, but insist, out of blind faith and loyalty alone, on sanctioning a group whose every action, if you would but shed your blindness, is dedicated to the destruction of those rights and values; for as long as you make no effort to understand what this revolution which convulses the world is all about, but content yourself with faith in one group and labeling of the other; for just that long the gulf between us must remain and become always wider.

The reason that this is true should be perfectly clear. It is by your sanction and your easy label, yours and millions of others just like you, that you destroy me and those like me who assume the responsibility, who furnish the ability, and who produce the materials and services you want. The cruel truth is that, even while you destroy us, we are the ones you really believe in and the only ones upon whom you can depend.

Let me try to explain this. Forget, if you can, party names like Democrat or Republican. We are not concerned here with parties. We are concerned with the basic ideologies and concepts upon which this world conflict hinges.

The issue is as old as recorded history. Simply stated it is nothing more than this: Who is to be responsible? Man? Or Government? In the language of today it is stated in a somewhat more complex manner, but it is basically the same problem which has always plagued man: how to live in an organized society without being crushed by the organization.

We can say, then, that today the issue facing the whole world is: The moral and ethical system of individualism (responsible man) versus the amoral and ethical system of socialism (government assumes responsibility). Individualism embraces the economic system of free enterprise. Socialism embraces the planned economy, which in Russia and China is almost totally planned, through almost complete control or ownership of private property, the means of production. In America, England, Western Europe and all the other countries of today's world, gradual or creeping socialism exists. In these countries there are varying degrees of ownership and control of the means of production.

You protest to me that you are not socialists. I know that you honestly believe you are not. The word "socialist" is abhorrent to you. The hard fact remains that you are just exactly that — socialists. So was I until I began to examine myself in the hard and unbiased light of reason and logic and exact definition.

Your enigma is this: Each of you in your personal lives and beliefs are almost classical individualists. Both of you accept complete responsibility for your actions and both of you demand that your personal lives and property be respected just as you respect the lives and property of others. Yet, both of you, by your deeds and actions and sanctions toward people other than yourselves, are almost classical socialists. You demand responsibility of yourselves, your friends and neighbors and all those with whom you associate individually. But when your concern is with people whom you don't know at all and of whom you think vaguely as "the masses" or "the people" or any term which makes a collective unit out of individuals (even your neighbors whom you do know) it is then that you apply an entirely different set of rules and sanctions which are the exact opposite of those rules and sanctions you apply to yourselves. It is this vast split in your thought patterns which allows you to agree with me up to a point and then impels you to abruptly or casually pull down the curtain and admit no further reasoning.

I know of no man, George, who more admirably fulfills what the individualist terms the epitome of success, the self-made man, than you do. I have tremendous admiration for what you were able to accomplish for yourself with only your ability, responsibility and incentive to account for it. I have the deepest and utmost respect for your integrity, self-discipline and the unassuming dignity which seems to characterize everything you do. You are, in all your personal traits, gestures, and accomplishments, everything that I would like to be. Yet, we must disagree, and I am truly sorry that it is so.

You, too, Martha, in a different way, have accomplished as much. Out of poverty, and a multitude of adversities, you pulled yourself up by your very bootstraps with almost no help or guidance other than your own innate sense of responsibility and self-respect. You, too, are the living proof that individualism is the key to achievement of any kind. I, who shared this with you, have, and have always had, nothing but the most sincere respect for what you have done. Yet, blood ties, shared hardships, personal respect, notwithstanding, we, too, come to the edge of parting. We, too, must disagree.

I have puzzled much over this. How is it that two people like you both are, who in yourselves are the living proof of everything I believe in, outside your own personal sphere not only sanction, but sincerely advocate the ideas and causes which over the long run must totally destroy or debase the very foundations upon which your own uniqueness as individuals is based?

I felt that if I could find the answer to this question, then I could begin to understand what has happened to our America, for I know that there are still in this country many millions of people who, just like you and Martha, have one set of standards for your personal lives and another diametrically opposing set for your extrapersonal existence. I know, too, that, oddly, most of you are totally unaware of these two sets of antagonistic standards, and that those who are aware, have by a process of rationalization and the substitution of faith for reason, compartmentalized and or ignored the incompatibilities in such a way that they can live with them in reasonable comfort.

Some years ago, George, you gave me the clue through which I have finally solved, at least to my own satisfaction, this dilemma. You were discussing and defending social security. You told me the story of a man whom you had known for many years, a good honest man, hard working, loyal, undemanding, who for one reason or another had never been able to save anything for his old age. You felt that he, and the millions like him, deserved something better than a beggar's existence in their old age, and you wanted to help him. The story stuck with me. I knew that the answer to my question was in this story if I could only find it.

Not too long ago I was reading something written back in the late twenties or early thirties by that amiable and honest socialist, Norman Thomas. He said, in effect, the American people will never accept socialism as a system as long as it is called socialism. But they will buy it entirely if you disguise it and call it humanitarianism. I read this. I remembered your story, and suddenly I understood you and Martha, George, and most of the millions of others including myself.

I had been unable to discover it before because the fault lay not where I expected it, in your weaknesses, but stemmed entirely from your great strength. It arose from one of your finest virtues, and that is your very human compassion. I say this with humility and respect. I say this, I think, with understanding, because my own misguided love for humanity has garnered many a memoir encased in bitter wormwood.

Let me say with honest and respectful candor that it was your great capacity for compassion which betrayed you and which finally allowed you to be persuaded that it was right and proper to use organized force and coercion to make that group of people save, who for some reason either could not or would not save of their own volition. Once that decision was made, once that bridge was crossed, then other decisions and other actions involving your interpretation of what was the good of social groups, and the use of legal force to dispense it, became easier and easier. You did it for the most sincere and seemingly noblest of reasons — humanitarianism — but when you bypassed the individual and embraced legislation and force as a means of doing good for this group or that, you became, however unwittingly, a socialist.

When you, and men like you and I, decided that this fine old man of whom you spoke and others like him, should be forced to save his money, the decision we actually made was this: "Man is not responsible for his acts, therefore, we must find a way to protect him." By the addition of government intervention to this decision, the use of force, we said in effect: "All men are not responsible, therefore, government must assume responsibility for all men." This last statement is true because the law cannot, by its nature, make a single exception; it cannot declare one man responsible and another irresponsible, else it is not a law. By that single decision, by that one erroneous assumption began the fateful process of destroying the basic ingredient in the American character which made him for a while one of the great people of the earth. That ingredient was responsibility. "Root, hog, or die," he used to say. He knew it was up to him. As a group they were strong, unafraid, self-reliant, confident, and "beholden" to no one but themselves. "I'll take charity from no one, man or government," was a common expression when the handouts first began. That expression died quickly.

Even before this happened we had already laid the foundation by which government could assume this responsibility, when in 1913 we sanctioned the income tax and the federal reserve system. The graduated income tax provided the government with the means by which they could, by persuasion, vote themselves any amount of money taken from those who worked to give to those for whom, later on, we humanitarians were going to feel so sorry. The federal reserve system gave the government a total monopoly on money and credit.

With these two powers, not only could we eventually control the economy, we could also manipulate it.

In the 1930's, humanitarianism really began to boom. That was when we decided it was proper to force people like your friend to save. We began by taking just a little property from every working man's pay check to make him save. We called it his social security.

The depression was on, unemployment had risen to an all time high of 20%. The fact that nobody starved and no one was actually starving was unimportant. We felt sorry for those people. So having already made the decision that man was not responsible, it was relatively easy to make the decision that we should take care of those people who weren't working; that we must relieve them of their responsibility. So we told the man who was working — "You have no right to all of your property when these people have no property; you have no right to all the products of your ability when we have all these people who seem to have no ability; you have no right to save this money for your children when these people aren't saving; so we'll take part of what you earn, whether you like it or not, and we'll give it to all those poor folks who aren't working. It will just be a little bit and you won't miss it." That year it didn't cost much, as costs go. But 30 years later welfare alone costs us more than five billion dollars per year.

Have we really helped these people? Look at them well. Consider this specimen who is the end result of our pity! What can we say of this third generation of people to whom welfare has long since become a way of life? Observe carefully our handiwork whom we have spawned and are spawning by the millions even in times of plenty!

They do not work and will not. Heads down, unmindful, they have neither pride nor self-respect. They are totally unreliable, not maliciously so, but like cattle who wander aimlessly. Foresight and the ability to reason have simply atrophied from long neglect. Talk to them, listen to them, work with them as I do and you realize with a kind of dull horror that they have lost all semblance of human beings except that they stand on two feet and talk — like parrots. "More. Give me more. I need more," are the only new thoughts they have learned.

This is what we do to those fine old people like your friend, George. This is our own special 20th century remodeled version of that man, these poor, miserable, degraded, shuffling, subhuman creatures. They stand today as a monumental caricature of homo sapiens, the harsh and horrible reality created by us out of our own misguided pity. They are also, if we continue our present course, the living prophecy of what a great percentage of the rest of us will become.

"Pity the farmer," we said. "Pity the working man." "Pity the low wage groups." "Pity the underdeveloped nations." "Pity the Negro." Pity! Pity! Pity!

"To help others you must sacrifice yourselves," we said. Then by that peculiar logic premised on that first erroneous assumption, we used force and ordered the sacrifice of all those who had ability. The responsible became the sacrificial victims. We drain ever more and more of their life-blood from them; we carry it with outstretched hands to the irresponsible and, out of that same peculiar logic we say, "This is yours. We owe it to you. Take it and rise."

With the direct logic of irresponsibility they take it greedily in hands that have neither knowledge, nor ability, nor responsibility, nor incentive, nor the discipline of self-restraint, and they fling it riotously, willy-nilly, to the four winds. But they do not rise. They sink further into helpless degradation. They come back snarling, "Give me more. It is my right. I want more."

We have done it all over the world. Every responsible person and every responsible nation on the face of the earth has been our sacrificial victim — from Belgium to the Congo, from France to North Africa, from America to China, to Korea, to Viet Nam, to Laos, to Cuba, Peru. There is now no place left we haven't done this. Did you ever hear of the Marxist doctrine, "From each according to his ability to each according to his need?" Here is your humanitarianism, George.

For thirty years we have pitied and for thirty years we have used force to take more and more from the man who still believes and still keeps hopefully trying to earn what he gets and get what he earns — thirty years ago we took approximately 10% of his earnings — today we take 35%.

It takes money to do all these humanitarian things. Money is property. Property is the means of production. Socialism is the ownership or control of the means of production. Humanitarianism, by force, becomes, by taxation, the means of controlling production. Humanitarianism, by force, therefore, is socialism. Communist Poland, George, where people like you and I are virtual slaves, owns or controls 59% of the means of production. Will you venture a prediction for us if we pity for another 30 years at our present rate?

While we have been pitying, a new cry develops. The various objects of our "pity," from whom we have removed by decree, the sense of individual responsibility, the sense of respect for ownership of private property, and the sense of self-respect, now organize into groups. "We know our rights," they cry. "More. Give us more." For every demand that is met, three more arise to take its place. "Think of our needs!" they cry. "That group has more than this group." "It is not fair." "We demand what is ours by right and we want it now." "Take from that group. It's their fault. Take from this group. They stole what was ours." They stage sit-ins and lie-ins, sit-downs and lie-downs, marches-out and marches-on. There are always more mobs, bigger mobs, jeering mobs, threatening mobs, violent mobs.

How do hate groups arise? Don't blame some ridiculous name you have coined like right-wing, or reactionary. We created them all. You and I, with pity backed by force. Can you take from one man his property and give it to another without creating hatred? Can you favor one group at the expense of another without making enemies? Why are you surprised that law and order breaks down? What can we logically expect, Martha, but more violence? I told you this was only the beginning of violence — not the end. Can't you see why?

Did you ever stop to think, Martha, what happens to men and women (which after all is all that society consists of, though we seem to think of society today as something above and beyond the sum of the individuals which comprise it) when you deny them their rights of individual responsibility and the right to sustain their own lives (i.e., to own property)? Have you ever stopped to ask what it is that makes people moral? What allows them to develop a moral code? Have you ever wondered how people develop a sense of what is right and what is wrong? You would agree that it is wrong to murder, wrong to steal, wrong to cheat, wrong to covet. Why? Morality as we have practiced it from time immemorial has been based on the mutual respect of each man for the property of any other man. To trespass the property lines of another man is immoral. Life, ideas, contracts are individual properties just as is land and its derivatives. To kill, to steal, to covet, are trespasses of the property of another. From man's sense of responsibility come the restraints by which he controls himself and respects the property lines of all others. Don't you see that when government trespasses his property by force and tells him it is not his right to own it, it destroys every means he has to be moral or to judge what is right and wrong? Then by removing those forces (responsibility) by which he governs (restrains) himself, he is reduced to nothing more than a predatory animal who judges right and wrong only by what he thinks he needs and wants, and if it takes murder or stealing or cheating to get what he wants, this is right to him. Have you wondered why morality is declining today? You did it. You and I by our sanctions.

You say that society today is too complex, that we must sanction all these laws and all this government. You contradict yourself. If it is too complex to be run by all men, then by the same logic it would certainly be even more unlikely that a few men could do better. You say the solution is to give the power to a few men (and nearly always these do not represent the best minds for running anything) and turn them loose with something which by your own admission is too complex for them to possibly understand. Don't you see that the complexity arises from men who do not and cannot understand all things trying to make laws and lay down rules and that each new law and new ruling dislocates something in the economy or in the lives of people which requires new laws and new rules in never-ending succession? Don't you see that this is what has happened to every civilization, that it kept making new laws and new rules until man's (the individual) responsibility and his incentives were so completely destroyed he could no longer produce, and the civilization then had to fall?

"Freedom for all mankind. Freedom for all the struggling masses of the world" is the cry of these humanitarians whom you sanction in our government and all the governments of today's world. Don't you see that these noble words which put hope in each man's soul and which delude him into following, are but empty words? Don't you see that the freedom the humanitarians are trying to achieve can only mean the freedom of some (i.e. those in government who use force) to do as they please with other men and the product of other men's labor? Don't you see that the freedom of which they speak so glowingly can only mean freedom for the few at the price of enslavement of the many?

What kind of people have we become — we who think only in cliches, who judge only by status and authority, who damn others by groups with the easy slander of hateful epithets? How did we get this way?

Once we were a proud people. Once upon a time we held our heads high and bowed to no one. We did not judge individuals by groups, but rather we judged each man for his actions, regardless of the group with which we might think him to be associated. Now it is different. Now we aren't responsible. Thought is too difficult, reason too arduous, so we classify people by groups and then damn the groups. "It isn't our fault," you say. "It's the fault of someone else. It's that bunch of extremists over there, they did it." Or, "those reactionaries over there, they did it. I didn't do it. It wasn't my fault. I'm not responsible."

Every time I have talked to you in the past two years, Martha, you have told me either directly or by inference that I am a reactionary, an extremist. You have never defined exactly what these terms mean to you. Using them as you do is simply your way of justifying your own position without really thinking about it. When I called you just after the President was murdered, the first thing you said to me was, "The right-wing extremists did it. They killed him." To be perfectly consistent, you would have to say that I killed him, or, at least, that I was capable of having done so. I know you well enough to know that such a thought never entered your mind, but by your casual label, by your easy damning by group of everyone who differs with you, that is exactly what you say.

Yet you say you are going to be lonely because of this gulf between us. What is it you want? Do you want the right to classify me with the murderers and then ask me to [illegible] at the same time?

I ask again, "What kind of people have we become?"

We are lost here in America. For one [illegible] moment of history, we had the key and the open door, and the way was there before us. Men threw off the yoke of centuries and thrust forward along that way with such hope and such brilliance that for a little while we were the light and the inspiration of the world.

Now the key has been thrown carelessly aside. The door is closed and we have lost the way. Men who hoped, now sadly put back over their shoulders the old hopeless yoke of the centuries and trudge their mindless way along a path that has no beginning and no end.

Surely logical discussion based on intensive study, honest questions, and stated convictions from one whose sincerity and integrity you have never questioned, requires a more reasonable and considerate answer than "Take a vacation, you must be sick." Yet, it is not your words which become the force which alienates us. It is your attitude, your unshakable complacency, upheld only by blind faith in an authority which has long since deserted you, which allows you to thus insult both intelligence and integrity without realizing you have done so and without meaning to do it. You drive me away because it never occurred to you, for one moment, that I might be right, it only occurs to you that I must be sick. This is the strangest and the saddest of our differences.

I am not sick at mind, my dear Martha, but I am profoundly sick at heart. Let me tell you why.

There is no sorrow greater than comes to one who sees the very foundations of the land he loved with his whole heart and mind crumble needlessly into ruin; there is no deadlier despair than that wrung from the bitter realization that for each of us the promise and the hope are gone, those magic beacons which suffused the land with the radiance of grandeur and of greatness; there is no grief more desolate than comes to one who is forced to watch with a terrible and helpless clarity of vision, the inexorable moral decay and degradation of a once proud people, the very bone and sinew of his being, who found the way and now have lost it.

This is your truth as well as mine. Must we then quarrel?

This is my answer and my plea.

I ask only that you try to understand.

Sincerely,
(Name Withheld)

Goldwater Will Change Tactics Of His Campaign

CHICAGO (AP)—Sen. Barry Goldwater says he will change his campaign tactics to protect himself against what he calls overexposure to the press.

The Arizona Republican said Friday in an appearance taped for a Chicago television show that he and New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller suffered in the New Hampshire presidential primary "not from overexposure to the electorate, but to the press."

Goldwater said it was sometimes almost impossible for voters to attend gatherings in private homes because newsmen crowded them out.

"Our mistake," the senator said, "was in not insisting that the press stay out so we could meet the people."

Goldwater and Rockefeller ran second and third, respectively, in the New Hampshire primary behind Henry Cabot Lodge, ambassador to South Viet Nam, whose backers sponsored a write-in campaign.

The senator said that while "Republicans generally do not get a good press," reporting of his campaign has been "generally fair."

The GOP suffers at the hands of the news media, he said, despite what he called the seeming preponderance of Republicans among newspaper owners.

Goldwater was in Chicago for a political rally, winding up his campaign for Tuesday's Illinois primary. Goldwater and Sen. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine are the only presidential aspirants whose names will appear on the GOP ballot.

WASHER GOES TO SURGERY—Medical science has created a new use for the housewife's favorite appliance. A Swedish company has converted a washing machine into a "perdometer", a device for measuring blood loss during operations. While working a washing machine is old hat to a housewife, a trained medical technician is necessary to operate the machine when it's used as a "perdometer." He must read and analyze a device atop the machine which measures the amount of blood washed from towels and swabs used during the operation. Swedish technicians spent months looking for a ready-made product that could be converted to a "perdometer" before they decided on the washing machine.

Dutchmen Do Not Want New Royal Marriage

THE HAGUE (UPI) — The Netherlands has informed Pope Paul VI it would oppose a papal marriage ceremony for Princess Irene and Prince Hugo Carlos de Bourbon Parma, court sources said Friday.

The 24-year-old Irene and the 34-year-old Carlist pretender to the Spanish throne had an audience with the Pope Monday without advising Queen Juliana or the Dutch government. Court sources said the couple would be married in Rome within a month, and there was speculation that they asked Pope Paul to officiate.

Observers said a Vatican ceremony would cause political embarrassment to Conservative Prime Minister Victor Marijnen and to Holland's Catholic People's party. The party holds 50 to 150 seats in the lower house of parliament.

Such a ceremony would give Protestants and Liberals in Marijnen's Catholic-Liberal - Protestant coalition the impression that Pope Paul was taking sides in the political controversy swirling around Irene's affair of the heart with the Spanish prince.

PROMOTION CEREMONY — Ralph E. Deems (center) has help from both sides as he receives the insignia of a full colonel in the Army. Pinning on his "birds" in a promotion ceremony are Lt. Gen. Charles B. Duff, commanding general of the Army Air Defense Command, and Mrs. Deems. The colonel, who came to ARADCOM headquarters in Colorado Springs in June, 1961, is executive officer of the G-3 (Operations and Training) Section.

Dean Doenges, 31 S. Garo St. was elected district chairman for the coming year, while D. Claire Willisms 1121 Logan Place and Floyd Wohlgemuth, 820 N. Logan Ave. were elected vice chairmen. Noel A. Talcott 2824 Garland Terrace was named to the post of district commissioner.

Earl Leonard, past district chairman was presented with a plaque, honoring him as the first district chairman of the Skyline District. Leonard has served in this capacity since the district was formed two years ago.

The speaker for the evening was Dr. William L. McDivitt, president of Otero Junior College at La Junta Colo. Dr. McDivitt has been a very active Scouter for over ten years, and his speech for the evening introduced the new program of emphasis for the coming year. McDivitt spoke on our American Heritage, its privileges and responsibilities.

He pointed out that for every privilege we have in America, that there is a responsibility, and that too often we are not willing to accept the responsibility.

The meeting was closed with a simple ceremony honoring the representatives of institutions which use the Boy Scout program.

Average Soldier Entering Army Needs Dental Aid

The avergae young man entering the Army today has 12 decayed, missing, or filled teeth. Often he has poor oral hygiene and gum diseases as well.

Trying to prevent this is a man-sixe job which causes the Army Dental Corps to fall 8,000,000 man hours behind each year, and accounts for the loss each year of the full services of 10,000 soldiers. This is the situation as seen by Ft. Carson's dentists, headed by Col. James B. Bunnell Jr.

The answer is in the field of preventive dentistry, heretofore terrible neglected by the average American, as seen by the above statistics concering US soldiers—who, it must be remembered, represent a better-than-average sampling of our nation's youth.

In the field of medicine, preventive medicine is practiced in many ways: immunization, inoculation, protective clothing, sanitary engineering, periodic physical check-ups, chest x-rays, insect and rodent control, seat belts and many more.

All of this is based on the idea that it is easier to prevent disease and accidents than it is to treat them.

In the field of dentistry, prevention is receiving more and more attention every year, reports Colonel Bunnell, but an even greater effort must be made by the American public if the United States is not to become a nation of dental cripples.

Preventive dentistry involves restoring decayed teeth, removing troublesome teeth, threating diseased gums, creation of artificial teeth, correction of tooth alignment and dental education.

The Army Dental Corps has never before had such excellent facilities to combat dental diseases and provide preventive dentistry, says Major Layman, preventive dentistry officer.

The problem is that most soldiers, like their families at home and their civilian friends all over this country have a "wait until it bothers me" attitude about dentistry.

Because of his, it was estimated in 1958, that 2049 years of around-the-clock work would be necessary to complete all the dental treatment required by the American soldier at home and abroad.

Each man can do his part in making preventive dentistry a stong factor in this nation's health. Have your teeth and gums checked at least one every six months and a year (X-rays show cavities which are difficult to see with the eye.)

Cavities discovered early are relatively painless to fill and treat. Have your teeth professionally cleaned at least once a year and twice a year if possible.

This painless, pleasant process removes the calculus that even the best brushing is powerless to remove once it has formed. Calculus, commonly called tarter, is the major cause of gum disease in the mouth.

Your teeth are one of the most important aspects of your personal appearance. Take pride in them and see your dentist regularly-not just "when it bothers me." Oral hygiene is an important factor in preventing other diseases, too, so get to know you dentist-he is your friend and he can help you.

Wyoming Rancher With Carson Signal Corps

First Lt. Harold M. Turner, a Jackson Hole, Wyo., rancher 50 weeks of the year, is spending two weeks on active duty with the Signal Corps at Ft. Carson.

The lieutenant looks forward to his active duty stint at Carson each year since he served at the mountain post in 1959 and 1960 after completing his Signal schooling at Fort Monmouth, N. J.

Although the U.S. population increased from 132 million to 180 million between 1940 and 1960, the farm population declined from 30.5 million to 15.6 million in that time.
